

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Stow, circa 1600. By EMERY WALKER.

Based on a comparison of Stow's text with the maps of Hoefnagel in Braun and Hogenberg's atlas (circa 1560), of Faithorne (1658), and of Morden and Lea (1682). The information so obtained has been laid down on the first edition of the 25-inch Ordnance Map of the Survey of 1873. The plan of the Tower is taken from a drawing made in 1597, and engraved in Vetusta Monumenta. The famous map of Ralph Agas was probably based on Hoefnagel's map . . . . . to fold out at end

Queene Hithe Warde

NEXT vnto Bredstreete Warde on the south side thereof, is Queene Hithe Warde. Queene Hithe warde, so called of a water gate, or harborow for boates, lighters, and barges, and was of old time for shippes, at what time the timber bridge of London was drawne vp, for the passage of them to the said Hithe, as to a principall strand for landing and vnlading against the middest and hart of the Citie. This Warde beginneth in the East, in Knightriders streete, on the south side thereof, Knightriders streete. at the East end of the parish church called the holy Trinity, and runneth west on the south side to a lane called Lambert hill, which is the length of the warde in Knightriders streete, out of the which streete are diuers lanes, running south to Thames streete, and are of this warde: the first is Trinity Trinity lane. lane, which runneth downe by the west end of Trinity Church. Then is Spuren lane, or Spooners<sup>1</sup> lane, now called Huggen Spuren lane, or Huggen lane. lane. Then Bredstreete hill. Then S. Mary Mounthaunt: out of the which lane, on the East side thereof, is one other lane, turning East, through S. Nicholas Olaues church yard, to Bredstreete hill. This lane is called Finimore lane, or fue Finimore or fue foote lane. foote lane, because it is but fue foote in breadth at the west end: In the middest of this lane, runneth downe one other lane broader, south to Thames streete, I thinke the same to bee called Desboorne lane, for I reade of such a lane to haue Desborne lane beene in the parish of Mary Summerset, in the 22. yeare of Edward the third, where there is sayde to lye betweene the Tenement (of) Edward de Mountacute knight, on the East parte, and the Tenement sometime pertayning to William Gladwine on the west, one plot of ground, contayning in length towards Thames streete 25. foote, &c.

Last of all, haue you Lambart hill lane, so called of one Lambert hill. Lambart owner thereof: and this is the furthest west part of this warde.

On the north side comming downe from Knightriders street, the | East side of Lambart hill is wholly of this warde: and the west side, from the north end of the Blacke-smithes Hall (which is about the middest of this lane) vnto Thames streete. Then part of Thames streete is also of this warde, to wit, from a Cooks house called the signe of King David, three houses west from the old Swan Brewhouse in the East, vnto Huntington house, ouer against Saint Peters Church in the west, neare vnto Powles Wharffe. And on the lane side, from a Cookes house called the blew Boore, to the west end of Saint Peters Church, and vp Saint Peters hill, two houses North aboue the said Church. And these be the bounds of this ward: in which are Parrish churches seuen, Halles of companies two, & other ornaments as shall be shewed.

of the Trinity.

First, in Knightriders streete, is the small parish church of the holy Trinity, very old, and in danger of downe falling: collections haue beene made for reparing thereof, but they will not stretch so farre, and therefore it leaneth vpon proppes, or stilts. Monuments as followeth.

John Brian, Alderman in the raig of H. the fift, a great benefactor. John Chamber had a Chauntrie there. Thomas Rishby Esquier, and Alice his wife, within the Chauncell. John Mirfin, auditor of the Exchequer 1471. Sir Richard Fowlar of Rycote<sup>1</sup> in Oxfordshire, 1528. George Cope second sonne to sir John Cope of Copesashby in Northamptonshire, 1572.

of S. Nicholas Cold Abbey.

Towards the west end of Knightriders street is the parish church of S. Nicholas Cold Abbey, a proper church, somewhat ancient, as appeareth by the wayes raysed thereabout, so that men are forced to descend into the body of the church: it hath bin called of many Colden<sup>2</sup> Abbey, of some, Cold Abbey<sup>2</sup>, or Cold Bey, & so hath the most ancient writings, as standing in a cold place, as Cold harbor, and such like. The steeple or tall tower of this church, with the south Ile, hath beene of a later building, to wit the 1. of R. 2. when it was ment the whole old church should haue bin new builded, as appeareth by the arching begun on the east side the steeple, vnder y<sup>e</sup> which, in the stone work, the armes of one Buckland Esquier and his wife, daughter to Beaupere, are cut in stone, & also

are in the glasse windowes, wherby it appeareth he was the builder of y<sup>e</sup> steeple, & repairer of the residue. The 26. of E. the 3. An(drew) Aubery being | Maior, T. Frere Fish- Page 356

The 20. of Richard the second, Thomas Barnarde-Castle, Clearke, Iohn Sonderash Clearke, and Iohn Nouncey, gaue to the Parson and Churchwardens of the saide church and theyr successors, one messuage and one shoppe with the appurtenances in Distaffe lane and olde Fishstreete, for the reparation of the body of the saide church, the Belfrey or steeple, and ornamentes.

Buried in this church, Iohn Calfe, & William Cogeshall, 1426. Waltar Turke Fishmonger, Mayor 1349. Richarde Es(g)astone Fishmonger, 1330. Nicholas Wolberge Fishmonger, 1407. Thomas Padington Fishmonger, 1485. Robert Hary, Fishmonger, Iohn Suring, 1490. Roger Darlington, Fishmonger, 1557. Richard Lacty, Parson, vnder a fayre tombe on the North side the Quire, 1491. Richard Bradbrudge, 1497. William Clarke, 1501. James Picman, 1507. Richard Farneford, 1525. Thomas Nicholas, Fishmonger, 1527. William Barde Fishmonger, 1528.

On the North side of this church in the wall therof, was of late builded a conuenient cistern of stone and lead, for receipt Water conduit of Thames water, conueyed in pipes of lead to that place, for the ease and commoditie of the Fishmongers and other inhabitantes, in and aboute old Fishstreete. Barnard Randolph, common sergeant of the citie of London, did in his life time deliuer to the Company of Fishmongers the summe of nine hundred pound, to be employed towards the conducting of the said Thames water, and cesterning the same, &c. in the parishes of S. Mary Magdalen, and saint Nicholas Cold Abbay, neare vnto Fishstreete, seuen hundred pound, and other two hundred pound to charitable deedes: he deceased 1583. and shortly after this conduit with the other was made and finished.

that workemanship of stayning is departed out of vse in England. Lower down in Trinity lane on the east side thereof, was sometime a greate | Messuage pertayning vnto John Earle of Cornwell, in the fourteenth of Edward the 3. On Bredstreet hill down to the Thames on both sides, bee diuers faire houses, inhabited by Fishmongers, Cheesemongers, and Marchantes of diuers trades. On the West side whereof is the parish church of S. Nicholas Oliue, a conuenient church, hauing the monumentes of W. Newport, Fishmonger, one of the shiriffes, 1375. Richard Willowes Parson, 1391. Richard Sturges Fishmonger, 1470. Thomas Lewen, Ironmonger, one of the shiriffes, 1537. who gaue his messuage with the appurtenances, wherein hee dwelt, with foureteene Tenementes in the said parrish of saint Nicholas, to be had after the decease of Agnes his wife, to the Ironmongers, and they to giue stipendes appointed to Almes men, in fiue houses by them builded in the church yeard of that parrish, more to poore schollers in Oxford and Cambridge, &c. Blitheman, an excellent Organist of the Queens chappell, lyeth buried there with an Epitaph, 1591. &c. The next is old Fishstreete hill, a lane so called, which also runneth downe to Thames streete. In this lane, on the east side thereof, is the one end of Finimore, or Fiue foote lane. On the west side of this old Fishstreete hill, is the Bishoppe of Herefords Inne or lodging, an auncient house and large roomes builded of stone and timber which sometime belonged to the Mounthautes in Norfolke. Radulphus de Maydenstone Bishoppe of Hereford, about 1234. bought it of the Mounthautes, and gaue it to the Bishoppes of Hereford, his successors. Charles Booth<sup>1</sup>, Bishoppe of Hereforde and Chauncellour of the Marches, about the yeare 1517. repayred it, since the which time, the same is greatly ruinated, and is now diuided into many small tenementes: the Hall and principall rooms are an house to make Suger loaues, &c.

Next adioyning is the parrish church of S. Mary de Monte Alto, or Mounthaunt, this is a very small church, and at the first builded to be a Chapple for the said house of the Mount-haunts, and for Tenementes thereunto belonging. The Bishop of Hereforde is Patron thereof. Monumentes in this church of John Glocester Alderman, 1345, who gaue Salt wharfe for two Chaunteries there, John Skip Bishoppe of Hereford 1539. sate xii. yeares, died at London in time of Parliament, and was buried in this church. There was sometime a fayre house in the saide parrish of Saint Mary Mounthaunt, belonging to Roberte Belkenape, one of the Kinges Iustices, but the saide Belkenape being banished this Realme, King Richarde the second, in the twelfth of his raigne, gaue it to William Wickham Bishoppe of Winchester.

Robert Belkenape his house giuen to W. Wickham.

On the east side of this olde Fishstreete hill, is one greate House, now letten out for rent, which house sometime was one of the Halles, pertayning to the Company of Fishmongers, at such time as they had sixe Hallmotes or meeting places: namely, twaine in Bridgestreete, or new Fish streete, twaine in old Fish street, whereof this was one, and twain in Stockfishmonger row or Thames street, as appeareth by a Record, Pattents. the 22. of Richarde the second.

Fishmonger Hallmotes, six in number.

Next westward, is one other lane called Lambard hill, the East side whereof is wholly of this Warde, and but halfe the west side, to wit, from the north end of the blacke Smithes hall.

Blacksmithes hall.

Then in Thames street of this ward, and on the north side ouer against the Queens Hith, is the parrish church of saint Michaell, a conuenient Church, but all the Monumentes therein are defaced.

Parish church of S. Michaell at Queene Hith.

I finde that Stephen Spilman, Gentleman, of that Family in Norfolke, sometime Mercer, Chamberlaine of London, then one of the Shiriffes and Alderman, in the yeare 1404. deceasing without issue, gaue his landes to his Family the Spilmans, and his goodes to the making or repaying of bridges and other like godly vses: And amongst others in this church he founded a chauntry, and was buried in the Quire.

Also Richard Marlowe, Ironmonger, Mayor 1409. gaue twenty pound to the poore of that Warde, and ten markes to the church.

Richard Gray Ironmonger, one of the shiriffes, one thousand fue hundred and fiteene, gaue forty pound to that church, and was buried there. At the West end of that church goeth vp a lane, called Pyellane. On the same North side, at the South end of Saint Mary Mounthaunt Lane, is the Parrish

Church of Saint Mary Summerset, ouer against the Broken Wharfe: it is a proper church, but the monumentes are all defaced. I thinke the same to bee of olde time called Summers Hith, of some mans name that was owner of the grounde neare adioyning, as Edreds Hithe was so called of Edred owner thereof, and sithence called Queene Hith, as pertayning to the Queene, &c.

of S. Peter
Powles wharfe.

Then is a small Parrish church of Saint Peter, called parua or little, neare vnto Powles wharfe: In this Church no Monumentes doe remaine. At the West ende thereof, is a Lane called Saint Peters Hill, but two houses vp that Lane on the east side is of this warde, and the rest is of Castle Baynarde warde.

lane.

On the South side of Thames streete, beginning againe in the East, among the Cookes: The first in this warde, is the signe of Dauid the king: then is Townes end lane, turning downe to the Thames. Then is Queene Hith, a large receptacle for shippes, lighters, barges and such other vessels.

Edreds hith
Hith.
Lib. Trinitate.

Touching the Antiquitie and vse of this gate and Hith, first I finde the same belonged to one named Edred, and was then called Edreds Hith, which since falling to the handes of King Stephen, it was by his Charter confirmed to William De Ypre: the Farme thereof in Fee and in Heritage, William De Ypre gaue it vnto the Prior and Couent of the Holy Trinitie within Aldegate, as appeareth by this Charter: To Theobalde by the grace of God Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of England, and Legate Apostolike, to the Bishoppe of London, and to all faithfull people, Clarkes and Laye men, William de Ypre sendeth greeting.

Know ye me to haue giuen and graunted to God, and to the Church of the Holy Trinitie of London, to the Prior and canons there seruing God in perpetuall almes, Edreds Hith with the appurtenances, with such deuotion, that they shall send euery yeare twentie pound vnto the maintenance of the Hospital of S. Katherens, which hospitall they haue in their hands, & 100. skillinges to the monkes of Bermondsey, & 60. skillinges to the brethren of the hospitall of saint Giles, and that which remayneth, the said Prior and Canons shall enioy to themselves: Witnesses Richard de Lulcie, Raph Picot, &c.

This Edreds Hithe after the aforesaid grantes, came againe to the Kinges handes, by what meanes I haue not read, but Record. it pertayned vnto the Queene, and therefore was called Ripa reginae, the Queenes banke or Queens Hith, and great profite therof was made to her vse, as may appeare by this which followeth.

King Henry the third, in the ninth of his raigne, commaunded the Constable of the Tower of London to arrest the shippes of the Cinque portes on the Riuer of Thames, and to compell them to bring their corne to no other place but to the Queens Hith onely. In the eleuenth of his raigne, hee charged the sayde Constable to destraine all fish offered to be sold in any place of this cittie, but at the Queene Hith. Moreouer in the twentie eight of the said kings raign, an inquisition was made before William of Yorke, Prouost of Beuerley, Henry of Bath, and Hierome of Caxton, Iustices Itenerantes, sitting in the Tower of London, touching the customs of Queen Hith, obserued in the year last before the wars betweene the king and his father, and the Barons of England, and of olde customes of other times, & what customes had beene changed, at what time the taxe and payment of al things comming thether, and between woorepath, and Anede Hith, were found and ceased, according to the olde order, as well corne and fish as of other thinges: all which customes were as well to be obserued in the parte of Downegate, as in Queen Hith, for the Kinges vse. When also it was found, that the corne arriuing between the gate of the Guild hall of the Merchantes of Colleyne, and the soke of the Archbishop of Canterbury (for he had a house neare vnto the Blacke Fryers) was not to be measured by any other quarter, then by that of the Queenes soke.

Ships of the ports arrested, and forced to bring their corne to Queene Hith.

Liberty of the Queens Hith from the Still-yard to the Black Fryers.

Soke is court.

After this, the Baliffes of the said Hith complayned, that since the said Recognition, foureteene forraine ships laden with Fishe, arriued at Belinges gate, which shippes should haue arriued at the saide Hith: And therefore it was ordered, that if any forraine shippe laden with fish, should in forme aforesaid arriue else where then at this Hith, it should bee at the Kinges pleasure to amerce them at fortie shillings. Notwithstanding, the shippes of the | Citizens of London were at libertie to arriue where the owners would appoynt them.

After this, the saide Henrie the third confirmed the graunt of Richard Earle of Cornwell, for the Farme of the Queene Hithe, vnto Iohn Gisors then Maior, and to the Comminaltie of London, and their successors for euer, as by this his Charter appeareth :

Henry by the grace of God, king of England, Lord of Ireland, Duke of Guien, and Earle of Aniou, to all Archbishops, &c. Bee it knowne, that we haue seene the couenant betweene our brother Richard Earle of Cornwell, of the one partie, and the Maior and Comminaltie of London on the other partie, which was in this sort. In the 30. yeare of Henry the sonne of king Iohn, vpon the feast of the translation of S. Edward at Westminster, this couenant was made betweene the honorable lord Richard Earle of Cornwel, and Iohn Gisors then Maior of London, and the Commons thereof, concerning certaine exactions and demands pertaining to the Queen Hithe of London. The said Earle granted for himselfe and his heires, that the said Maior, and all Maiors insuing, and all the Commons of the citie, should haue and holde the Queene Hithe, with all the liberties, customes, and other appurtenances, repaying yearly to the said Earle, his heires and assignes, 50. li. at Clarken well, at two seuerall tearmes: to wit, the Sunday after Easter 25. pound, and at Michaelmas 25. pound. And for more suretie hereof, the said Earle hath set thereunto his seale, and left it with the Maior, and the Maior and Comminaltie haue set to their seale, and left it with the Earle. Wherefore we confirme and establish the saide couenant for vs, and for our heyres, Witnesses, Raph Fitz Nichol, Richard Gray, Iohn and Wil. Brithem, Paulin Painter, Raph Wancia, Iohn Cumband, and other: at Windsor the 26. of Februarie, the 31. of our reigne.

The charge of this Queene Hithe was then committed to the Shiriffes, and so hath continued euer since, the profits whereof are sore diminished so that (as writeth Robert Fabian) it was worth in his time little aboue 20. markes, or 15. pound one yeare with an other. Now for customs of this Queene Hithe, in. the year 1302. the 30. of Edward the first, it was found by the oath of diuerse men, that Bakers, Brewers, and others buying their corne | at Queene Hithe, should pay for Page 36a measuring, portage, and carriage for euery quarter of corne Customs of Queen Hithe. whatsoeuer, from thence to west Cheap, to Saint Anthones Church, to Horsheue Bridge, and to Woolsey streete in the Parish of Alhallowes the lesse, and such like distances, one ob. q. : to Fleete bridge, to Newgate, Cripplegate, to Bercheouers lane, to Eastcheape and Billingsgate, one pennie. Also that the measurer (or the meater) ought to haue 8. chiefe A corne meater, Master Porters, euery master to haue three porters vnder 8. M. porters, him, and euery one of them to finde one horse, and seuen and 24. porters vnder them, at queen hithe. sakes, and he that so did not, to loose his office. This Hithe was then so frequented with vessels, bringing thither corne (besides fish, salt, fewel, and other marchandizes) that all these men, to wit, the meater, and porters, 37. in number, for all their charge of horses and sakes, and small stipend, liued well of their labors: but now the Bakers of London and other Citizens trauell into the Countries, and buy their corne of the Farmers, after the Farmers price.

King Edward the second in the first of his raigne, gaue to Liber Guild. Margaret, wife to Peter de Gauestone, fortie three pound, twelue shillings nine pence ob. q. out of the rent of London, to be receiued of the Queenes Hithe. Certaine Impositions were set vpon ships and other vessels comming thither, as vpon corne, salt, and other things, toward the charge of cleansing Roomeland there, the 41. of Edward the 3. Romeland at Queen Hithe.

The third of Edward the fourth, the Market at Queene Hithe being hindred by the slackenesse of drawing vp London bridge, it was ordained, that all maner of Vesselles, Shippes, or boats, great or small, resorting to the Citie with victuall, should bee solde by retaile, and that if there came but one vessell at a time, were it salt, Wheate, Rie, or other Queene Hithe to be more frequented of ships & boats then Billingsgate. Corne from beyond the Seas, or other graines, Garlick, Onions, Hearings, Sprattes, Eles, Whiting, Place, Cods, Mackarell, &c. then that one vessell should come to Queene Hithe, and there to make sale: but if two vessels come, the one should come to Queene Hithe, the other to Billingsgate: if three, two of them should come to Queene Hithe, the third to Belingsgate, &c. alwaies the more to Queene Hithe: if the vessel being great, comming with salt from the Bay, and could not come to these keyes, then the same to be conueyed by lighters, as before is ment.]

One large house for stowage of corne craned out of Lighters and Barges, is there lately builded: sir John Lion, Grocer, Maior 1554. by his testament gaue an hundred pounce to-wardes it, but since increased and made larger at the charges of the citie, in the yeare 1565.

Corne Mill vpon barges or lighters on the Thames.

Against this Queenes Hithe, on the riuer Thames of late yeres was placed a corne Mill, vpon, or betwixt two barges or lighters, and there ground corne, as water Milles in other places, to the wonder of many that had not seene the like, but this lasted not long without decay, such as caused the same Barges and Mill to bee remooued, taken asunder, and soone forgotten. I reade of the like to haue beene in former time, as thus: In the yeare, 1525. the sixteene of Henrie the eight, Sir William Bayly being Maior, John Cooke of Gloucester, Mercer, gaue to the Maior and Comminaltie of London and theyrs<sup>1</sup> for euer, one great Barge, in the which two corne Milles were made and placed, which Barge and Milles were set in, and vpon the streame of the Riuer Thames, within the iurisdiction and libertie of said citie of London.

And also he gaue to the Cittie all such Tymber, Bourdes, Stones, Iron, &c. prouided for making, mending, and repayring of the sayde Barge, and Milles, in rewarde whereof, the Maior gaue him fiftie pounce presently, and fiftie pounce yearly during his life, and if the sayde Cooke deceased before Iohan his wife, then shee to haue fortie Markes the yeare during her life.

Timber hithe.

Next adioyning to this Queene Hithe, on the West side thereof, is Salt Wharffe, named of Salt taken vp, measured and sold there. The next is Stew lane, of a stewe or hotte house there kept. After that is Timber Hithe, or Timber street, so called of Timber or Boordes there taken vp and wharffed: it is in the parrish of saint Marie Somershithe, as I reade in the fiftie six of Henrie the third, and in the ninth of Edward the second. Then is Brookes wharfe & broken wharfe, a watergate or key, so called of beeing broken and fallen downe into the Thames. By this broken Wharffe, Broken wharff. remayneth one large olde building of stone, with Arched Gates, which Messuage as I finde in the raigne of Henry | the Page 364 third the 43. yeare, pertaining vnto Hugh de Bygot, and in the Bygots house by broken wharfe. xi. of Edward the third, to Thomas Brothertun the kings brother, Earle of Norffolke, Marshall of England. In the xi. of Henry the sixt. to Iohn Mowbray Duke of Norffolke, &c.

Within the gate of this house, (now belonging to the citie of London) is lately, to wit, in the yeare, 1594. and 1595. builded one large house of great height, called an engine, An engine for enforcing of Thames water. made by Beuis Bulmar Gentleman, for the conueying and forcing of Thames water to serue in the middle and West parts of the Citie. The auncient great hall of this messuage is yet standing, and partayning to a great Brew-house for Beere. West from this is Trigge lane, going downe to the Trigge lane. Thames. Next is called Bosse lane, of a Bosse of water, like Bosse lane. vnto that of Belingsgate, there placed by the executors of Richard Wittington. Then is one great messuage sometime belonging to the Abbots of Chartsey in Surrey, and was their Inne, wherein they were lodged when they repayred to the Citie: it is now called Sandie house, by what reason I haue not heard. I thinke the Lord Sands haue beene lodged there. And this is an end of this Queene Hithe ward: which hath an Alderman, and his Deputie, common Counsell sixe, Constables nine, Scauengers eight, Wardmote Inquest thirteene, and a Beedle. It is taxed to the fiteene in London twentie pound, and in the Exchequer at xix. pound xvi.s. two pence.

Castle Baynard warde

THE next is Castle Bainard Warde, so named of an olde Castle Baynard warde. Castle there: this Ward beginneth in the East, on the Thames side, at an house called Huntington house, and runneth West by Powles Wharfe, by Baynards Castell, Puddle Wharffe, and by the South side of Blacke Friers. Then turning by the East Wall of the sayde Friers, to the Southwest ende of Creede lane. Then on the North side of Thames streete, ouer agaynst Huntington house, by Saint Peters Church and lane, called Peter | hill, along till ouer agaynst Puddle Wharffe: Page 365 and then North vp by the great Wardrobe, to the West ende of Carter lane. Then vp Creede lane, Aue Mary lane, and a peece of Pater Noster Rowe, to the signe of the Golden Lion, and backe againe vp Warwicke lane, all the East side thereof, to the signe of the Crowne by Newgate Market : and this is the farthest North part of this Warde.

Then out of Thames streete bee lanes ascending North to Knightriders street : the first is Peter hill lane, all of that warde (two houses excepted, adioyning to Saint Peters Church.) The next is Powles Wharffe hill, which thwarting Knightriders streete, and Carter lane, goeth vp to the South chaine of Powles churchyarde.

Adle streete.

Then is Adlestreete, ouer against the West part of Baynards Castell, going vp by the West end of Knightriders streete, and to Carter lane. Thus much for lanes out of Thames streete. The one halfe of the West side of Lambard hill lane being of this Warde, at the Northwest ende thereof, on the South side, and at the West end of Saint Mary Magdalens church on the North side beginneth Knightriders streete to be of this Warde, and runneth West on both sides to the parish church of Saint Andrew by the Wardrope.

Do little lane.

Then at the said East end of saint Mary Magdalens Church goeth vp the old Exchange, al the west side wherof vp to the south east gate of Powles churchyard, and by S. Austens church, is of this ward. About the midst of this olde Exchange, on the west side thereof is Carter lane, which runeth west to the east entry of the blacke Friers, and the south ende of Creed lane, out of the which Carter lane descendeth a lane called Do little lane, and commeth into Knightriders streete, by the Bores head Tauerne : and more West is Sermon lane, by an Inne called the Powle head. Then out of Carter lane, on the North side thereof, the south Chaine of Powles Churchyard, and the church yard it selfe on that south side of Powles church, and the church of saint Gregorie, the Bishoppes Palace, and the Deanes lodging, be all of this Warde : and such be the boundes thereof. The Ornaments in this Warde, be parish churches 4. Of olde time a castle : Diuers Noblemens | houses. Halles of Companies twaine. And such others, as shall be shewed.

In Thames street, at the south east end, is an ancient messuage, of old time called Bewmounts Inne, as belonging to that family of Noblemen of this realme, in the 4. of Edward <sup>Bewmounts Inne.</sup> the 3. Edward the 4. in the 5. of his raigne gaue it to W. Hastings, Lord Chamberlaine, Maister of his Mints. It is now called Huntington House, as belonging to the Earles of Huntington. Next is Pauls wharfe, a large landing place, <sup>Pauls wharfe.</sup> with a common stayre vpon the Riuer of Thames, at the end of a streete called powles wharfe hill, which runneth downe from Powles chaine. Next is a great Messuage called Scrupes Inne, <sup>Scrupes Inne.</sup> sometime belonging to the Scrupes, in the 31. of Henry the 6.

Then is one other great Messuage sometime belonging to the Abbey of Fiscampe, beyond the sea, and by reason of the wars, it comming to the hands of K. Edward the 3. the same was giuen to sir Simon Burley, knight of the Garter, and therefore called Burley house in Thames streete, betweene <sup>Burley house.</sup> Baynards Castle and paules wharfe.

Then haue you Baynards Castle, whereof this whole ward <sup>Baynards Castle.</sup> taketh the name. This Castle banketh on the Riuer Thames, and was called Baynards Castle, of Baynard, a Nobleman that came in with W. the Conquerour, of the which castle, and of Baynard himselfe, I haue spoken in another place.

There was also another tower by Baynards Castle, builded by King Edward the 2. Edward the 3. in the 2. of his raigne, gaue it to William de Ros<sup>1</sup> of Hamelake, in the County of Yorke, & his heyres, for one Rose yearely, to be payd for all seruice: the same place (as seemeth to me) was since called Legates Inne, in the 7. of Edward the fourth, where bee now <sup>Legates Inne.</sup> diuers woodwharfes in place.

Then is there a great Brewhouse, and Puddle wharfe, a <sup>Puddle Wharfe.</sup> water gate into the Thames, where horses vse to be watered, & therfore being filed with their trampeling, and made puddle, like as also of one Puddle dwelling there: it is called Puddle Wharfe. Then is there a lane betweene the blacke Fryers and the Thames, called in the 26. of Edward the third Castle lane. |

In this lane also is one great Messuage, of old time belong- <sup>Page 367</sup> ing to the Priory of Okeborne<sup>2</sup> in Wilshire, and was the Priors lodging when he repayred to London. This Prior being of the French order, was suppressed by H. the 5. and with other lands and Tenements pertaining to the said Priory, was by H. the 6. giuen to his Colledge in Cambridge, called now the kings Colledge. About this Castle lane, was sometime a Mill, or Mills, belonging to the Templars of the new Temple, as appeareth of record: for King Iohn in the first yeare of his raigne, granted a place in the Fleete, neare vnto Baynards Castle, to make a mill, and the whole course of water of the Fleete, to serue the said mill.

I reade also that in the yeare 1274. the 2. of E. the 1. Ri. Raison and Atheline his wife did giue to Nicho. de Musely Clarke, 10 shillings of yearely free and quiet rent, out of all his tenements, with the houses thereupon built, and their appurtenances, which they had of the demise of the M. and brethren of knights Templars in England next to their mill of Fleet, ouer against the houses of Laurence de Brooke, in the parish of S. Andrew next to Baynards Castle: which tenements lyeth betweene the way, leading towards the said Mil on the west part. Also in the rights belonging to Robert Fitzwater & to his heyres, in the Citie of London, in the time of peace, it was declared in the yeare 1303. that the sayde Robert Castillon of London, and Banner bearer, had a soke (or warde) in the Citie, that was by the wall of S. Paule, as men go downe the streete before the Brewhouse of S. Paule vnto the Thames, and so to the side of the Mill, which is in the water that commeth downe from Fleete Bridge, and goeth by London wals, betwixt the Fryers preachers Church, and Ludgate, and so that warde turned backe by the house of the said Fryers, vnto the sayde common wall of the sayd Chanonry of S. Paule: that is all of the parish of S. Andrew, which is in the gift of his auncestors by seniority, as more I haue shewed in the Castles.

Now here is to be noted, that the wall of London at that time went straight south from Ludgate, downe to the Riuer of Thames, but for building of the Blacke Fryers Church, the said wall in that place was by commaundement taken downe, and a | new wall made, straight West from Ludgate to Fleete-bridge, and then by the water of Fleete, to the Riuer of Thames &c.

In the yeare 1307. the 35. of Edward the first, in a Parliament at Carlile, Henry Lacie Earle of Lincolne complained of noyances done to the water of the Fleete: whereupon it was graunted, that the said Mill should be remoued and destroyed.

Mill by Baynards castle destroyed.

This Warde ascendeth vp by the East wall of the blacke-Fryers, to the South West end of Creede Lane, where it endeth on that side.

- Then to beginne againe on the North side of Thames street ouer against Huntington house by Saint Peters Church and lane called Peter hill, and so to S. Benet Hude (or Hithe) ouer against Powles Wharffe, a proper parish Church, which hath the Monuments of Sir William Cheiny knight, and Margaret his wife, 1442. buried there. Doctor Caldwell Phisition. Sir Gilbert Dethik, knight, Alias Gartar king at Armes. West from this church, by the south end of Adlestreete, almost against Pudle Wharfe, there is one ancient building of stone and timber, builded by the Lords of Barkley, and therefore called Barklies Inne. This house is now all in ruine, and letten out in seuerall Tenements, yet the Armes of the Lord Barkley remaine in the stone worke of an Arched gate, and is betweene a Cheueron crosses, 10. three, three, and foure.

Barklies Inne.

Richard Beauchampe Earle of Warwicke, was lodged in this house, then called Barklies Inne, in the parish of Saint Andrew, in the raigne of Henry the sixt. Then turning vp towards the North, is the parish church of S. Andrew in the wardrobe, a proper church, but few Monuments hath it. John Parni founded a chauntry there. Then is the kings greate Wardrobe, Sir Iohn Beauchampe, knight of the Garter, Constable of Douer, Warden of the Sinke Portes (sonne to Guido de Beauchampe, Earle of Warwicke) builded this house, was lodged there, deceased in the yeare 1359. and was buried on the South side of the middle Ile of Powles Church. His Executors sold the house to King Edward the third, vnto whome | the Parson of S. Andrewes complaying that the said Beuchamp had pulled downe diuers houses, in their place to build the same house, where through he was hindered of his accustomed tithes, paid by the tenants of old time, granted him 40. s. by yeare out of that house for euer. King R. the 3. was lodged there in the second of his raigne.

In this house of late yeres, is lodged sir Iohn Fortescue, knight, Maister of the Wardrobe, Chancellor and vnder Treasurer of the Exchequer, and one of her Maiesties most honourable priuy Councell. The secret letters and writings touching the estate of the Realme, were wont to be enroled in the kings Wardrobe, and not in the Chauncery, as appeareth by the records. *Claus. 18. E. 4. 1. Memb. 13. Claus. 33. E. 1. Memb. 3. Et liberat. 1. E. 2. Touching lanes ascending out of Thames streete, to Knightriders streete, the first is, Peters hill, wherein I find no matter of note, more then certaine Almes houses, lately founded on the west side thereof, by David Smith Imbroderer, for 6. poore widowes, whereof each to haue 20. s. by the yeare.

On the East side of this lane standeth a large house, of auncient building, sometime belonging to the Abbot of S. Mary in Yorke, and was his abiding house when he came to London. Tho. Randolfe Esquier hath lately augmented and repaired it.

At the vpper end of this lane, towards the north, the corner houses there be called Peters Key, but the reason thereof I haue not heard. Then is Powles wharfe hill, on the East side whereof is Woodmongers Hall. And next adioyning is Darby house sometime belonging to the Stanleys, for Thomas Stanley first Earle of Darby of that name, who married the Lady Margaret Countesse of Richmond, mother to Henry the seuenth, in his time builded it.

Queene Mary gaue it to Gilbert Dethike, then Garter principall King of armes of englishmen, Thomas Hawley Clarentious king of armes of the south partes, William Haruy Alias Norey king of armes of the north partes, & the other Heraults and Pursuantes of armes and to their successors, all the same Capital messuage or house called Darby house with the appurtenances, scituate in the parish of saint Benet, and saint Peter, then being in the tenure of sir Richard Sackuile knight, and lately parcell of the landes of Edward Earle of Darbie, &c. To the ende that the sayde king of Armes, Heraultes and Purseuauntes of Armes, and their successors, might at their liking dwell together and at meete times to congregate, speake, conferre, and agree among themselves, for the good gouernment of their facultie, and their recordes might be more safely kept, &c. Dated the 18. of Iuly, 1555 Philip and Mary the first and third yeare.

Then higher vppe neare the south chaine of Powles Church-yearde, is the Powle head Tauerne, which house with the appurtenances was of olde time called Powles Brewhouse, for that the same was so imployed, but being since left off, and letten out.

Powles Brewhouse, or Powle head Tauern.

On the west side of this streete, is one other great house builded of stone, which belongeth to Powles church, and was sometime letten to the Blunts Lordes Mountioy, but of latter time to a colledge in Cambridge, and from them to the Doctors of the Ciuill law and Arches, who keepe a Commons there, and many of them being there lodged, it is called the Doctors Commons. Aboue this on the same side, was one other great building ouer against Powles Brewhouse, and this was called Powles Bakehouse, and was imployed in baking of bread for the Church of Powles.

In Addle streete or Lane I find no monuments.

Adlestreet.

In Lambart hill lane on the west side thereof, is the Black Smithes hall, and adioyning to the North side thereof, haue ye one plot of ground, inclosed with a bricke wall for a church-yearde, or burying plot, for the dead of S. Mary Magdalens by old Fishstreet, which was giuen to that vse by John Iwarby, an Officer in the receipt of the Exchequer, in the 26. of King Henry the sixt, as appeareth by Patent. John Iwarby, &c. gaue a peece of land lying voyde in the Parrish of Saint Mary Magdalen, nigh to olde Fishstreete, betweene the Tenement of John Phi(l)pot on the south, and the Tenement of Bartholomewe Burwash on the west, and the Tenement pertayning to the Couent of the Holy Well on the North, and the way vpon Lambardes Hill on the East, for a Church yearde to the Parson and Church Wardens, &c.

Parish church of S. Mary Magdalen. Over against the North west ende of this Lambard Hill Lane in Knightriders streete, is the Parrish Church of Saint Mary Magdalen, a small Church, hauing but few monuments, Richard Woodroffe Marchant Taylor, 1519. Barnard Randolph Esquire, 1583.

Conduit of Thames water. On the West side of this Church, by the Porch thereof, is placed a Conduit or Cesterne of Lead, Castelated with stone, for receite of Thames water, conueyed at the charges of the before named Barnard Randolph Esquier. By the East ende of Saint Mary Magdalens Church, runneth vppe the old Exchange lane, by the west end of Carter lane, to the south-east gate or chain of Powles Church yeard as is before shewed. And in this parte was the Exchange kept, and Bullion was receyued for Coynage, as is noted in Faringdon Warde within.

Do little lane. In this Parrish Church of S. Mary Magdalen, out of Knightriders street vp to Carter lane, be two small lanes, the one of them called Do Little lane, as a place not inhabited by Artificers, or open shop keepers, but seruing for a neare passage from Knightriders street, to Carter lane.

Sheremonyars lane. The other corruptly called Sermon lane, for Sheremoniers lane: for I find it by that name recorded in the 14. of E. the 1. and in that lane, a place to be called the Blacke loft (of melting siluer) with foure shops adioyning. It may therefore bee well supposed that lane to take name of Sheremonyars, such as cut and rounded the plates to bee coyned or stamped into Estarling pence, for the place of coyning was the olde Exchange, neare vnto the sayde Sheremoniars lane. Also I find that in the 13. of R. the 2. William de la Pole had an house there.

Colledge of Phisitions. Lecture in Chirurgery to be read. In Knightriders streete, is the Colledge of Phisitions, wherin was founded in the yeare 1582. a publike Lecture in Surgery, to be read twice euery weeke, &c. as is shewed else where.

Page 372 West gates of Powles church. In the South Churchyard of Powles, is the south side and west end of the saide Church: In the which west end, bee three stately gates or entries, curiously wrought of stone, namely, the middle gate, in the midst wherof is placed a massie pillar of brasse, whereunto the leaues of the said great gate are closed and fastened with lockes, boltes, and barres of yron: All which notwithstanding, on the 24. of December, in the yeare 1565. by a tempest of wind then rising from the west, these gates were blowne open, the barres, boltes and lockes broken in sunder, or greatly bended. Also on the 5. of January, in the yeare 1589. by a like Tempest of wind, then in the South west, the lesser west gate of the saide church next to the Bishoppes pallace was broken, both bolts, bars, and lockes, so that the same was blowen ouer.

Gates of Pauls church blown open.

At eyther corner of this west end, is also of auncient building a strong Tower of stone, made for Bell Towers, the one of them to wit, next to the pallace, is at this present to the vse of the same pallace, the other towards the south is called the Lowlardes Tower, and hath beene vsed as the Bishoppes prison, for such as were detected for opinions in Religion, contrary to the faith of the church.

For Lowlards Tower reade M. Foxe.

The last prisoner which I haue knowne committed thereto, was in the yeare 1573. one Peter Burchet<sup>1</sup> Gentleman of the middle Temple, for hauing desperately wounded, and minding to haue murdered a seruiceable Gentleman named Iohn Hawkins Esquire, in the high streete neare vnto the Strand, who being taken and examined, was found to hold certaine opinions erronious, and therefore committed thether, and conuicted, but in the end by perswasion, he promised to abiure his heresies: and was by commaundement of the Councell, remoued from thence to the Tower of London, &c. where he committed as in my Annales I haue expressed.

Peter Burchet.

Adioyning to this Lowlardes Tower, is the parrish Church of S. Gregory, appointed to the petty Canons of Powles. Monumentes of note I know none there.

Parish church of S. Gregory

The rest of that south side of S. Paules Church, with the chapter House, (a beautifull peece of worke, builded about the raigne of Edwarde the third) is now defaced by meanes of Licenses | graunted to Cutlers, Budget makers, and other, first to builde low sheddes, but now high Houses, which doe hide that beautifull side of the Church, saue onely the toppe and south Gate.

lace. On the North west side of this Church yeard, is the Bishops pallace, a large thing for receipt, wherein diuers kinges haue beene lodged, and great housholde hath beene kept, as appeareth by the great Hall, which of late years since the rebatement of Bishops liuinges, hath not beene furnished with household meynie and Guestes, as was meant by the builders thereof, and was of olde time vsed.

The Deanes lodging on the other side, directly against the pallace, is a fayre olde House, and also diuers large houses are on the same side builded, which yet remayne, and of olde time were the Lodgings of Prebendaries and Residenciaries, which kepte great Housholdes, and liberall Hospitality, but now eyther decayed, or otherwise conuerted.

Stacioners Then is the Stacioners Hall on the same side, lately builded for them, in place of Peter Colledge, where in the yeare, one thousande fve hundred fortie and nine, the fourth of January, sixe men were slaine by the fall of earth vpon them, digging for a Well. And let this bee an end of Baynardes Castle Warde, which hath an Alderman, his Deputie, Common Councill, nine, Constables ten, Scauingers seauen, Wardmote Inquest foureteene and a Beadle. And to the Fifteene is taxed at twelue pound, in the Exchequer eleuen pound, thirteene shillings. |

The Warde of Faringdon

Extra, or without

out. THE farthest West Ward of this Cittie, being the 25. Warde of London, but without the Walles, is called Faringdon without, and was of old time part of the other Faringdon within, vntill the 17. of Richard the second, that it was diuided and made twaine by the names of Faringdon infra, and Faringdon extra, as is afore shewed.

The boundes of which ward without Newgate and Ludgate are these. First on the east part thereof, is the whole precinct of the late priorie of saint Bartholomew, and a part of Long lane on the north, towards Aldersgate streete and Ducke lane, with the hospitall of saint Bartholomew on the West, and all Smithfelde to the Barres in saint John street. Then, out of Smithfield, Chicken lane toward Turmile brooke, and ouer that brooke by a bridge of timber into the field, then backe againe by the Pens (or folds) in Smithfield, by Smithfield pond to Cow lane, which turneth toward Oldborne: and then Hosiar lane out of Smithfield, also toward Oldborne, till it meete with a part of Cow lane. Then Cocke lane out of Smithfield, ouer against Pye corner, then also is Giltspur streete, out of Smithfield to Newgate, then from Newgate west by S. Sepulchres church to Turnagain Lane: to Oldboorne Conduit, on Snor hill, to Oldboorne bridge, vp Oldboorne hill to the Barres on both sides. On the right hand or north side, at the bottome of Oldboorne hill, is Gold lane, Gold lane. sometime a filthy passage into the fields, now both sides builded with small tenementes. Then higher is Lither lane, Lither lane. turning also to the field, lately replenished with houses builded, and so to the Barre.

Now on the left hand or south side from Newgate, lieth Old Bayly. a street called the Old Bayly, or court of the Chamberlaine of this citty: this stretcheth downe by the wall of the Cittie vnto Ludgate: on the west side of which streete, breaketh out one other lane, called | saint Georges lane, till ye come Page 375 to the south end of Seacole lane: and then turning towardes Fleetstreete, it is called Fleete lane. The next out of the high street from Newgate turning down south, is called the little Bayly, and runneth downe to the East of saint Georges lane. Then is Seacole lane which turneth downe into Fleete lane: neare vnto this Seacole lane, in the turning towardes Oldboorn Conduit, is an other lane, called in record wind- Limeburners lane or Seacole lane. Windagain lane. againe Lane, it turneth downe to Turnemill Brooke, and from thence back againe, for there is no way ouer. Then beyond Old boorn bridge to Shooe lane, which runneth out Shooelane. of Oldboorne vnto the Conduit in Fleetestreet. Then also is Fewtars lane, which likewise stretcheth south into Fleet- Fewtars lane. streete by the east end of saint Dunstons church, and from this lane to the Bars be the bounds without Newgate.

Now without Ludgate, this warde runneth vp from the sayd gate to Temple barre, and hath on the right hand or north side the south end of the old Bayly, then downe Ludgate hill, to the Fleet lane ouer Fleete bridge, and by Shooe lane, and Fewters lane, and so to New streete (or Chancery lane) and vp that Lane to the house of the Rolles, which house is also of this ward, and on the other side to a lane ouer against the Roules, which entereth Ficquets field.

Shire lane.

Then hard by the Barre is one other lane called Shyre Lane, because it diuideth the Cittie from the Shire, and this turneth into Ficquets field.

From Ludgate againe on the left hand, or south side, to Fleetebridge, to bride lane, which runneth south by Bridewell, then to Water lane, which runneth down to the Thames.

Then by the White Fryers and by the Temple, euen to the Barre aforesaid, be the boundes of this Faringdon Warde without.

streete.

Touching ornamentes and antiquities in this warde, first betwixt the said Newgate, and the parrish church of S. Sepulchers is a way towards Smithfield, called Guilt spurre, or Knightriders streete, of the knightes and other riding that way into Smith field, replenished with buildings on both sides vp to Pie corner, a place so called of such a signe, sometimes a fayre Inne for receipte | of trauellers, but now diuided into tenementes, and ouer against the said Pie corner lyeth Cocke lane, which runneth downe to Oldbourne Conduit.

Beyond this Pie corner lyeth west Smithfield, compassed about with buildinges, as first on the south side, following the right hand, standeth the large hospitall of S. Bartilmew, founded by Rahere the first Prior of S. Bartilmewes thereto neare adioyning, in the yeare 1102.

The first maister or Proctor of the Hos-

Alfune, that had not long before builded the parrish church of S. Giles without Criplegate, became the first Hospitelar, or Proctor for the poore of this house, and went himselfe dayly to the Shambles and other markets, where hee begged the charity of deuout people for their reliefe, promising to the liberall giuers (and that by alledging testimonies of the holy scripture) rewarde at the handes of God. Henry the third granted to Katheren late wife to W. Hardell xx. foot of land in length & bredth in Smithfield next to the Chappell of the Hospitall of S. Bartilmew to builde her a recluse or ankorage, commaunding the Mayor & shiriffes of London, to assign the saide xx. foot to the sayd Katheren, carta 11 of H. the 3. The foundation of this hospital for the poor & diseased, their speciall sustentation, was confirmed by E. the third, the 26. of his raigne, it was gouerned by a Maister, and 8. brethren being priestes, for the church and 4. sisters, to see the poore serued. The Executors of R. Whittington sometime Mayor of London, of his goodes repayred this hospitall, about the yeare, 1423.

This Hospitall was valued at the suppression in the yeare 1539. the 31. of Henry the eight, to 35. pound sixe shillings seauen pence yearly. The church remaineth a parrish church to the tenantes dwelling in the precinct of the Hospitall, but in the yeare 1546. on the 13. of Ianuary, the Bishoppe of Rochester, preaching at Powles Crosse, declared the gift of the said king to the Cittizens for releuing of the poore, which containyd the Church of the Gray Fryers, the church of S. Bartilmew with the Hospitall, the Messuages, and appurtenances in Giltspurre, alias Knightriders streete, Breton streete, Petar Kay, in the parrish of saint Mary Magdalen, in olde Fishstreete, and in the parrish of S. Benet Huda, Lymehurst, or Limehost, in the parrish of Stebunheth, &c. Then also were orders deuised for reliefe of the poore, the inhabitantes were all called to their parish churches, where, by sir Richard Dobbes then maior, their seuerall Aldermen, or other graue Cittizens, they were by eloquent orations perswaded how great and how many commodities would ensue

vnto them and their Cittie, if the poore of diuers sorts which they named, were taken from out their streets, lanes and allyes, & were bestowed and prouided for in Hospitalles abroad, &c. therefore was euery man moued, liberally to graunt what they woulde impart, towards the preparing and furnishing of such Hospitals, & also what they would contribute weekly towards their maintenance for a time, which they said should not be past one yeare, or twaine, vntill they were better furnished of Endowment: to make short, euery man graunted liberally, according to his hability, bookes were drawne of the reliefe in euery Ward of the City, towards the new Hospitalles, and were deliuered by the Mayor to the Kinges Commissioners, on the 17. of February, and order was taken therein, so as the 26. of Iuly, in the yeare 1552. the repaying of the Gray Fryers house, for poore fatherlesse children, was taken in hand, and also in the latter end of the same moneth, began the repaying of this Hospitall of saint Bartilmew, and was of new endowed, and furnished at the charges of | the Cittizens.

On the east side of this hospitall, lieth Duke lane, which runneth out of Smithfield south, to the north ende of little Britaine streete. On the east side of this Duche lane, and also of Smithfield, lyeth the late dissolued priorie of S. Bartilmew founded also by Rahere, a pleasant witted Gentleman, and therefore in his time called the kinges Minstrell. About the yeare of Christ, 1102. he founded it in a part of the oft before named morish ground, which was theretofore a common lay stall of all filth, that was to be voyded out of the citie: he placed Canons there, himself became their first Prior, and so continued till his dying day, & was there buried in a fayre monument, of late renued by pryor Bolton.

Priory of Saint Bartilmew.

Amongst other memorable matters, touching this priorie, one is of an Archbishops Visitation, which Mathew Paris hath thus. Boniface (sayeth he) Archbishope of Canterbury, in his Visitation, came to this priorie, where being receiued with procession in the most solemne wise, hee saide that hee passed not vpon the honor, but came to visite them, to whome the Canons aunswered, that they hauing a learned Bishop, ought not in contempt of him to be visited by any other:

which aunswere so much offended the Archbishop, that hee forthwith fell on the Supprior, and smote him on the face, saying, indeed, indeede, dooth it become you English Traytors so to aunswere mee? Thus raging with oathes not to bee recited, hee rent in peeces the rich Cope of the supprior, and trode it vnder his feete, and thrust him against a pillar of the Chauncell with such violence, that hee had almost killed him: but the Canons seeing their supprior thus almost slayne, came and plucked off the Archbishoppe with such force that they ouerthrew him backwardes, whereby they might see that hee was armed and prepared to fight: the Archbishoppes men seeing theyr maister downe, being all strangers and their maisters countrimen born at Prouence, fell vpon the Canons, beat them, tare them, and trod them vnder feete, at length the Canons getting away as well as they could, ran bloody and myry, rent and torne, to the Bishoppe of London to complaine, who bad them goe to the king at Westminster, and tell him thereof, wherevpon foure of them went thether, the rest were not able, they were so sore hurt, but | when they came to Westminster, the king would neither heare nor see them, so they returned without redresse. In the meane season the whole Citie was in an vprore, and ready to haue rung the common bell, and to haue hewed the Archbishop into small peeces, who was secretly crept to Lambhith, where they sought him, and not knowing him by sight, sayd to themselues, where is this Ruffian, that cruell smiter, hee is no winner of soules, but an exactor of money, whome neyther God, nor any lawfull or free election, did bring to this promotion, but the king did vnlawfully intrude him, being vtterly vnlearned, a stranger borne, and hauing a wife, &c. But the Archbishop conueyed himselfe ouer, and went to the king with a great complaint against the Canons, whereas himselfe was guiltie. This priorie of Saint Bartholomew was again new builded, in the yeare 1410.

Bolton last
Bartlemew a great builder
Canonberie.

Bolton was the last prior of this house, a great builder there: for he repayed the priorie church with the parrish Church adioyning, the offices and lodgings to the said priorie belonging, & neare adioyning: he builded of new the Mannor of Canonberie at Islington, which belonged to the Canons of this house, and is situate in a lowe ground, somewhat North from the parrish church there, but hee buylded no house at Harrow on the hill, as Edwarde Hall hath written, following a fable then on foote. The people (sayeth hee) being feared by Prognostications, which declared that in the yeare of Christ 1524. there should be such Eclipses in watrie signes, and such coniunctions, that by waters and flouds many people shoulde perish, people victualed themselues, and went to high groundes for feare of drowning, and especially one Bolton, which was prior of Saint Bartholomewes in Smithfield, builded him a house vppon Harrow on the hill, onely for feare of this floud, thither he went and made prouision of all things necessarie within him for the space of two Moneths, &c. but this was not so indeed, as I haue beene credibly informed: true it is that this Bolton was also parson of Harrow, and therefore bestowed some small reparations on the parsonage house, and builded nothing there more then a Douehouse, to serue him when he had forgone his priorie.

To this priorie king Henrie the second granted the priuiledge | of fayre to bee kept yearely at Bartholomew tide for three dayes, to wit, the Eue, the day, and next morrow, to the which the Clothiers of all England, and Drapers of London repayred, and had their Boothes and standings within the Churchyard of this priorie closed in with Walles and Gates locked euery night, and watched for safetie of mens goodes and wares, a Court of pie-powders was dayly during the Fayre holden for debts and contracts. But now notwithstanding all proclamations of the prince, and also the act of parliament, in place of Boothes within this Churchyarde (onely letten out in the Fayre time, and closed vp all the yeare after) bee many large houses builded, and the North Wall towards Long lane taken downe, a number of Tenements are there erected, for such as will giue greate rents.

Monuments of the deade in this priorie are these, of Rahere the first founder, Roger Walden Bishoppe of London, 1406. John Warton Gentleman, and Elizabeth his wife, daughter to William Scot Esquire, Iohn Louth Gentleman, Robert Shikeld Gentleman, Sir — Bacon knight, Iohn Ludlow, and Alice his wife, *W. Heraulde at Armes, Thomas Torald, Iohn Royston, Iohn Watforde, Iohn Carleton, Robert, sonne to Sir Robert Wil-lowby, Gilbert Halstocke, Elanor wife to Sir Hugh Fenne, mother to Margaret Lady Burgauenie, William Essex Esquire, Richarde Vancke Baron of the Exchequer, and Margaret his wife, daughter to William de la Riuar, Iohn Winderhall, Iohn Duram Esquire, and Elisabeth his wife, Iohn Malwaine, Alice wife to Balstred daughter to Kniffe, William Scarlet Esquire, Iohn Golding, Hugh Waltar Gentleman, and the late Sir Waltar Mildmay knight, Chancellor of the Exchequer, &c.

This priorie at the late surrender, the 30. of Henrie the eight, was valued at 653. li. 15. s. by yeare.

This church hauing in the bell Tower sixe Belles in a tune, those bels were sold to the parish of Saint Sepulchres, and then the Church being pulled downe to the Quire, the Quire was by the kings order annexed for the enlarging of the olde parish church | thereto adioyning, and so was vsed till the raigne of Queene Marie, who gaue the remnant of the priorie church to the Friers preachers, or black Friers, and was vsed as their couentual church vntill the first of our Soueraigne Ladie Queene Elizabeth, those Friers were put out, and all the saide church with the olde parrish church was wholly, as it stooode in the last yeare of Edwarde the sixt, giuen by parliament to remaine for euer a parrish Church to the inhabitants within the close called great S. Bartholomewes. Since the which time, that olde parish church is pulled downe, except the steeple of rotten Timber readie to fall of it selfe. I haue oft heard it reported, that a new steeple should bee builded with the stone, leade and tymber of the olde parish church, but no such thing was performed. The parish haue lately repayred the old wooden steeple to serue their turne.

On the north side of this priorie, is the lane truly called Long, which reacheth from Smithfield to Aldersgate street. This lane is now lately builded on both the sides with tenements for brokers, tiplers, and such like: the rest of Smithfield from long lane end to the bars is inclosed with Innes, Brewhouses and large tenements, on the west side is Chicken lane downe to Cowbridge. Then be the pens or folds so called of sheep there parted, and penned vp to be sold on the market dayes.

Then is Smithfield pond, which of olde time in Records was called Horse-poole, for that men watered horses there, and was a great water. In the sixt of Henrie the fift, a new building was made in this west part of Smithfield betwixt the said Poole and the Riuer of the Wels, or Turnemill brooke, in a place then called the Elmes, for that there grew many Elme trees, and this had beene the place of execution for Offendors: since the which time the building there hath beene so encreased, that now remaineth not one tree growing.

The Elmes in Smithfield a place wherein trespassers were executed.

Amongst these new buildings is Cowbridge street, or Cow lane, which turneth toward Oldborne, in which lane, the Prior of Semperingham had his Inne, or London lodging.

The rest of that west side of Smithfield hath diuers fayre Innes and other comely buildings, vp to Hosiar lane, which also turneth downe to Oldborne, till it meete with Cowbridge streete. From this lane to Cocke lane, ouer against pie corner.

And thus much for encrochments and inclosure of this Smithfield, whereby remaineth but a small portion for the old vses, to wit, for markets of horses and cattle, neither for Military exercises, as Iustings, Turnings, and great triumphes which haue been there performed before the princes and nobility both of this Realm and forraigne countries.

Iustings in Smithfield.

For example to note: In the yeare 1357. the 31. of Edward the third, great and royall Iustes were there holden in Smithfield, there being present the Kings of England, France, and Scotland, with many other nobles, and great estates of diuers lands.

Fabian.

1362. The 36. of Edward the third, on the first fife dayes of May, in Smithfield were Iustes holden, the King and Queene being present, with the most part of the Chialry of England, and of France, and of other Nations, to the which came Spaniards, Cyprians, and Arminians, knightly requesting<sup>1</sup> the King of England, against the Pagans that inuaded their confines.

The 48. of Edward the third, Dame Alice Perrers (the kings Concubine) as Lady of the Sunne, rode from the Tower ld as the of London, through Cheape, accompanied of many Lords and Ladies, euery Lady leading a Lord by his horse bridle, till they came into west Smithfield, and then began a great Iust, which endured seuen dayes after.

Also the 9. of Richard the second, was the like great riding from the Tower to Westminster, and euery Lord led a Laydyes horse bridle, and on the morrow began the Iustes in Smithfield, which lasted two dayes: there bare them well, Henry of Darby, the Duke of Lankestons sonne, the Lord Beamount, sir Simon Burley, and sir Paris<sup>1</sup> Courtney.

In the 14. of Richard the second, after Frosart, royall Iustes and Turnements were proclaimed to be done in Smithfield, to begin on sunday next after the feast of saint Michael: many strangers came forth of other countries, namely Valarian Earle of S. Paul, that had married King Richards sister, the Lady Maud Courtney, and William the yong Earle of Ostaruant, sonne to Albart of Bauiere, Earle of Holland and Henault. At the day appoynted, there issued forth of the tower, about the third houre of the day, 60. coursers, apparrelled for the Iusts, and vpon euery | one an Esquier of honour riding a soft pace: then came forth 60. Ladyes of honour mounted vpon palfraies, riding on the one side, richly apparrelled, and euery Lady led a knight with a chayne of gold. Those knights being on the Kings party, had their Armour and apparrell garnished with white Hartes and Crownes of gold about the Harts neckes, & so they came riding through the streetes of London to Smithfield, with a great number of trumpets and other instruments of musicke before them. The King and Queene who were lodged in the Bishops palace of London, were come from thence, with many great estates, and placed in chambers to see the Iustes: the Ladies that led the knights, were taken downe from their palfrayes, and went vp to chambers prepared for them. Then alighted the Esquiers of honour from their coursers, & the knights in good order mounted vpon them, and after their Helmets were set on their heads, and being ready in all points, proclamation made by the Haraults, the Iustes began, and many commendable courses were runne, to the great pleasure of the beholders: this Iustes continued many dayes, with great feasting, as ye may read in Frosard.

In the yeare 1393. the 17. of Richard the second, certaine Lords of Scotland came into England to get worship by force of Armes, the Earle of Mare' challenged the Earle of Notingham, to iust with him, and so they rode together certaine courses, but not the full chalenge, for the Earle of Mare was cast both horse and man, and two of his ribbes broken with the fall, so that he was conuaied out of Smithfield, and so towards Scotland, but dyed by the way at Yorke. Sir William Darell knight, the Kings banner bearer of Scotland, challenged sir Percie Courtney knight the Kings banner bearer of England, and when they had run certaine courses, gaue ouer without conclusion of victory. Then Cookeborne Esquier of Scotland, challenged sir Nicholas Hawberke knight, and rode fiae courses, but Cookeborne was borne ouer horse and man, &c.

In the yeare 1409. the 10. of Henry the fourth, a great play was played at the Skinners Wel, which lasted eight daies: where were to see the same the most part of the Nobles and Gentles in England. And forthwith began a royall iusting in Smithfield, betweene the Earle of Somerset, and the Senes-Page 385 hall of Henalt, sir Io. Cornwall, sir Richard Arrundell, & the sonne of sir Iohn Cheiney, against certaine French men. And the same yeare a battell was fought in Smithfield, betweene two Esquiers, the one called Glaucestar appellant, and the other Artkure Defendaunt, they fought valiantly, but the King tooke vp the quarrell into his hands, and pardoned them both.

In the yeare 1430. the 8. of Henry the 6. the 14 of Ianuary, a battell was done in Smithfield, within the listes, before the king betweene two men of Feuersham in kent, Iohn Vpton notary, Appellaunt, and Iohn Downe Gentleman, Defendaunt: Iohn Vpton put vpon Iohn Downe, that he and his compiers should imagin the Kings death, the day of his Coronation. When these had fought long, the King tooke vp the matter and forgaue both the parties.

In the yeare 1442. the twentieth of Henry the sixt the thirteenth of Ianuary, a challenge was done in Smithfield, within listes, before the King, there being sir Phillip la Beaufe of Aragon knight, the other an Esquier of the kings house, called Iohn Ansley or Anstley, they came to the field all armed, the knight with his sword drawne, and the Esquier with his speare, which speare he cast against the knight, but the knight auoyded it with his sword, & cast it to the ground, then the Esquier tooke his axe, & smote many blowes on the knight, and made him let fall his axe, and brake vp his vmber three times, and would haue smit him on the face with his dagger, for to haue slayne him, but then the king cried hold, and so they were departed: the king made Iohn Ansley knight, and the knight of Aragon offered his harnesse at Windsor.

was raised y word, If rue me so cal you
r. In the yeare 1445. the 24. of Henry the 6. I. Dany appeached his Maister Wil. Catur of treason, and a day being assigned them to fight in Smithfield, the Master being well beloued was so cherished by his friends, and plied with wine, that being therewith ouercome, was also vnluckily slayne by his seruant: but that false seruant (for he falsely accused his Maister) liued not long vnpunished, for he was after hanged at Teyborne for felony. Let such false accusers note this for example, and looke for no better end without speedy repentance.

The same yeare, Thomas Fitz-Thomas Prior of Kilmaine appeached sir Iames Butlar Earle of Ormond of treasons: which had a day assigned them to fight in Smithfield, the listes were made, and the field prepared, but when it came to the point, the king commaunded they should not fight, and tooke the quarrell into his hands.

In the yeare 1467. the seuenth of Edward the fourth, the bastard of Burgoigne chalenged the Lord Scales, brother to the Queene, to fight with him, both on horse backe and on foote: the King therefore caused listes to bee prepared in Smithfield, the length of 120 Taylors yardes, and 10. foote, and in breadth 80. yardes, and 20. foote, double barred, 5. foote betweene the barres, the timber worke whereof, cost 200. markes, besides the fayre and costly galories prepared for the Ladyes and other: at the which martiall enterprise the King and Nobility were present. The first day they ranne together with speares, and departed with equall honour. The next day they turneyed on horse backe, the Lord Scales horse hauing on his Chafron a long speare pike of steele, and as the two Champions coaped together, the same horse thrust his pike into the nostrilles of the Bastards horse, so that for very payne he mounted so high that he fell on the one side with his Master, and the Lord Scales rode about him with his sword drawne, till the King commaunded the Marshall to helpe vp the Bastard, who sayd, I cannot hold me by the clouds, for though my horse fayle me, I will not fayle an incounter companion: but the king would not suffer them to do any more that day.

The next morrow, they came into the listes on foote, with two pole axes, and fought valiantly, but at the last, the point of the pole axe of the Lord Scales entered into the side of the Bastardes Helme, and by force might haue placed him on his knees: But the king cast downe his warder, and the Marshall seuered them. The Bastard required that he might performe his enterprise: but the king gaue iudgement, as the Bastard relinquished his chalenge, &c. And this may suffice for Iustes in Smithfield.

Now to returne through Giltspurre streete by Newgate, | where I first began, there standeth the fayre parish church Page 387 called Saint Sepulchers in the Bayly, or by Chamberlaine John Leyland. gate, in a fayre Church yarde, though not so large as of old time, for the same is letten out for buildings, and a garden plot.

This Church was newly reedified or builded, about the raigne of Henry the sixt, or of Edward the fourth: one of the Pophames was a great builder there, namely of one fayre Pophames chappell on the South side of the Quire, as appeareth by his builders of Armes, and other monuments in the Glasse windowes thereof, S. Sepulchers and also the fayre Porch of the same Church towards the Church.
South: his Image faire grauen in stone, was fixed ouer the saide Porch, but defaced and beaten downe, his title by offices was this, Chancellor of Normandy, Captayne of Vernoyle, Pearch, Susan, and Bayon, and Treasurer of the kings houshold: he dyed rich, leauing great treasure of strange coynes, and was buried in the Charterhouse church, by west Smithfield: the first nobilitating of these Pophames was by Mathil(d) the Empresse, daughter to Henry the first, and by Henry her sonne. One Pophame, gentleman of very fayre landes in Southampton shire, dyed without issue male, about Henry the sixt, and leauing foure daughters, they were married to Fostar, Barentine, Wodham, and Hamden. Popham Deane (distant three miles from Clarendon, and three miles from Mortisham) was sometime the chiefe Lordship or Mannor house of these Pophames.

There lye buried in this Church, William Andrew, Stephen Clamparde, Lawrence Warcam, Iohn Dagworth, William Porter, Robert Scarlet Esquiers.

Next to this Church is a fayre and large Inne for receipt of traouellers, and hath to signe the Sarasens head.

Oldborne

There lyeth a streete from Newgate west, to the end of Turnagain lane, and winding north to Oldborne Conduite. This Conduite by Oldborne Crosse was first builded 1498. Thomasin widdow to Iohn Perciuall, Mayor, gaue to the second making thereof 20. markes, Richard Shore 10.l. Thomas Knesworth and others also did giue towards it.

But of late, a new Conduit was there builded in place of the old, namely in the yeare 1577. by William Lamb, sometime a gentleman of the Chappell to king H. the 8. and afterward a Citizen and Clothworker of London, the water thereof he caused to be conueyed in lead, from diuers springs to one head, and from thence to the said Conduite, and waste of one Cocke at Oldborne bridge, more then 2000. yards in length, all which was by him performed at his owne charges, amounting to the summe of 1500.l.

From the west side of this Conduit is the high way, there called Snor hill, stretcheth out by Oldborne bridge ouer the oft named water of Turmill brooke, and so vp to Oldborne hill, all replenished with fayre building.

Scropes Inne
next time Ser-
Oldborne.

Without Oldborne bridge on the right hand is Gold lane, as is before shewed: vp higher on the hill be certayne Innes, and other fayre buildings, amongst the which of old time was a Messuage called Scropes Inne, for so I find the same recorded in the 37. of Henry the sixt.

This house was sometime letten out to Sergeants at the law, as appeareth, and was foond by inquisition taken in the Guild Hall of London, before William Purchase Mayor, and Exchequer for the king Henry the seuenth in the 14. of his raigne, after the death of Iohn Lord Scrope, that he dyed seized<sup>1</sup> in his demesne of fee, by the feofment of Guy Fairfax knight, one of the kings Iustices, made in the 9. of the same king, vnto (an) Esquier, the said Iohn Scrope knight, Lord Scrope of Bolton, and Robert Wingfield, of one house or tenement late called Sergeants Inne, scituate against the Church of Saint Andrew in Oldborne in the City of London, with two gardens and two Messuages to the same tenement belonging in the sayd Citie, to hold in burgage, valued by the yeare in all reprises, x.s.

Then is the Bishop of Elies Inne, so called of belonging and pertayning to the Bishops of Elye. William de Luda Bishop of Elye, deceased 1298.<sup>2</sup> gaue this house by the name of his Mannor, with the appurtenances in Oldborne, to his successors, with condition his next successor should pay 1000. markes to the finding of three Chaplaines in the Chappell there. More, Iohn Hotham Bishop of Elie did giue by the name of sixe Messuages two sellars, and forty Acres of land in the Suburbs of London, in the parish of Saint Andrew in Oldborne, to the Prior and couent of Elie as | appeareth by patent, the 9. of Edward the third: this man was Bishop of Elye 20. yeares, and deceased 1336. Elie place in Oldborne.

Thomas Arundell Bishoppe of Elie beautifully builded of new his Pallace at Elie, and likewise his Mannors in diuers places, especially this in Oldborne, which he did not onely repaire, but rather new builded, and augmented it with a large Port, gate house, or front towards the streete or high way: his armes are yet to bee discerned in the stone worke thereof: he sate Bishop of Elie 14. yeares, and was translated to Yorke.

In this house for the large and commodious roomes thereof, diuers great and solemne feastes haue beene kept, especially by the Sergeants at the law, whereof twaine are to be noted for posterity.

Sergeants feast
Elie house.

The first, in the yeare 1464. the fourth of Edward the fourth, in Michelmas tearme, the Sergeants at law held their feast in this house, to the which amongst other estates, Mathew Phillip Mayor of London, with the Aldermen, Shiriffes, and commons of diuers craftes being inuited, did repaire: but when the Mayor looked to keepe the state in the hall as it had beene vsed in all places within the Citie and liberties (out of the Kings presence) the Lord Gray of Ruthen, then Lord Treasurer of England, vnwitting the Sergeants and against their willes (as they sayd) was first placed: whereupon the Mayor, Aldermen, and commons departed home, and the Mayor made the Aldermen to dine with him: howbeit he & al the Citizens were wonderfully displeased, that he was so dealt with, and the new Sergeants and others were right sory therefore, and had rather then much good (as they said) it had not so happened.

One other feast was likewise there kept, in the yeare 1531, the 23. of king Henry the 8.: the Sergeants then made were in number 11. namely, Thomas Audeley, Walter Luke, I. Bawdwine, I. Hinde, Christopher Iennie, Iohn Dowsell, Edward Meruine, Edmond Knightley, Roger Chomley, Edward Montague, and Robert Yorke.

These also held their feast in this Elie house for fife daies, to wit Fryday the 10. of Nouember, Saterdag, Sunday, Munday, and Tuesday. On Munday (which was their principall day) | King Henry and Queene Katherine dined there (but in two chambers) and the forraine Ambassadors in a third chamber. In the Hall at the high table, sate sir Nicholas Lambard Mayor of London, the Iudges, the Barons of the Exchequer, with certaine Aldermen of the Citie: At the boord on the south side, sate the Master of the Rowles, the Maister of the Chauncery, and worshipfull Citizens: On the North side of the Hall certayne Aldermen began the boorde, and then followed Merchants of the City: in the Cloistrie, Chappell and gallory, knights, Esquiers, and Gentlemen were placed: in the Halles, the Craftes of London: the Sergeantes of law and their wiues kept in their owne chambers.

It were tedious to set downe the preparation of fish, flesh, and other victuals spent in this feast, and would seeme almost incredible and (as to me it seemeth) wanted little of a feast at a coronation: neuerthelesse a little I will touch, for declaration of the change of prices. There were brought to the slaughter house 24. great Beefes, at 26. shillings 8. pence the peece from the shambles, one carkasse of an Oxe at 24.s., one hundred fat Muttons, ij.s. x.d. the peece, 51. great Veales at 4. shillings 8.d. the peece, 34. Next beyond this Mannor of Elie house, is Lither lane, Lither lane. turning into the field. Then is Furniualles Inne, now an Inne <sup>Furniuals</sup> Inne, an Inne of Chauncery, but sometime belonging to sir William Furniual knight, & Thomesin his wife, who had in Oldborne two Messuages, and 13. shops, as appeareth by Record of Richard the 2. in the sixt of his raigne.

Then is the Earle of Bathes Inne, now called Bath place, | The Earle of of late for the most part new builded, and so to the barres. Bathes Inne.

Now againe from Newgate on the left hand or south side lyeth the old Bayly, which runneth downe by the wall vpon the ditch of the Cittie called Houndes ditch to Ludgate: Hounds ditch. I haue not read how this streete tooke that name, but is like to haue risen of some court of olde time there kept, and I finde that in the yeare 1356. the 34. of E. the 3. the tenement and ground vpon Houndes ditch, betweene Ludgate on the south, and Newgate on the north was appointed to John Cambridge Fishmonger, Chamberlain of London, whereby it seemeth that the Chamberlaines of London haue there kept their courts, as now they doe by the Guildehall, and till this day the Mayor and Iustices of this city kept their sessions in a part thereof, now called the Sessions hal, both for the citty of London, and shire of Middlesex. right hand turneth down saint Georges lane, towards Fleete lane. In this S. Georges lane on the north side thereof, remayneth yet an olde wall of stone, inclosing a peece of ground vp Seacole lane, wherin by report sometime stood an Inne of Chancery: which house being greatly decayed, and standing remote from other houses of that profession, the company remoued to a common hostery, called of the signe our Lady Inne, not far from Clements Inne, which they procured from Sir John Fineux, Lord chiefe Iustice of the Kings bench, and since haue helde it of the owners, by the name of the new Inne, paying therefore vi.l. rent by the yeare, as tenants at their owne will: for more (as is said) cannot be gotten of them and much lesse will they be put from it. Beneath this S. Georges lane, <is> the lane called Fleet lane, winding south by the prison of the Fleet into Fleetstreete, by Fleete bridge. Lower downe into the Old Bayly, is at this present a standard of timber with a cocke or cockes, deliuering fayre spring water to the inhabitants, and is the wast of the water seruing the prisoners in Ludgate.

Next out of the high street turneth downe a lane, called the little Baylie, which runneth downe to the east ende of S. Georges lane. The next is Seacole lane, I thinke called Limeburners lane, of burning Lime there with Seacole. For I reade in record of such a Lane to haue beene in the parrish of saint Sepulcher | & there yet remayneth in this lane an Alley called Limeburners Alley. Neare vnto this Seacole lane in the turning towards Oldborne Conduit is Turnagain lane, or rather, as in a record of the fift of Edward the third, Windagain lane, for that it goeth downe west to Fleete dike, from whence men must turne againe the same way they came, for there it is stopped. Then the high street turneth down Snore hill, to Oldborne Conduit, and from thence to Oldborne bridge, beyond the which bridge, on the left hand, is Shooe lane by the which men passe from Oldborn to Fleetestrete, by the Conduit there. In this Shooe lane on the left hande is one olde house called Oldborne Hall, it is now letten out into diuers Tenementes. On the other side at the very corner standeth the parish church of S. Andrew, in the which church, or neare therevnto was sometime kept a Grammer schoole, as appeareth in an other place by a Patent, made as I haue shewed Grammer schoole in Oldborne. for the erection of schooles. There bee monumentes in this church of Thomas Lord Writhesley Earle of Southampton, buried 1550. Raph Rokeby of Lincolnes Inne Esquier, Maister of saint Katherines, and one of the Maysters of Requestes to the Queenes Maiestie, who deceased the 14. of Iune, 1596. He gaue by his Testament to Christes Hospitall in London 100.li., to the Colledge of the poore of Queene Elisabeth in east Greenwich, 100. pound, to the poore scollers in Cambridge, 100. pound, to the poore schollers in Oxford 100. pound; to the prisoners in the two Compters in London 200.li., to the prisoners in the Fleete 100. pound, to the prisoners in Ludgate 100. pound, to the prisoners in Newgate 100. pound, to the prisoners in the Kinges Bench 100. pound, to the prisoners in the Marshalsey an hundred pound, to the prisoners in the White Lion twenty pound, to the poore of saint Katherines twenty pound, and to euery brother and sister there, fortie shillings: William Sydnam founded a chauntry there. There was also of old time, (as I haue read in the thirde of Henry the fift) an Hospitall for the poore, which was a Cell to the house of Cluny in France, and was therefore suppressed among Hospitall in Oldborne. the Priories Aliens.

From this church of S. Andrew vp Oldborne hill bee diuers fayre builded houses, amongst the which on the left hand there | standeth three Innes of Chauncery, whereof the first Page 393 adioyning vnto Crookhorn Alley is called Thauers Inne, and Crokhorne Alley. standeth opposite, or ouer against the said Elie house. Then Thauies Inne. is Fewtars lane which stretcheth south into Fleetestreet by the Fewtars lane<sup>1</sup>. east end of S. Dunstones church, and is so called of Fewters (or idle people) lying there, as in a way leading to Gardens: but the same is now of latter yeares on both sides builded through with many fayre houses.

Beyond this Fewtars lane is Barnards Inne, alias Macworths<sup>2</sup> Barnards Inne. Inne, which is of Chauncery, belonging to the Deane and chapter of Lincolne, as sayth the Record of H. the 6. the 32. of his raigne, and was founded by Inquisition in the Guildhal of London before I. Norman Mayor the Kinges exchetre: the Pat. H. 6. 32.

Iury sayde, that it was not hurtfull for the king to licence T. Atkens cittizen of London, & one of the Executors to John Mackeworth Deane of Lincolne, to giue one messuage in Holborn in London with the appurtenances called Mackworthes Inne, but now commonlie knowne by the name of Barnardes Inne, to the Deane and chapter of Lincolne, to finde one sufficient Chaplaine to celebrate diuine seruice in the chapple of S. George in the Cathedrall church of Lincoln, where the body of the sayde John is buried, to haue and to hold the sayde messuage to the sayde Deane and Chapter, and to their successors for euer, in part of satisfaction of 20.li. landes and rentes, which Edwarde the third licensed the sayde Deane and Chapter to purchase to their owne vse, eyther of their owne fee or tenor, or of any other, so the landes were not holden of the king in capite. Then is Staple Inne, also of Chancery, but whereof so named I am ignorant: the same of late is for a great part therof fayre builded, and not a little augmented: And then at the Barre endeth this ward without newgate.

Without Ludgate on the right hand or North side from the saide gate lyeth the Old Bayly, as I sayde, then the high streete called Ludgate hill downe to Fleete lane, in which lane standeth the Fleete, a prison House, so called of the Fleet or Water running by it, and sometime flowing about it, but now vaulted ouer.

I read that Richard the first in the first of his raigne, confirmed to Osbert, brother to William Longshampe Chancelor of England, and elect of Elie, and to his heyres for euer the custody of his house, or palace at Westminster, with the keeping of his gaole of the Fleet at London: also king John by his patent dated the 3. of his raigne, gaue to S(imon) Archdeacon of Welles the custody of the said kings house at westminster, and of his Gaole of the Fleet, together with the Wardship of the daughter and heyre of Roberte Leueland, &c. Then is Fleete Bridge, pitched ouer the sayd Water, whereof I haue spoken in an other place.

Conduit in Fleetestreete.

Then also against the South end of Shooe Lane standeth a fayre Water Conduit, whereof William Eastfield sometime Mayor, was founder: for the Mayor and Comminaltie of London being possessed of a Conduit heade, with diuers springs of Water gathered thereinto in the Parrish of Paddington, and the water conueighd from thence by pypes of leade towardes London vnto Teyborne: where it had layne by the space of sixe yeares and more: The Executors of Sir William Eastefelde obtayned licence of the Mayor and Comminaltie, for them in the yeare 1453. with the goodes of Sir William, to conueigh the sayde waters: first in pypes of leade into a pype begunne to bee laide besides the greate Conduit heade at Maribone, which stretcheth from thence vnto a separall, late before made against the Chappell of Rounseuall by Charing Crosse, and no further, and then from thence to conuay the said water into the citie, & there to make receipt or receipts for the same vnto the common weale of the comminaltie, to wit, the poore to drinke, the rich to dresse their meats, which water was by them brought thus into Fleetstreet to a standard, which they had made and finished, 1471.

The inhabitantes of Fleetestreete in the yeare 1478. obtained licence of the Mayor, Aldermen and comminaltie to make at their owne charges two cesternes, the one to be set at the said standarde, the other at Fleete bridge for the receipt of the wast water: this cesterne at the standard they builded, and on the same a fayre tower of stone, garnished with images of S. Christopher on the top, and Angels round about lower down, with sweet sounding bells before them, whereupon by an Engine placed in the Tower, they, diuers houres of the day and night, chymed such an Hymme as was appointed. |

From this Conduit vp to Fewtars lane and further, is the parish church of S. Dunstan, called in the west, (for difference from S. Dunstone in the east) where lyeth buried T. Duke Skinner in S. Katherins chappel by him builded, 1421. Nicholas Coningston, Iohn Knape, and other founded chauntries there. Raph Bane Bishop of Couentrie and Lichfield, 1559. and other. Parish church Next beyond this church is Cliffords Inne, sometime belonging to Robert Clifford, by gift of Edward the second in these words. 'The king granteth to Robert Clifford that messuage with the appurtenances next the Church of S. Dunstane in the West in the suburbs of London, which messuage was Cliffords Inne.

sometime Malculines de Herley, and came to the hands of E. the 1. by reason of certaine debts (in) which the said Malculine was bound at the time of his death to our sayde Father, from the time that hee was Escaetor on this side Trent: which house Iohn Earle of Richmount did holde at our pleasure, and is now in our possession, patent the 3. of Ed. the second.' After the death of this Robert Clifford, Isabel his wife let the same messuage to Students of the law, as by the Recorde following may appeare.

Isabel quæ fuit uxor Roberti Clifford, Messuagium unipartitum, quod Robertus Clifford habuit in parochia sci. Dunstoni West. in suburbio Londini, &c. tenuit, & illud dimisit post mortem dict. Roberti, apprenticiis de banco. pro x.li. annuatim, &c. Anno 18. Eduardi tertii, inquisitio post mortem Roberti Clifford.

This house hath since fallen into the kinges hands, as I haue heard, but returned againe to the Cliffordes, and is now letten to the said Studentes for foure pound by the yeare.

Somewhat beyond this Cliffordes Inne is the south ende of New streete (or Chancelar lane), on the right hande whereof is Sergeantes Inne called in Chauncery lane. And then nexte was sometime the house of the conuerted Iewes, founded by king Henry the third, in place of a Iewes house to him forfeited, in the yeare 1233. and the 17. of his raigne, who builded there for them a | faire Church now vsed, and called the Chappell for the custodie of Rolles and Records of Chancerie. It standeth not farre from the old Temple, but in the midway betweene the olde Temple and the new, in the which house all such Iewes and infidels as were conuerted to the Christian faith, were ordained and appoynted vnder an honest rule of life, sufficient maintenance, whereby it came to passe, that in short time there were gathered a great number of conuerts, which were baptized, instructed in the doctrine of Christ, and there liued vnder a learned Christian appointed to gouerne them: since the which time, to wit, in the yeare 1290. all the Iewes in England were banished out of the Realme, whereby the number of conuerts in this place was decayed: and therefore in the yeare 1377. this house was annexed by Patent to William Burstall Clarke, Custos Rotulorum, or keeper of the Notwithstanding such of the Iewes or other infidels, as haue in this realme beene conuerted to Christianitie, and baptised, haue beene relieued there: for I find in Record, that one William Piers a Iew that became a christian, was baptised in the fift of Richard the second, and had two pence the day allowed him during his life by the said king.

On the west side sometime was an house pertaining to the prior of Nocton Parke, a house of Canons in Lincolnshire: Prior of Nocton parke, his inne or house of the sixe Clearks. this was commonly called Hereflete Inne, and was a Brew-house, but now faire builded for the sixe Clearkes of the Chancerie, and standeth ouer against the said house called the Rolles, and neare vnto the lane which now entreth Fickets Fickets croft. croft, or Fickets field. Then is Shere lane opening also into Shere lane. Fickets field, hard by the barres. On this north side of Fleetstreete, in the yeare of Christ 1595. I obserued, that when the laborers had broken vp the pauement, from agaynst Chancerie lanes end, vp towards Saint Dunstons Church, and had digged foure foote deepe, they found one other pauement of hard stone, more sufficient then the first, and therefore | harder to Page 397 bee broken, vnder the which they found in the made ground, pyles of Tymber, driuen verie thicke, and almost close together, the same being as blacke as pitch or coale, and many of them rotten as earth, which prooueth that the ground there (as sundrie other places of the Citie) haue beene a Marish or full of springs.

On the South side from Ludgate before the wall of the Citie be faire builded houses to Fleetbridge, on the which bridge a Cesterne for receite of spring water was made by Conduit at Fleete bridge. the men of Fleetstreet, but the watercourse is decayed and not restored.

Next is Bridelane, and therein Bridewell, of olde time the Bridewell the Kinges house. kings house: for the kings of this realme haue beene there lodged, and till the ninth of Henrie the thirde, the Courtes were kept in the kings house wheresoeuer he was lodged, as may appeare by ancient records, whereof I haue seene many, but for example set forth one in the Chapter of Towers and Castles.

King Henrie the eight builded there a stately and beautifull house of new, for receit of the Emperor Charles the 5. who in the yeare of Christ 1522. was lodged himselfe at the blacke Friers, but his Nobles in this new builded Bridewell, a Gallery being made out of the house ouer the water, and through the wall of the Cittie into the Emperours lodging at the Blacke Friers: King Henrie himselfe oftentimes lodged there also, as namely in the yeare 1525. a Parliament being then holden in the black Friers, he created states of Nobilitie there, to wit, Henrie Fitz Roy, a child (which he had by Elisabeth Blunt) to be Earle of Nottingham, Duke of Richmond, and of Somerset, Lieutenant Generall from Trent Northward, warden of the East, middle, and West Marches foranens Scotland, Henry Courtney Earle of Deuonshire, Coosen German to the king, to be Marques of Excester, Henrie Brandon a childe of two yeares olde, sonne to the Earle of Suffolke, to be Earle of Lincolne: Sir Thomas Mannars, Lord Rose to be Earle of Rutland, Sir Henrie Clifford to bee Earle of Cumberland, Sir Robert Ratcliffe to be Vicont Fitzwater, and Sir Thomas Boloine Treasurer of the kings householde, to be Vicont Rochford.

In the yeare 1528. Cardinall Campeius was brought to the kings presence being then at Bridewell, whither hee had called all his Nobilitie, Iudges and Councillers, &c. And there the eight of Nouember in his great Chamber hee made vnto them an oration touching his mariage with Queene Katheren, as ye may read in Edward Hall.

In the yeare 1529. the same king Henrie and Queene Katherine were lodged there, whilst the question of their marriage was argued in the Blacke Friers, &c.

But now you shall heare how this house became a house of correction. In the yeare 1553. the seuenth of king Edwarde the sixt, the tenth of Aprill: Sir George Barne,<sup>1</sup> being Maior of this Citie, was sent for to the Court at White hall, and there at that time the king gaue vnto him for the Comminaltie

This gift king Edward confirmed by his Charter, dated the 26. of Iune next following : and in the yeare 1555. in the moneth of Februarie, Sir William Gerarde Maior, and the Aldermen entred Bridwell, and tooke possession thereof according to the gift of the said king Edward, the same being confirmed by Queen Marie.

The Bishop of S. Dauids had his Inne ouer against the north side of this Bridwell, as I haue said.

Then is the Parish church of Saint Bridges, or Bride, of olde time a small thing, which now remaineth to be the quire, but since encreased with a large bodie and side Iles, towards the West, at the charges of William Venor Esquire, Warden of the Fleete, about the yeare 1480. all which he caused to be wrought<sup>1</sup> about in the stone in the figure of a vine with Grapes and leaues, &c. The partition betwixt the olde worke and the new, sometime prepared as a screne to be set vp in the hall of the Duke of Somersets house at Strand, was bought for eight score pound, & set vp in the yeare 1557. One wilfull bodie began to spoyle and breake the same, in the | yeare 1596. but was by the high Commissioners forced to make it vp againe, and so it resteth. John Vlsthorne, William Euesham, John Wigan, and other founded Chauntries there.

The next is Salisburie Court, a place so called for that it belonged to the Bishops of Salisburie, and was their Inne, or London house at such time as they were summoned to come to the Parliament, or came for other businesse : it hath of late time beene the dwelling, first of sir Richard Sackuile, and now of sir Thomas Sackuile his sonne, Baron of Buckhurst, Lord Treasurer, who hath greatly enlarged it with stately buildings.

Then was the white Friers church, called Fratres beate Mariæ de monte Carmeli, first founded (saith John Bale) by sir Richard Gray knight, auncestor to the Lord Gray (of) Codnor, in the yeare 1241. King Edward the first gaue to the Prior and brethren of that house a plot of ground in Fleete street, whereupon to build their house, which was since reedified or new builded, by Hugh Courtney Earle of Deuonshire. About the yeare 1350. the 24. of Edward the third, John Lufken Maior of London, and the Comminaltie of the Citie, graunted a lane called Crockers lane, reaching from Fleete-streete to the Thames to builde in the West end of that Church. Sir Robert Knoles knight was a great builder there also, in the raigne of Richarde the second, and of Henry the fourth: hee deceased at his Mannor of Sculthorpe<sup>1</sup> in Norffolke, in the yeare 1407. and was brought to London, and honorably buried by the Lady Constance his wife, in the bodie of the said White Friers Church, which he had newly builded.

Next is the newe Temple, so called because the Templars, before the building of this house, had their Temple in Oldborne. This house was founded by the knights Templars in England, in the raigne of Henrie the second, and the same was dedicated to God and our blessed Ladie, by Heraclius, Patriarke of the church called the holy Resurrection in Ierusalem, in the yeare of Christ, 1185.

These knights Templars tooke their beginning about the yeare 1118. in maner following. Certaine Noble men, horsemen, religiously bent, bound by vow themselues in the handes of the Patriarke of Ierusalem, to serue Christ after the manner of Regular Canons in chastitie and obedience, and to renounce their owne proper willes for euer: the first of which order were Hugh Paganus, and Geffrey de S. Andromare. And whereas at the first they had no certaine habitation, Baldwin king of Ierusalem granted vnto them a dwelling place in his pallace by the Temple, and the Canons of the same Temple gaue them the streete thereby, to build therein their houses of office, and the Patriarke, the king, the Nobles and Prelates, gaue vnto them certaine reuenues out of their Lordships.

the Templars.

Their first profession was for safegarde of the Pilgrimes comming to visite the sepulchre, and to keepe the high wayes agaynst the lying in wayte of theeues, &c. About ten yeares after they had a rule appointed vnto them, and a white Habite, by Honorius the second then Pope, and whereas they had but nine in number, they began to encrease greatly. Afterward in Pope Eugenius time, they bare crosses of red cloth on their vppermost garments, to be knowne from others: and in short time because they had their first mansion hard by the Temple of our Lord in Ierusalem, they were called knights of the Temple.

Many Noble men in all partes of Christendome became Brethren of this order, and builded for themselues Temples in euerie Citie or great Towne in England, but this at London was their chiefe house, which they builded after the forme of the temple nere to the sepulchre of our Lord at Ierusalem: they had also other temples in Cambridge, Bristow, Canterbury, Douer, Warwick.] This Temple in London was often made a storehouse of mens treasure, I meane such as feared the spoile thereof in other places.

Hubert Earle of Kent, his treasure in the new Temple.

Mathew Paris noteth that in the yeare 1232. Hubert de Burgh Earle of Kent beeing prisoner in the Tower of London, the king was enformed that he had much Treasure layde vp in this new Temple, vnder the custodie of the Templars, whereupon hee sent for the Master of the Temple, and examined him straightly, who confessed that money being deliuered vnto him and his brethren to be kept, he knew not how much there was of it. The king demaunded to haue the same deliuered, but it was answered that the money being committed vnto their trust, could not be deliuered without the licence of him that committed it to Ecclesiastical protection, wherevpon the king sent his Treasurer and Iusticiar of the Exchequer vnto Hubert, to require him to resigne the money wholly into his hands, who answered that he would gladly submit himselfe, and all his vnto the kings pleasure, and therevpon desired the knights of the Temple in his behalfe to present all the keyes vnto the king to doe his pleasure, with the goods which hee had committed vnto them. Then the king commaunded the money to be faithfully told and layde vp in his Treasure, by Inuentory, wherein was found (besides ready money) vessels of gold, and siluer vnpraysable, and many precious stones which would make all men wonder, if they knew the worth of them.

This Temple was againe dedicated 1240. belike also newly reedified then.

These Templars at this time were in so great glory, that they entertayned the Nobility, forraine Ambassadors, and the Prince himselfe, very often: insomuch that Mathew Paris Mathew Paris. crieth out on them for their pride, who being at the first so poore, as they had but one horse to serue two of them, (in token whereof they gaue in their Seale, two men riding of one horse) yet sodainly they waxed so insolent, that they disdayned other orders, and sorted themselues with Noblemen.

King Edward the first in the yeare 1263.<sup>1</sup> taking with him Robert Waleran, and other, came to the Temple, where calling for the keeper of the Treasure house, as if he meant to see his mothers Jewels, that were layde vp there to be safely kept, hee entred into the house, breaking the Coffers of certaine persons that had likewise brought their money thither, and hee tooke away from thence to the value of a thousand pound.

Many Parliaments and great Counsailes haue beene there kept, as may appeare by our histories. In the yeare 1308. all the Templars in England as also in other parts of Christendome were apprehended and committed to diuers prisons. In 1310. a prouinciall Counsell was holden at London against the Templars, in England, vpon herisie, and other Articles whereof they were accused, but denied all except one or two of them, notwithstanding they all did confesse that they could not purge themselves fully, as faultlesse, and so they were condemned to perpetuall pennance, in seuerall Monasteries, where they behaued themselves modestly.

Phillip King of France procured their ouerthrow throughout the whole world, and caused them to be condemned by a generall Counsell, to his aduantage, as he thought, for he beleueed to haue had all their lands in France, and therefore seized the same in his handes, (as I haue reade) caused the Templars to the number of foure and fiftie, (or after Fabian threescore) to bee burned at Paris.

without.

HAVING treated of Wardes in London, on the North side the Thames (in number 25.) I am now to crosse ouer the said Riuer into the Borough of Southwark, which is also a Warde of London, without the walles, on the South side thereof, as is Portsoken on the East, and Faringdon extra on the West.

This Borough, being in the County of Surrey, consisteth of diuers streetes, wayes, and winding lanes, all full of buildings, inhabited: and first to begin at the West part thereof, ouer against the west Suburbe of the Citie.

On the banke of the Riuer Thames there is now a continuall building of tenements, about halfe a mile in length to the bridge. Then from the Bridge straight towards the South a continuall streete, called long Southwarke, builded on both sides with diuers | lanes and alleyes vp to S. Georges church, and beyond it through Blackman streete towards New Town (or Newington) the liberties of which Borough extend almost to the parrish Church of New town aforesaid, distant one mile from London Bridge, and also southwest a continuall building, almost to Lambith, more then one mile from the said bridge.

streete.

Then from the bridge along by the Thames Eastwarde, is saint Olaues street hauing continuall building on both the sides, with lanes and alleyes vp to Battle bridge, to Horsedowne, and towards Rother hith: also some good halfe mile in length from London bridge.

So that I account the whole continual buildings on the banke of the said riuer, from the west towards the east, to be more then a large mile in length.

Then haue ye from the entering towards the said Horsedown one other continuall streete called Bermondes eye streete, which stretcheth south, likewise furnished with buildinges on both sides, almost halfe a mile in length, vp to the late dissolved Monasterie of S. Sauour called Bermondsey. And from thence is one long lane (so called of the length) turning west to saint Georges church afore named. Out of the which lane mentioned, Long lane, breaketh one other streete towards the south and by east, and this is called Kentish streete for that it is the way leading into that countrie: and so haue you the bounds of this Borough.

The antiquities most notable in this Borough are these: An Abbey. first, for ecclesiasticall, there was Bermondsey, an Abbey of A Priory, Blacke Monkes, S. Mary Oueries, a Priorie of Canons Regular, A Colledge & Hospitall. saint Thomas a colledge or Hospitall for the poore, & the Loke A Lazar house. a Lazar house in Kent street. Parish churches, there haue Parish churches. been 6. wherof 5. do remaine, vz. S. Mary Magdalen in the priory of saint Mary Ouary, now the same S. Marie Ouary is the parrish Church for the said Mary Magdalen, and for, S. Margaret on the hill, and is called S. Sauour.

S. Margaret on the hill being put downe, is now a Court for Iustice. S. Thomas in the Hospitall serueth for a parrish church as afore. S. George a parrish church as before it did, so doth saint Olaue, and saint Mary Magdalen by the Abbey of Bermondsey. | the bank side.

Next on this banke was sometime the Bordello or stewes, a place so called, of certaine stew houses priuiledged there, for the repaire of incontinent men to the like women, of the which priuiledge I haue read thus.

In a Parliament holden at Westminster the 8. of Henry the second, it was ordayned by the commons and confirmed by the king and Lords, that diuers constitutions for euer should bee kept within that Lordship or franchise, according to the olde customes that had been there vsed time out of mind. Amongest the which these following were some, vz.

That no stewholder or his wife should let or staye any single Woman to goe and come freely at all times when they listed.

No stewholder to keepe any woman to borde, but she to borde abroad at her pleasure.

To take no more for the womans chamber in the weeke then foureteene pence.

Not to keepe open his dores vpon the holydayes.

Not to keepe any single woman in his house on the holy dayes, but the Bayliffe to see them voyded out of the Lordship.

No single woman to be kept against her will that would leaue her sinne.

No stewholder to receiue any Woman of religion, or any mans wife.

No single woman to take money to lie with any man, but shee lie with him all night till the morrow.

No man to be drawn or inticed into any stewhouse.

The Constables, Balife, and others euery weeke to search euery stewhouse.

No stewholder to keepe any woman that hath the perilous infirmitie of burning, nor to sell bread, ale, flesh, fish, wood, coale, or any victuals, &c.

These and many more orders were to be obserued vpon great payne and punishment: I haue also seene diuers Patent<sup>Lib. S. Mariae Eborum.</sup>es of confirmation, namely one dated 1345. the nineteenth of Edwarde the third. Also I find that in the fourth of Richard the second, these stew houses, belonging to William Walworth <sup>English people dis- dayned to be baudes.</sup> then Mayor of London, were farmed by Froes of Flaunders, and spoyled by Walter Tighler, and other rebelles of Kent: <sup>Froes of Flaunders were women for that purpose.</sup> notwithstanding I finde that ordinances for the same place and houses were againe confirmed in the raigne of Henry the sixth, to be continued as before. Also Robert Fabian writeth <sup>Robert Fabian.</sup> that in the yeare 1506. the 21. of Henry the seuenth, the saide stewe houses in Southwarke were for a season inhibited, and the dores closed vp, but it was not long saith he, ere the houses there were set open againe, so many as were permitted, for (as it was said) whereas before were eighteene houses, from thenceforth were | appointed to bee vsed but twelue onely. <sup>Page 409</sup> These allowed stewhouses had signes on their frontes, towardes the Thames, not hanged out, but painted on the walles, as a Boares heade, the Crosse keyes, the Gunne, the Castle, the Crane, the Cardinals Hat, the Bel, the Swanne, &c. I haue heard ancient men of good credite report, that these single women were forbidden the rightes of the Church, so long as they continued that sinnefull life, and were excluded from christian buriall, if they were not reconciled before their death. And therefore there was a plot of ground, called the single womans churchyard, appoynted for them, far from the parish church. <sup>Single women forbidden rightes of the church.</sup>

In the yeare of Christ, 1546. the 37. of Henry the eight, this row of stews in Southwarke was put downe by the kings commandement, which was proclaymed by sounde of Trumpet, no more to be priuiledged, and vsed as a common Brothel, but the inhabitants of the same to keepe good and honest rule as in other places of this realme, &c. <sup>Stewhouses put downe.</sup>

The next is the Clinke, a Gayle or prison for the trespassers in those parts, Namely in olde time for such as should brabble, frey, or breake the Peace on the saide banke, or in the Brothell houses, they were by the inhabitantes there about apprehended, and committed to this Gayle, where they were straightly imprisoned.

Winchester
house.

Next is the Bishoppe of Winchester's house, or lodging when hee commeth to this Cittie: which house was first builded by William Gifford Bishoppe of Winchester, aboute the yeare 1107. the seuenth of Henry the first, vpon a plot of ground pertayning to the Prior of Bermondsey, as appeareth by a writ directed vnto the Barons of the Exchequer, in the yeare 1366. the 41. of Edward the 3. (the Bishops sea being voyde) for 8.1. due to the Monks of Bermondsey, for the Bishop of Winchester's lodging in Southwarke. This is a very fayre house wel repayred, and hath a large Wharfe, and landing place called the Bishop of Winchester's staires.

house.

Adioyning to this on the south side thereof is the Bishoppe of Rochester's Inne or lodging, by whome first erected, I do not now remember me to haue read, but well I wot the same of long time | hath not beene frequented by any Bishoppe, and lyeth ruinous for lacke of reparations. The Abbot of Wauerley had a House there.

S. Mary
Priorie, and
church.

East from the Bishop of Winchester's house directly ouer against it, standeth a fayre church called saint Mary ouer the Rie, or Ouerie, that is ouer the water. This Church or some other in place thereof was of old time long before the conquest an house of sisters founded by a mayden named Mary, vnto the which house and sisters she left (as was left to her by her parents) the ouersight and profites of a Crosse ferrie or trauese ferrie ouer the Thames, there kept before that any bridge was builded. This house of sisters was after by Swithen, a noble Lady, conuerted vnto a colledge of Priests, who in place of the Ferrie builded a bridge of timber, and from time to time kept the same in good reparations, but lastlie the same bridge was builded of stone, and then in the yeare 1106. was this church againe founded for Channons Regular, by William Pont de le Arche and William Dauncy, Knights Normans.

Lib. Roffen.
Lib. Ber-
mondsey.

William Gifford Bishop of Winchester, was a good benefactor also, for he as some haue noted, builded the body of that church, in the yeare 1106. the seuenth of Henry the first.

The Canons first entered the said church, then Algodus was the first Prior.

King Henry the 1. by his Charter gaue them the Church of S. Margaret in Southwarke.

King Stephen confirmed the gift of king Henry, and also gaue the stone house, which was Williams de Ponte le Arche by Downegate.

This Priorie was burned about the yeare 1207. wherefore the Chanons did found an Hospital near vnto their Priory, where they celebrated vntill the Priory was repayred: which Hospitall was after by consent of Peter de la Roch Bishop of Winchester remoued into the land of Anicius Archdeacon of Surrey in the yeare 1228. a place where the water was more plentifull, and the ayre more holesome, and was dedicate to S. Thomas.

This Peter de Rupibus, or de la Roch, founded a large chapell of S. Mary Magdalen in the said church of S. Mary Ouerie, | which Chappel was after appointed to be the parish church for the inhabitants neare adioyning.

This church was againe newly builded in the raigne of Richard the second, and king H. the fourth.

John Gower Esquier, a famous Poet, was then an especial benefactor to that worke, and was there buried on the North side of the said church, in the chapple of S. Iohn, where hee founded a chauntrye, he lieth vnder a tombe of stone, with his image also of stone ouer him: The haire of his head aburne, long to his sholders, but curling vp, and a small forked beard, on his head a chaplet, like a coronet of foure Roses, an habite of purple, damasked downe to his feet, a collar of Esses, gold about his necke, vnder his head the likenes of three bookes, which hee compiled. The first named Speculum Meditantis, written in French: The second Vox clamantis penned in Latine: The third Confessio amantis written in English, and this last is printed, vox clamantis with his Cronica tripartita, and other both in latine and French neuer printed, I haue and doe possesse, but speculum meditantis I neuer saw, though heard thereof to be in Kent: beside on the wall where he lyeth, there was painted three virgins crowned, one of the which was named Charity, holding this deuise.

About Christmas next following, the church of the said Priory was purchased of the king by the inhabitantes of the Borough. Doctor Stephen Gardner Bishop of Winchester, putting to his helping hand, they made thereof a parrish church, for the parish<sup>1</sup> of *S. Now passing through saint Mary Ouers Close, (in possession S. Mary Ouers of the Lord Mountacute) and Pepper Alley into Long Southwarke, on the right hand thereof, the Market hill, where the leather is solde, there stode the late named parrish church of Saint | Margaret giuen to S. Mary Oueries by Henry the first, put downe and ioyned with the parrish of Saint Mary Magdalen, and vnited to the late dissolved Priorie Church of saint Mary Oury. Page 413

A part of this parish church of S. Margaret is now a Court, wherein the Assizes and sessions be kept, and the court of Admiralty is also there kept. One other part of the same church is now a prison called the Compter in Southwarke, &c.

Farther vp on that side, almost directly ouer against Saint Georges church, was sometime a large and most sumptuous house, builded by Charles Brandon late Duke of Suffolk, in the raig of Henry the eight, which was called Suffolke house, but comming afterwarde into the Kinges hands, the same was called Southwarke place, and a mint of coynage was there kept for the King.

To this place came king Edward the sixte, in the second of his raigne, from Hampton court, and dined in it. He at that time made Iohn Yorke one of the shiriffes of London knight, and then rode through the Citty to Westminster.

Queene Mary gaue this house to Nicholas He(a)th Archbishop of Yorke, and to his successors for euer, to be their Inne or lodging for their repaire to London, in recompence of Yorke house neare to Westminster, which King Henry her Father had taken from Cardinall Wolsey, and from the sea of Yorke.

Archbishop Heth solde the same house to a Marchant, or to Marchantes, that pulled it downe, solde the leade, stone, iron, &c. And in place thereof builded many small cottages of great rents to the encreasing of beggers in that Borough. The Archbishoppe bought Norwich house, or Suffolke place, neare vnto Charing Crosse, because it was neare vnto the Court, and left it to his successors. Now on the south side, to returne backe againe towards the bridge.ouer against this Suffolke place, is the parrish church of S. George, sometime pertayning to the Priorie of Barmondsey, by the gift of Thomas Arderne and Thomas his sonne, in the yeare 1122. There lie buried in this Church William Kirton Esquire, and his wiues, 1464.

Then is the white Lion, a Gaole so called, for that the same | was a common hosterie for the receit of trauellers by that signe: This house was first vsed as a Gaole within these fortie yeares last, since the which time the prisoners were once remoued thence to an house in Newtowne,<sup>1</sup> where they remayned for a short time and were returned backe againe to the fore-said White Lion, there to remayne as in the appointed Gaole for the countie of Surrey.

Next is the Gaole or prison of the kinges Bench, but of what antiquitie the same is I know not. For I haue read that the courts of the Kinges Bench and Chauncery haue oft times beene remoued from London to other places, and so hath likewise the Gayles that serue those Courts, as in the yeare 1304. Edward the first commaunded the Courts of the kinges Bench and the Exchequer which had remayned seuen yeares at Yorke, to bee remoued to their old places at London. And in the yeare 1387. the 11. of Richard the 2. Robert Trisilian chiefe Iustice came to the city of Couentrie, and there sate by the space of a moneth, as Iustice of the Kinges Benche, and caused to be indited in that Court, about the number of two thousand persons of that Country, &c.

Knighon.

It seemeth therefore, that for that time, the prison or Gayle of that court was not farre off. Also in the yeare 1392. the sixteenth of the same Richard, the Archbishop of Yorke being Lord Chauncelor, for good wil that he bare to his City, caused the kings Bench and chauncery to be remoued from London to Yorke, but ere long they were returned to London.

Then is the Marshalsey, an other gayle or prison, so called Marshalsey in Southwarke. as pertayning to the Marshalles of England. Of what continuance kept in Southwarke I haue not learned: but like it is, that the same hath beene remoueable, at the pleasure of the Marshalles: for I finde that in the yeare 1376, the fiftieth of Edwarde the third, Henry Percie (beeing Marshall) kept his prisoners in the Citie of London, where hauing committed one John Prendergast, of Norwich, contrarie to the liberties of the City of London, the Citizens, by perswasion of the Lord Fitzwalter theyr Standard-bearer, took Armour and ranne with great rage to the Marshalles Inne, brake vp the gates, brought out the prisoner, & conueyed him away, minding to haue brent the stocks in the middest of their citty, but they first sought for sir Henry Percy to haue | punished him, as Page 415 I haue noted in my Annales.

More, about the Feast of Easter next following, John Duke of Lancaster, hauing caused all the whole Naue of England to be gathered together at London: It chanced a certaine Esquier to kill one of the shipmen, which act the other shipmen taking in ill part, they brought their sute into the kings court of the Marshalsey which then as chaunced (sayth mine Author) was kept in Southwarke: but when they perceyued that Court to be so fauourable to the murtherer, and further that the kings warrant was also gotten for his pardon, they in greate fury ranne to the house, wherein the murtherer was imprisoned, brake into it, and brought forth the prisoner with his Giues on his legges, they thrust a knife to his heart, and sticked him, as if hee had beene a Hogge, after this they tyed a roape to his Giues, and drewe him to the gallowes, where when they had hanged him, as though they had done a great act, they caused the trumpets to be sounded before them to theyr ships, and there in great triumph they spent the rest of the day.

Also the rebels of Kent, in the yeare 1381. brake downe the Rebels of Kent brake vp the Marshalsey. houses of the Marshalsey, and Kinges Bench in Southwarke, tooke from thence the prisoners, brake downe the house of sir John Imworth, then Marshall of the Marshalsey, and Kings Bench, &c. After this in the yeare 1387. the eleuenth of Richard the second, the morrow after Bartholomew day, the king kept a great Councell in the Castle of Nottingham, and the Marshalsey of the king was then kept at Lughborrow by the space of sixe dayes or more. In the year 1443. sir Walter Man(n)y was Marshal of the Marshalsey, the 22. of Henry the sixt. William Brandon, Esquire, was Marshall in the eight of E. the 4. In the yeare 1504 the prisoners of the Marshalsey, then in Southwarke, brake out, & many of them being taken, were executed, especially such as had beene committed for Felony or treason.

Geff. Chaucer.

From thence towards London bridge on the same side, be many fayre Innes, for receipt of trauellers, by these signes, the Spurre, Christopher, Bull, Queenes head, Tabarde, George, Hart, Kinges Head, &c. Amongst the which, the most auncient is the Tabard, so called of the signe, which as we now tearme it, | is of a Iacquit, or sleeuelesse coat, whole before, open on both sides, with a square coller, winged at the shoulders: a stately garment of old time, commonly worne of Noble men and others, both at home and abroad in the warres, but then (to wit in the warres) their Armes embrodered, or otherwise depict vpon them, that euery man by his coate of Armes might be knowne from others: but now these Tabardes are onely worne by the Heraulds, and be called their coates of Armes in seruice: for the Inne of the Tabard, Geffrey Chaucer Esquire, the most famous Poet of England, in commendation thereof writeth thus.

In Southwarke at the Tabert, as I lay,
Readie to wend(en) on my Pilgrimage,
To Canterburie with full deuout courage,
That night was comen into the Hosterie,
Well nine and twentie in a companie,
Of sundrie folke, by aduenture yfall
In fellowship, and Pilgrimes were they all,
That toward Canterburie woulden ride,
The stables and (the) chambers weren wide,
And well we were(n) eased at the best, &c.*

Within this Inne was also the lodging of the Abbot of The Abbot of Hide, (by the Citie of Winchester) a faire house for him and Hide his lodging. his traine, when he came to the Citie to Parliament, &c.

And then Theeues lane by S. Thomas Hospitall: the hos- Hospitall of S. Thomas. pitall of Saint Thomas, first founded by Richard Prior of Bermondsey, in the Selerers ground agaynst the wall of the Monasterie, in the yeare 1213. He named it the Almerie, or house of Almes for conuarts and poore children, for the which ground the Prior ordained that the Almoner should pay ten shillings foure pence yearlye to the Selerer at Michaelmas.

But Peter de Rupibus, Bishop of Winchester, in the yeare 1215 founded the same againe more fully for Canons Regular, Lib. S. Marie Overy. S. Thomas Hospitall the second time founded. in place of the first hospitall: he increased the rent thereof to three hundred fortie foure pound by the yeare: thus was this Hospitall | holden of the Prior and Abbot of Bermondsey, till Page 417 the yeare 1428, at which time a composition was made between Thomas Thetford, Abbot of Bermondsey, and Nicholas Buckland, master of the sayde Hospitall of Saint Thomas, for all the landes and Tenements which were holden of the sayde Abbot and Couent in Southwarke, or elsewhere, for the olde Rent to bee payd vnto the said Abbot.

There be the Monuments in this Hospitall Church, of sir Robert Chamber Knight, William Fines Lord Say, Richarde Chaucer, John Gloucester, Adam Atwood, John Ward, Michaell Cambridge, William West, John Golding Esquires, John Benham, George Kirkes, Thomas Knighton, Thomas Baker Gentlemen, Robert sonne to Sir Thomas Fleming, Agnes wife to Sir Walter Dennis knight, daughter and one of the heyres of Sir Robert Danuars, John Euarey Gentleman, &c.

This Hospitall was by the visitors, in the yeare 1538. valued at 266 pound seuateene shillings sixe pence, and was surrendered to Henrie the eight, in the thirtieth of his raigne.

In the yeare 1552 the Citizens of London, hauing purchased the voyde suppressed Hospitall of Saint Thomas in Southwarke, in the Moneth of Iuly, began the reparations thereof, for poore, impotent, lame, and diseased people, so that in the Moneth of Nouember next following, the sicke and poore people were taken in. And in the yeare 1553. on the tenth of April, King Edward the sixt, in the seuenth of his raigne, The 3. foundation of S. Thomas Hospitall by the Cittizens of London. Gift of E. the 6 to the hospital of S. Thomas in Southwark.

gaue to the Maior, Comminaltie, and Citizens of London, to bee a workehouse for the poore and idle persons of the Citie, his house of Bridewell, and seauen hundred Markes landes of the Sauoy rentes, which Hospitall hee had impressed, with all the beddes, bedding, and other furniture belonging to the same, towards the maintenance of the said workehouse of Bridewell, and of this Hospitall of Saint Thomas in Southwarke. This gift, the King confirmed by his Charter, dated the twentie sixe of Iune, next following, and willed it to be called the Kings Hospitall in Southwarke.

The Church of this Hospitall, which of olde time serued for the | tenements neare adioyning and pertaining to the saide Hospitall, remaineth as a Parish Church.

But now to come to saint Olaues street: on the Banke of the riuer of Thames, is the parish church of saint Olaue, a faire and meetely large Church, but a farre larger Parrish, especially of Aliens or straungers, and poore people: in which Church, there lieth intombed sir John Burcettur knight. 1466.

Ouer against this Parish church, on the south side the street, was sometime one great house builded of stone, with arched gates, (which) pertained to the Prior of Lewes in Sussex, and was his lodging when he came to London: it is now a common Hosterie for trauellers, and hath to signe the Walnut tree.

Then East from the said Parish Church of saint Olaue is a Key. In the yeare 1330, by the licence of Simon Swanlond Maior of London, (it was) builded (by) Isabell widow to Hamond Goodchepe. And next therevnto was then a great house of stone and tymber, belonging to the Abbot of saint Augustine without the walles of Canterburie, which was an auncient peece of worke, and seemeth to be one of the first builded houses on that side the riuer, ouer against the citie: It was called the Abbots Inne of saint Augustine in Southwarke, and was somtime holden of the Earles of Warren and Surrey, as appeareth by a deede, made 1281. which I haue read, and may be Englished thus:

Wil. Thorne.

To all to whome this present writing shall come, Iohn earle Warren sendeth greeting. Know ye that wee haue altogether remised and quiteclaimed for vs and our heires for euer, to

Nicholas Abbot of saint Augustines of Canterburie, and the Couent of the same, and their successors, suite to our court of Southwarke, which they owe vnto vs, for al that Messuage and houses theron builded, and all their appurtenances, which they haue of our fee in Southwarke, scituate vpon the Thames, between the Bridge house and church of saint Olaue. And the said Messuage, with the buildings thereon builded, and all their appurtenances to them and their successors, we haue granted in perpetuall almes to hold of vs, and our heyres for the same: saving the seruice due to any other persons, if any such bee, then to vs: and for this remit and graunt, the sayde abbot and Couent haue giuen vnto vs fve shillings of rent | yearly in Page 419
Southwarke, and haue receiued vs and our heires in al benefices which shall be in their church for euer. This sute of court, one William Graspeis was bound to do to the said Earle, for the said Messuage: and heretofore to acquit in all things the church of S. Augustine, against the said Earle.

This house of late time belonged to sir Anthony Sentlegar, Sentlegar-house. then to Warham Sentlegar, &c. And is now called Sentlegar house, but diuided into sundrie tenements. Next is the Bridgehouse, so called as being a storehouse for stone, timber, The Bridge house. or whatsoeuer pertaining to the building or repairing of London bridge.

This house seemeth to haue taken beginning with the first founding of the bridge either of stone or timber: it is a large plot of ground, on the banke of the riuier Thames: containing diuers large buildings, for stowage of things necessary towards reparation of the said bridge.

There are also diuers Garners, for laying vp of Wheate, and other Grayners for seruice of the Citie, as neede requireth. Moreouer, there be certaine Ouens builded, in number tenne: of which sixe be very large, the other foure being but halfe so bigge. These were purposely made to bake out the bread corne of the sayd Grayners, to the best aduantage for reliefe of the poore Citizens, when neede should require. Sir Iohn Throstone knight, sometime an Embrotheror, then a Goldsmith, one of the Shiriffes 1516. gaue by his Testament towards the making of these Ouens two hundreth poundes: which thing was performed by his Executors, Sir Iohn Munday

Next, was the Abbot of Battailes Inne, betwixt the Bridge-house and Battaile bridge, likewise on the banke of the Riuer of Thames: the walkes and gardens therevnto appertaining, on the other side of the way, before the gate of the said house, and was called the Maze: there is now an Inne, called the Flower de Luce, for that the signe is three Flower de Lucas. Much other buildings of small tenements are thereon buidled, replenished with strangers and other, for the most part poore people.

Then is Battaile bridge, so called of Battaile Abbey, for that it standeth on the ground, and ouer a water course (flowing out of Thames) pertayning to that Abbey, and was therefore both buidled and repaired by the Abbots of that house, as being hard adioyning to the Abbots lodging.

Beyond this bridge is Bermondsey street, turning South, in the South end whereof was sometime a Priory, or Abbey, of saint Sauior, called Bermonds Eye in Suthwarke, founded by Alwin Childe, a Citizen of London, in the yeare 1081.

Peter, Richard, Obstert, and Vmbalde, Monkes de Charitate, came vnto Bermondsey, in the yeare 1089, and Peter was made first Prior there, by appointment of the Pryor of the house called Charity in France: by which meanes, this Priory of Bermondsey (being a Cell to that in France) was accounted a Priory of Aliens.

In the yeare 1094. deceased Alwin Childe founder of this house. Then William Rufus gaue to the Monkes his mannor of Bermondsey, with the appurtenances, and buidled for them there a new great Church.

Robert Blewet, Bishop of Lincolne (king Williams Chancellor) gaue them the mannor of Charlton, with the appurtenances. Also Geffrey Martell, by the graunt of Geffrey Magnaule, gaue them the land of Halingbury, and the tithe of Alferton, &c.

More, in the yeare 1122. Thomas of Arderne and Thomas his sonne gaue to the Monkes of Bermonds Eye the Church of saint George in Southwarke, &c.

In the yeare 1165. King Henry the second confirmed to them the hyde or territory of Southwarke, & Laygham Wadden, with the land of Coleman, &c. Hide of Southwarke to the Monkes of Bermondsey.

In the yeare 1371. the Prior(ie)s of Aliens throughout England being seized into the kings hands, Richard Denton, an English man, was made Prior of Bermondsey: to whome was committed the custody of the said Priory, by the letters patents of king Edward the third, sauing to the king the aduowsons of Churches.

In the yeare 1380. the fourth of Richard the second, this priory was made a Denison (or free English) for the fine of 200. Markes, paid to the Kings Hanaper in the Chauncery. In the yeare 1399. Iohn Attelborough Prior of Bermondsey was made the first Abbot of that house by Pope Boniface the ninth, at the sute of king Richard the second. Page 421 Bermonds Eye made an Abbey.

In the yeare 1417. Thomas Thetford Abbot of Bermondsey, held a Plea in Chauncery against the king, for the Mannors of Preston, Bermondsey, and Stone, in the county of Summer-set, in the which sute the Abbot preuailed and recouered against the king. Abbot of Bermondsey held Plea against the King, and preuailed.

In the yeare 1539. this Abbey was valued to dispend by the yeare, foure hundred seuentie foure pound, fourteene shillings foure pence halfe penny, and was surrendered to Henry the eight, the 31. of his raigne: the Abbey church was then pulled downe by sir Thomas Pope knight, and in place thereof, a goodly house builded of stone and timber, now pertayning to the Earles of Sussex.

There are buried in that church Leofstane, Prouost, shriue or Domes man of London 1115. Sir William Bowes knight, and Dame Elizabeth his wife. Sir Tho. Pikeworth knight, Dame Anne Audley: George sonne to Iohn Lord Audley, Io. Winkefield Esquier. Sir Nicholas Blonket knight, Dame Bridget wife to William Trussell, Holgraue Baron of the Exchequer, &c. Iohn Bauow.

Next vnto this Abbey church, standeth a proper Church of saint Mary Magdalen, builded by the priors of Bermondsey, Parish church of Saint Mary Magdalen.

This Borough vpon petition made by the Citizens of London, to E. the third<sup>1</sup> in the first yeare of his raigne, was, for diuers causes, by Parliament granted to them for euer, yeelding into the Exchequer the Fee firme of 10. li. by the yeare: which grant was confirmed by E. the 3. who in the 3 of his raigne, gaue them license to | take a tole towards the charge of pauing the said Borough with stone. H. the 4. confirmed the grant of his predecessors: so did E. the 4. &c.

Moreouer, he gaue them the Lordship and Mannor of Southwarke, with all members & rights thereof, late pertayning to the Monastery of Bermondsey. And all messuages, places, buildings, rents, Courts, Waffes and streyes, to the same appertaining, in the County of Surrey, except as is before excepted. He also granted vnto them, his Manor & borough of Southwarke, with all the members, rights & appurtenances, late of the possession of the Archbishop of Canterbury & his sea in Southwarke. Moreover for the summe of 500. marks, he granted to the said Maior & Comminalty, and their successors, in & through the borough and towne of Southwarke: and in al the parishes of S. Sauior, *S. The same premisses to be holden of the Mannor of East Greenwich, in the County of Kent, by fealty in free socage. Dated at Westminster the 23. day of April, in the 4. of his raigne. All which was also confirmed by Parliament, &c. And the same yeare | in the Whitson weeke, in a Court of Aldermen kept at the Guildhall of London, sir Iohn Aylophe knight was sworne the first Alderman of the Bridge ward without, and made vp the number of 26. This Borough, at a subsidy to the king, yeeldeth about 1000. Marks, or 800.li. which is more then any one Cittie in England paieth, except the City of London. And also the Muster of men in this Borough doth likewise in number surpasse all other cities, except London. And thus much for the Borough of Southwarke: one of the 26. wards of London, which hath an Alderman, Deputies 3. and a Bayliffe. Common Councill none. Constables 16. Scauingers 6. The Suburbes without the Walles of the said Citie, briefly touched. As also without the Liberties, more at large described.

HAUING spoken of this citie, the originall, & increase, by degrees. The Walles, Gates, Ditch, Castles, Towers, Bridges, the Schools and houses of learning. Of the orders and customes, sports and pastimes. Of the honour of Citizens, and worthines of men. And last of all, how the same Citie is diuided into parts & Wards. And how the same be bounded. And what Monuments of antiquity, or ornaments of building, be in euery of them, as also in the Borough of Southwarke: I am next to speake briefly of the Suburbs, as wel without the gates, & wals, as without the liberties. And of the monuments in them.

Liber Albus.

Suburbe without the Postern by the Tower of London. Wapping in the Woze.

Concerning the estate of the Suburbs of this Citie, in the raigne of H. the 2. Fitz Stephen hath these words. *Vpwards on the west (saith he) is the kings Pallace, which is an incomparable building, rising with a wawmure & bulwark. Aloft vpon the riuer, 2 miles from the wall of the city, but yet conioyned with a continuall Suburb. On all sides, without the houses of the Suburbs, are the citizens gardens & orchards, planted with trees, both large, sightly, & adioyning together. On the north side, are pastures, & plain meadows, with brooks running through them, turning water mills, with a pleasant noise. Not far off, is a great forrest, a well wooded chase, hauing good couert for Harts, Buckes, Does, Boores & wild Bulles. The corne fields are not of a hungry sandie mould, but as the fruitfull fields of Asia: yeelding plentifull encrease, & filling the barnes with corne. There are near London on the north side, especiall welles in the Suburbs, sweet, holesome, and cleare. Amongst which, Holywell, Clarkenwell, and saint Clemons well, are most famous, & most frequented by schollers & youthes of the City in summer euenings, when they walke forth to take the aire. Thus farre out of Fitz Stephen, for the Suburbs at that time. The 2. of H. the 3. the Forest of Midlesex and the Warren of Stanes were disaforested: since the which time, the suburbs about London hath bin also mightily increased with buildings: for first, to begin in the East, by the Tower of London, is the Hospitall of saint Katheren, founded by Matilde the Queene, wife to King Stephen, as is afore shewed in Portsoken ward, from this precinct of S. Katheren to Wapping in the Woze<sup>1</sup>, the vsuall place of execution for hanging of Pirats & sea Rouers, at the* low water marke there to remaine, till three tides had ouerflowed them, was neuer a house standing within these 40 yeares: but since the gallowes being after remooued farther off, a continuall streete, or filthy straight passage, with Alleyes of small tenements or cottages builded, inhabited by saylors victualers, along by the riuer of Thames, almost to Radcliff, a good mile from the Tower. On the east side, and by north of the tower, lieth East Smithfield, Hogs streete, and tower hill, and east from them both was the new abbey called Grace, founded by E. the 3. From thence Radcliffe, vp East smithfield, by Nightingall lane (which runneth south to the Hermitage, a Brewhouse so called of an Hermite sometime being there) beyond this lane to the Mannor of Bramley (called in record of R. the 2. Villa east smithfield, & Villa de Bramley) and to the Mannor of Shadwell, belonging to the Deane of Pauls, there hath been of late, in place of Elme trees many small tenements | rayseed, towards Radcliffe: And Radcliffe it selfe hath beene also encreased in building eastward (in place where I haue knowne a large high way, with fayre Elme trees on both sides) that the same hath now taken hold of Lime Hurst, Lime Host, corruptly called Lime house, sometime distant a mile from Radcliffe. Hauing said this much for building, at Wapping, East Smithfield, Bramley and Shadwell, all on the south side of the high way to Radcliff: now one note on the North side, also concerning pirates. I reade that in the yeare 1440. in the lent season, certaine persons with 6. ships brought from beyond the seas fish to victuaile the city of London, which fish when they had deliuered, and were returning homeward, a number of sea theeues, in a barge, in the night came vpon them, when they were a sleep in their vessels, riding at anker on the riuer Thames, and slew them, cut their throates, cast them ouer boord, tooke their money, and drowned their ships for that no man should espie or accuse them. Two of these theeues were after taken, and hanged in chaynes vpon a gollowes set vpon a rayseed hill, for that purpose made, in the field beyond East Smithfield, so that they might be seene farre into the riuer Thames. The first building at Ratcliffe in my youth (not to be forgotten) was a fayre free schoole, and Almes houses, founded by Auice

Gibson, wife to Ni. Gibson Grocer, as before I haue noted. But of late yeares ship-wrights and (for the most part) other marine men, haue builded many large and strong houses for themselves, and smaller for Saylers, from thence almost to Poplar, and so to Blake wal. Now for Tower hil, the plaine there is likewise greatly diminished by Merchants, for building of small tenements: from thence towards Aldgate was the Mineries, whereof I haue spoken.

From Aldegate east, againe lieth a large street, replenished with buildings, to wit on the north side, the parish church of S. Bottolph, and so other buildings to Hog lane, & to the barres on both sides.

Suburbe without Aldegate.

Also without the barres, both the sides of the streete bee pestered with Cottages, and Allies, euen vp to White chappel church: and almost halfe a mile beyond it, into the common field: all which ought to lye open & free for all men. But this common field, I say, being sometime the beauty of this City on that part, is so incroched vpon by building of filthy Cottages, and with other purprestures, | inclosures and Lay-stalles (notwithstanding all proclamations and Acts of Parliament made to the contrary) that in some places it scarce remaineth a sufficient high way for the meeting of Carriages and droues of Cattell, much lesse is there any faire, pleasant or wholesome way for people to walke on foot: which is no small blemish to so famous a city, to haue so vnsauery and vnseemly an entry or passage thereunto.

chappell.

Now of white Chappell church somewhat, and then backe againe to Aldegate. This church is as it were a chappel of ease to the parrish of Stebinhith, & the Parson of Stebinhith hath the gift thereof: which being first dedicated to the name of God, and the blessed Virgin, is now called S. Mary Matfellow. About the year 1428 the 6. of King H. the 6. a deuout widow of that parish had long time cherished, and brought vp of Almes, a certayne Frenchman or Briton borne, which most vnkindly and cruelly in a night murdered the said widow sleeping in her bed, and after fled with such Iewels and other stuffe of hers as he might carry: but he was so freshly pursued that for feare he tooke the church of Saint George in Southwarke, and challenged priuiledge of Sanctuary there, and so abiured the kings land. Then the Constables (hauing charge of him) brought him into London, intending to haue conuained him Eastward, but so soone as he was come into the parish where before hee had committed the murther, the wiues cast vpon him so much filth and ordure of the streete, that (notwithstanding the best resistance made by the Constables) they slew him out of hand: and for this feate, it hath beene sayd, that parish to haue purchased that name of saint Mary Matfellow, but I finde in Record, the same to be called Villa beata Mariæ de Matfellow in the 21. of Richard the second.

More, we reade that in the yeare 1336. the 10. of E. the 3. the Bishop of Alba, Cardinall, and Parson of Stebunhith, Procurator generall in England, presented a Clarke to be Parson in the church of blessed Mary called Matfellow, without Aldegate of London, &c.

Now againe from Aldegate northwest to Bishops gate, lyeth Hounds ditch, and so to Bishops gate.

North and by east from Bishops gate, lieth a large street or high way, hauing on the west side therof, the parish church of S. Buttolphe. | Suburbe without Bishops gate.

Then is the Hospitall of S. Mary of Bethelem, founded by a Cittizen of London, and as before is shewed, vp to the Barres, without the which is Norton fall gate, a libertie so called, belonging to the Deane of Powles. Thence vp to the late dissolved Priory of S. Iohn Baptist, called Holywell, a house of Nuns, of old time founded by a Bishop of London: Page 427
Stephen Grausend Bishop of London, about the yeare 1318 was a benefactor therevnto, reedified by sir Thomas Louell knight of the Garter, who builded much there, in the raignes of H. the 7. and of H. the 8. Hee endowed this house with fayre lands, and was there buried in a large chappel by him builded for that purpose. This Priory was valued at the suppression to haue of lands 293.li. by year, and was surrendred 1539. the 31. of H. the 8. The church thereof being pulled downe, many houses haue been builded for the lodgings of noble men, of strangers borne and other. Norton fall gate. Priory of S. Iohn Baptist at Holywell.

of this field, betweene it and the Church of Saint Leonarde in Shoreditch, sometime stood a Crosse, now a Smithes Forge, diuiding three wayes: forth right the high way is builded vpon eyther side, more then a good flight shoote, towards Kinges land, Newington, Totanham, &c.

Hoxton.

On the left hand is Ealdestreete, which reacheth West to a stone Crosse, ouer against the North end of Golding lane, and so to the ende of Goswell streete. On the right hand of this Ealdestreete, not farre from Soers ditch, but on the North side thereof, is Hoxton, a large streete with houses on both sides, and is a Prebend belonging to Powles church in London, but of Soers ditch parish.

On the right hand beyond Soersditch church toward Hackney, are some late builded houses vpon the common soyle, for it was a leystall, but those houses belong to the parish of Stebunhith.

On the other side of the high way from Bishopsgate and Hounds ditch is the Dolphin, a common Inne for receipt of trauellers, then a house builded by the L. John Powlet, then Fishers Folly, and so vp to the west end of Berwardes Lane, is a continuall building of small cottages, then the Hospitall called S. Mary Spittle hard within the Barres, whereof I haue spoken in Bishopsgate warde.

From the which bars towards Soersditch on that side, is all along a continuall building of small and base tenements, for the most part lately erected.

Rotten Row or Russel row.

Amongst the which (I meane of the auncientest building) was one row of proper small houses with Gardens for poore decayed people, there placed by the Prior of the said Hospitall: euery one Tenant whereof paid one penny rent by the yeare at Christmas, and dined with the Prior on Christmas day: but after the suppression of the Hospitall, these houses for want of reparations in few yeares were so decayed, that it was called Rotten Rowe, and the poore worne out (for there came no new in their place): the houses, for a small portion of money, were solde from Goddard to Russell a Draper, who new builded them, and let them out for rent enough, taking also large Fines of the Tenantes, neare as much as the houses cost him purchase, and building: for hee made his bargaines so hardly with all men, that both Carpenter, Brickelayer, and Playsterer, were by that Worke vndone. And yet in honour of his name, it is now called Russels Row.

Now for the parrish of S. Leonards at Soersditch, the Archdeacon of London is alwayes Parson thereof, and the Cure is serued by a Vicar. In this church haue beene diuers honourable persons buried, as appeareth by monuments yet remayning:

to Thomas Lord Itchingham, widdow to William Blount, sonne and heyre to Walter Blount the first Lord Mountioy, which Margaret dyed 1481.

Gentlemen of Kent, but he being proued false, was attaint, condemned and had iudgement to be drawne, hanged and quartered, which was done, his head set on London bridge, and his quarters on the gates: this iustice was done, according to the 16. of Deuteronomie. 'The iudges shall make diligent inquisition, and if the witnes bee founde false, and to haue giuen false witnes against his brother, then shall they doe vnto him, as he had thought to doe vnto his brother,' &c. I reade of the Kinges Mannor Vocatus<sup>1</sup> Shorditch place in the parrish of Hackney, but how it tooke that name I know not, and therfore I wil turn backe from Shoreditch Crosse to Bethelam-Crosse, and so passe through that Hospitall into the More field, which lyeth without the Posterne called Moregate.

This field of old time was called the More. As appeareth by the Charter of William Conqueror to the Colledge of S. Martin declaring a running water to passe into the Citie from the same More. Also Fitzstephen writeth of this More, saying thus: When | the great Fenne or More, which watereth the walles on the north side is frozen, &c. This Fen or More field stretching from the wall of the City betwixt Bishopsgate and the posterne called Cripples gate to Fensbery, and to Holy well, continued a wast and vnprofitable ground a long time, so that the same was all letten for foure markes the yeare, in the raigne of Edward the 2: but in the yeare 1415. the 3. of Henry the 5. Thomas Fawconer Mayor, as I haue shewed, caused the wall of the Citty to be broken toward the said More, and builded the Posterne called Moregate, for the ease of the Cittizens to walke that waye vppon Causeyes towardes Iseldon and Hoxton: moreouer he caused the ditches of the Citie, and other the ditches from Soers ditch to Deepe ditch, by Bethelam into the More ditch, to be new cast and cleansed, by meanes whereof the sayde Fenne or More was greatly dreyned and dryed: but shortly after, to wit in 1477, Raph Ioceline Mayor, for repaying the Wall of the Citty, caused the sayde More to bee searched for Clay and Bricke to bee brente there, &c. by which meanes this field was made the worse for a long time.

beyonde the Lordship of Finsbery, were destroyed. And of them was made a playne field for Archers to shoote in. And in the yeare 1512. Roger Atchley Mayor caused diuers dikes to be cast, and made to drein the waters of the sayde More fields, with bridges arched ouer them, and the groundes about to bee leuelled, whereby the sayd felde was made somewhat more commodious, but yet it stode full of noysome waters : Whereupon in the yeare 1527. sir Thomas Semor Mayor caused diuers sluces to be made, to conuey the sayd waters ouer the Towne ditch, into the course of Walbrooke, and so into the Thames : and by these degrees was this Fenne or More at length made main and hard ground, which before being ouergrowne with Flagges, sedges and rushes, serued to no vse, since the which time, also the further groundes beyonde Fensbury Court haue been so ouerheightned with Laystalles of dung, that now three windmilles are thereon set : the ditches be filled vp, and the bridges ouerwhelmed. |

And now concerning the inclosures of common grounds about this cittie, whereof I mind not much to argue, Edwarde Hall setteth downe a note of his time, to wit in the fift or sixte of Henry the eight : before this time sayth hee, the inhabitantes of the Townes aboute London, as Iseldone, Hoxton, Shorsditch and others, had so inclosed the common fieldes with hedges, and ditches, that neyther the yong men of the City might shoote, nor the auncient persons walke for theyr pleasures in those fieldes, but that either their bowes and arrowes were taken away or broken, or the honest persons arrested or indighted : saying, that no Londoner ought to goe out of the City, but in the high Waies. This saying so grieved the Londoners, that suddainlie this yeare a great number of the Citie assembled themselues in a morning, and a Turner in a fooles coate came crying through the Citty, shouelles and spades, shouelles and spades : so many of the people followed, that it was a wonder to behold, and within a short space all the hedges about the City were cast down, and the diches filled vp, and euery thing made plaine, such was the diligence of these workmen : the kinges counsell hearing of this assembly came to the gray Fryers, & sent for the Mayor and counsell of the city to know the cause, which declared to them the iniurie and annoying done to the citizens, and to their liberties, which though they wold not seeke disorderly to redresse, yet the comminalty & yong persons could not be stayed thus to remedy the same. When the kings counsell had heard their answere, they dissimuled the mater & commanded the Mayor to see that no other thing were attempted, but that they should forthwith call home the yonger sort : who hauing speedily atchieued their desire, returned home before the Kings Councell, and the Mayor departed without more harme : after which time (sayeth Hall) these fieldes were neuer hedged : but now wee see the thing in worse case than euer, by meanes of inclosure for Gardens, wherein are builded many fayre summer houses, and as in other places of the Suburbes, some of them like Midsommer Pageantes, with Towers, Turrets, and Chimney tops, not so much for vse or profite, as for shewe and pleasure, bewraying the vanity of mens mindes, much vnlike to the disposition of the ancient Cittizens, who delighted in | the building of Hospitals, and Almes houses for the poore, and therein both employed their wits, and spent their wealthes in preferment of the common commoditie of this our Citie.

But to come backe againe to Moregate, and from thence west through a narrow lane called the Posterne, because it hath at eyther end a doore to be shut in the night season, betwixt the More ditch inclosed with bricke for Tenter yardes, and the Gardens of the sayd More felde, to More lane, a part of the Suburbe without Creplesgate : without this Posterne called Cripplesgate also lay a part of the sayde More euen to the Riuer of the Wels, as in another place I haue shewed, and no houses were there builded till the latter end of the raigne of William the Conqueror, and of his sonne William Rufus : about which times some fewe houses being there builded along East and West, thwart before the said gate, one Alfune builded for the inhabitants a Parish Church, which is of Saint
Giles, somewhat west from the sayde gate, and is now on the banke of the towne ditch, and so was there a street since called Forestreet, as standing before the gate.

Parish church
of S. Giles.

This Alfune, in the raigne of Henrie the first, became the first Hospitaler of S. Barilemewes Hospitall in Smithfield, as in an other place I haue noted. And this Parish Church of S. Giles being at the first a small thing, stood in place where now standeth the Vicarage house: but hath beene since at diuerse times much enlarged, according as the Parish hath increased, and was at the length newly builded in place where now it standeth. But the same new church being large, strongly builded, and richly furnished with ornaments, was in the year 1545. by casualtie of fire sore burnt and consumed, notwithstanding it was againe within a short space of time repayred, as now it sheweth.

Some little distance from the east end of this Church, standeth a fayre Conduit castellated in Forestreet. Then had yee a Bosse of sweet water in the wall of the churchyard, lately made a pompe, but already decayed.

Then had yee a fayre Poole of sweete water neare to the Church of saint Giles, wherein Anne of Lodbery was drowned, as I haue before declared.

In the East ende of Forestreete is More lane: then next is | Page 433
Grubstreete, of late yeares inhabited for the most part by Grubstreet.
Bowyers, Fletchers, Bowstring makers, and such like, now little occupied, Archerie giuing place to a number of bowling Allies, and Dicing houses, which in al places are increased, and too much frequented.

This street stretcheth North to Euerades Well street, which Euerades Well thwarteth it to White Crosse streete. The next from Forestreete North is White Crosse street, likewise extending it selfe vp to the West ende of Euerades Well streete, and from the end thereof to Ealdstreete.

From the west end of Forestreete lyeth Red crosse street, from the which Crosse on the right hand East lyeth Beech lane, and reacheth to the White crosse streete. From Red Crosse north lyeth Golding lane, which stretcheth vp to a Golding lane.
Crosse in Ealdestreet, which Golding lane on both the sides is replenished with many tenements of poore people.

On the left hand and west of the Red Crosse lyeth a streete of old time called Houndes ditch, and of later time named Barbican, of such cause as I haue before noted. And thus haue you all the Suburbe without, Creplegate, being almost altogether in the Parish of S. Giles, which hath more then 1800. Householdiers, and aboue 4000. Communicants.

Suburbe without Aldersgate.

Without Aldersgate on the left hand is the Parish Church of S. Buttolph, on the North side of the which church lyeth a way called little Britane streete, towards the Priorie of Saint Bartholomew in Smithfield, but the high way without Aldersgate runneth straight North from the said gate vnto Houndes ditch or Barbican streete on the right hand, and Long lane on the left hand which runneth into Smithfield.

Then from the farther ende of Aldersgate streete, straight North to the Barre, is called Goswell street, replenished with smal tenements, cottages, and Allies, Gardens, banquetting houses, and bowling places.

Beyond these bars, leauing the Charterhouse on the left hand or the west side, the way stretcheth vp towards Iseldon, and on the right hand, or East side, at a Red Crosse turneth into Ealdstreete, so called, for that it was the old high way from Aldersgate streete | for the Northeast parts of England before Bishopsgate was builded, which streete runneth East to a Smithes Forge, sometime a Crosse before Shoreditch Church, from whence the passengers and Carriages were to turne North to Kings land, Tottenham, Waltham, Ware, &c.

Hospital without Aldersgate.

There was sometime in this suburbe without Aldersgate an Hospitall for the poore, but an Alien of Clunie, a French order, and therefore suppressed by king Henrie the fift, who gaue the house with lands and goods to the parish of saint Buttolph, and a brotherhoode of the Trinitie was there founded, which was afterwards suppressed by Henry the 8. or Edward the sixt.

The Mount.

There is at the farthest north corner of this Suburbe a windmill which was sometime by a Tempest of winde ouerthrowne, and in place thereof a Chappell was builded by Queene Katherine (first wife of Henrie the eight,) who named it the Mount of Caluerie, because it was of Christs passion, and was in the end of Henry the eight pulled downe, and a Windmill newly set vp as afore.

Suburbe without Newgate.

Without Newgat lyeth the West and by North Suburbe, on the right hand or Northside whereof betwixt the said gate, and the Parish of saint Sepulchre turneth a way towards west

Smith field, called as I haue shewed Giltspurre streete, or Knyghtriders street, then is Smithfield it selfe, compassed about with buildings as I haue before declared in Faringdon ward without.

And without the barre of West Smithfield lyeth a large street or way, called of the house of S. Iohn there, S. Iohns S. Iohns street. streete, and stretcheth towards Iseldon, on the right hand whereof stode the late dissolued Monasterie, called the Charterhouse, founded by sir Walter Manny knight, a stranger Charterhouse. borne, Lord of the towne of Manny in the Dioces of Cambrey, beyond the seas, who for seruice done to king Edward the third was made knight of the Garter. This house he founded upon this occasion. A great Pestilence entring this Iland, began first in Dorsetshire, then proceeded into Deuonshire, Somerset shire, Gloucester shire, and Oxforde shire, and at length came to London, and ouerspred all England, so wasting the people, that scarce the tenth person of all sortes was left aliue, and Churchyards were not sufficient to receiue the dead | but men were forced to chuse out certain fields for Page 435 burials, wherevpon Raph Stratford Bishop of London in the yeare 1348. bought a peece of ground called no mans land, which No mans land. he inclosed with a wall of Bricke and dedicated for buriall of the deade, builded therevpon a proper Chappell, which is now enlarged and made a dwelling house, and this burying plot is become a fayre Garden, retaining the old name of Pardon Pardon church yard by the Charterhouse. Churchyard.

About this in the yeare 1349. the said sir Walter Manny in respect of daunger that might befall in this time of so great a plague and infection, purchased thirteene Acres and a rode of ground adioyning to the said no mans land, and lying in a place called Spittle Croft, because it belonged to S. Bartilmewes Hospitall, since that called the new Church Haw, and caused it to be consecrated by the said Bishop of London to the vse of burials.

In this plot of ground there was in that yeare more then 50000. persons buried, as I haue reade in the Charters of Edward the third: Also I haue seene and read an Inscription fixed on a stone Crosse, sometime standing in the same churchyard and hauing these wordes: Anno Domini 1349. regnante

magna pestilentia, consecratum fuit hoc Cæmeterium, in quo & infra septa presentis monasterii, sepulta fuerunt mortuorum corpora plusquam quinquaginta millia, præter alia multa abhinc usque ad presens, quorum animabus propitiatur deus Amen. In consideration of the number of Christian people here buried, the sayd sir Walter Manny caused first a Chappell to be builded, where for the space of twentie three yeares offerings were made, and it is to be noted that aboue 100000. bodies of Christian people had in that Churchyard beene buried, for the sayde knight had purchased that place for the buriall of poore people, traualers and other that were diseased to remaine for euer, whervpon an order was taken for the auoyding of contention betweene the parsons of Churches and that house, to wit, that the bodies should be had vnto the Church where they were Parishioners, or died, and after the funerall seruice done, had to the place where they should be buried. And the yeare 1371. hee caused there to bee founded an house of Carthusian Monks, which he willed to be called the Salutation, and that one of the Monkes should be called | Prior, and he gaue them the saide place of thirteene Acres and a Rode of land, with the Chappell, and houses there builded for their habitation: he also gaue them the three Acres of land lying without the walles on the North part betwixt the landes of the Abbot of Westminster, and the lands of the Prior of S. Iohn, (which three Acres were purchased, inclosed, and dedicated by Raph Stratford Bishop of London, as is afore shewed,) remained till our time, by the name of Pardon Churchyard, and serued for burying of such as desperately ended their liues, or were executed for Felonies, who were fetched thither vsually in a close cart, bayled ouer and couered with blacke, hauing a plaine white Crosse thwarting, and at the fore end a Saint Iohns Crosse without, and within a Bell ringing by shaking of the cart, whereby the same might be heard when it passed, and this was called the Fraerie Cart, which belonged to Saint Iohns, and had the priuiledge of Sanctuarie. In this Charter house were the Monuments of the sayd sir Walter Manny, & Margaret his wife, Marmaduke Lumley, Laurence Brumley knight, sir Edward Hederset knight, sir William Manny knight, Dame Iahan Borough, Iohn Dorewentwater knight<sup>1</sup>, Robert

A little without the Barres of west Smithfield is Charter-house lane, so called, for that (it) leadeth to the sayd plot of the late dissolued Monasterie, in place whereof, first the Lord . North, but since Thomas Howarde late Duke of Norffolke, haue made large and sumptuous buildinges, both for lodging and pleasure. At the gate of this Charter house is a faire water Conduit, with | two cockes seruing the vse of the neighbours to their great commoditie. Charter house lane.

Saint Iohns streete from the entring this lane is also on both the sides replenished with buildinges vp to Clarken Well. On the left hand of which street lyeth a lane called Cow crosse, of a crosse sometime standing there, which lane turneth downe to another lane called Turnemill streete, which stretcheth vp to the West side of Clarken Well, and was called Turnemill streete for such cause as is afore declared. Cow Crosse.

One other lane there is called S. Peters lane, which turneth from saint Iohns streete to Cow crosse.

On the left hand also stode the late dissolued Priorie of saint Iohn of Ierusalem in England, founded about the yeare of Christ 1100. by Iorden Briset Baron, and Muriell his wife, neare vnto Clarks well besides west Smithfield, which Iorden<sup>1</sup> hauing first founded the Priorie of Nunes at Clarks well bought of them ten Acres of land, giuing them in exchange ten Acres of land in his Lordship of Welling hall in the Countie of Kent, saint Iohns Church was dedicated by Eraclius Patriarke of the holy resurrection of Christ at Ierusalem, in Priorie of S. Iohn of Ierusalem.

the yeare 1185. and was the chiefe seate in England of the religious knights of S. Iohn of Ierusalem, whose profession was, besides their dayly seruice of God, to defende Christians agaynst Pagans, and to fight for the Church, vsing for their habite a blacke vpper garment, with a white Crosse on the fore part thereof, and for their good seruice was so highly esteemed, that when the order of Templars was dissolued, their lands and possessions were by parliament graunted vnto these, who after the losse of Ierusalem recouered the Isle of Rodes from the Turke, and there placed themselues, beeing called thereof for many yeares knights of the Rhodes, but after the losse thereof, 1523. they remooued to the Isle of Malta, manfully opposing themselues agaynst the turkish inuasions.

The Rebels of Essex and of Kent, 1381, set fire on this house, causing it to burne by the space of seauen dayes together, not suffering any to quench it, since the which time the Priors of that house haue newe builded both the Church and houses therevnto appertaining, which church was finished by Thomas Docwrey late Lord Prior there, about the yeare 1504, as appeareth by the inscription ouer the gate house, yet remayning. This house at the suppression in the 32. of H. the 8. was valued to dispend in lands 3385.li. 19.s. 8.d. yearely, sir W. Weston being then Lord Prior, dyed on the same seuenth of May, on which the house was suppressed, so that great yearely pensions being granted to the knights by the king, and namely to the Lord Prior during his life 1000.li. hee neuer receiued penny.

The king tooke into his hands all the lands that belonged to that house and that order wheresoeuer in England and Ireland, for the augmentation of his Crowne.

This Priory church and house of saint Iohn was preserued from spoyle, or downe pulling so long as king Henry the eight raigned, and was imployed as a storehouse for the kings toyles and tents, for hunting, and for the warres, &c. but in the third of king Edward the sixt, the Church for the most part, to wit, the body and side Iles with the great Bell Tower, (a most curious peece of workemanshippe, grauen, guilt, and inameled to the great beautifying of the Cittie, and passing all other that I haue seene) was vndermined and blowne up with Gunpowder, the stone thereof was employed in building of the Lord Protectors house at the Strand : that part of the Quire which remayneth, with some side Chappels, was by Cardinall Poole in the raigne of Queene Mary, closed vp at the west end, and otherwise repaired, and sir Thomas Tresham knight was then made Lord Prior there, with restitution of some lands, but the same was againe suppressed in the first yeare of Queene Elizabeth.

There was buried in this Church, brethren of that house, and knights of that order. Iohn Botell, William Bagecore, Richard Barrow, Iohn Vanclay, Thomas Launcelen, Iohn Mal-lory, William Turney, William Hulles,—Hils or Hayles, Iohn Weston, Redington, William Longstrother, Iohn Langstrother, William Tong, Iohn Wakeline. Then of other: Thomas Thornburgh Gentleman, William West, Gentleman, Iohn Fulling, and Adam Gill Esquiers, sir Iohn Mortimor, and Dame Elianor his wife, Nicholas Siluerston, William Plompton Esquier, Margaret Tong, and Isabel Tong, Walter Bell-ingham alias | Ireland, king of Armes of Ireland, Thomas Bedle Gentleman, Katheren daughter of William Plompton Esquier, Richard Turpin Gentleman, Iohan wife to Alexander Dikes, Iohn Bottle and Richard Bottle Esquiers, Rowland Darcie, Richard Sutton Gentleman, Richard Bottill Gent. Sir W. Harpden knight, Robert Kingston Esquier, and Margery his wife, Iohn Roch, Richard Cednor Gentleman, Simon Mallory 1442. William Mallory, Robert Longstrother, Ralph Asteley, William Marshall, Robert Sauage, Robert Gondall Esquiers, and Margery his wife, William Bapthorpe Baron of the Exchequer, 1442.

North from the house of S. Iohns, was the Priory of Clarken well, so called of Clarkes well adioyning, which Priory was also founded about the yeare 1100. by Iorden Briset Baron, the sonne of Ralph, the sonne of Brian Briset : who gaue to Robert a Priest, fourteene Acres of land lying in the field next adioyning to the said Clarkes well, thereupon to build an house of religious persons, which he founded to the honour of God, and the Assumption of our Lady, and placed therein blacke Nuns. This Iorden Briset gaue also to that house one peece of ground thereby, to build a wind mill vpon, &c. He and Muriell his wife were buried in the Chapter house there : more buried in this Church, John Wikes Esquier, and Isabell his wife, Dame Agnes Clifford, Ralph Timbleby, Esquier, Dame Iohan Baronnesse of Greystocke, Dame Iohan, Lady Ferrars. And of later time in the parish Church, Constances<sup>1</sup> Bennet, a Greeke borne, he gaue two houses, the one in saint Iohns streete, the other in Turnmill street, the rents of them to be distributed in Coales euery yeare against Christmas, to the poore of that parish.

William Herne, a Maister of defence, and yeoman of the gard, 1580. gaue lands and tenements to the Clothworkers in London, they to pay yearely for euer, fourteene pound to the Churchwardens of Clarken well, and fourteene pound to the Churchwardens of S. Sepulchers, towards reparations of these Churches, & reliefe of the poore men, more, he gaue after the death of one man, yet liuing, eight li. the yeare for euer, to the mending of high wayes.

Thomas Sackeford Esquier, one of the masters of requests, gaue | to the poore of that parish 40. shillings the yeare for euer, out of his Almes house at Woodbridge in Suffolke, where he is buried. Henry Stoke, Gardiner, buried there, gaue 20.s. the yeare for euer, towards reparation of that church. This Priory was valued to dispend 262.li. 9.s. by yeare, and was surrendred the 30. of H. the 8. Many faire houses are now builded about the Priory, namely by the high way towards Iseldon.

So much of the Church which remaineth, (for one great Ile thereof fell downe) serueth as a parish Church of Saint Iohn, not onely for the Tenementes, and neare inhabitantes, but also (as is afore sayde) for all vp to Highgate, Moswell &c.

Neare vnto this Church besides Clarkes well lane, diuers other welles, namely Skinners well, Fags well, Tode<sup>2</sup> well, Loders well, Rede well &c. now dammed vp.

Now to returne agayne to Giltspurre street, where I first began with this Suburbe, there standeth the Parrish Church of Saint Sepulchre in the Bayly, as is before shewed, from this streete to Turnagain lane by Hosiar lane, Cow lane & Holdborn Conduite downe Snore hill to Oldborne bridge, and vp Oldborne hill, by Gold lane on the right hand, and Lither lane beyond it, to the Barres, beyond the which Barres on the same side, is Porte Poole, or Grayes Inne lane, so called of the Inne of Courte, named Grayes Inne, a goodly house there scituate, by whome builded or first begun I haue not yet learned, but seemeth to be since Edward the thirds time, and is a prebend to Paules Church in London.

This lane is furnished with faire buildings, and many tenements on both the sides, leading to the fieldes, towards Highgate and Hamsted.

On the high streete haue ye many fayre houses builded, and lodgings for Gentlemen, Innes for trauellers, and such like vp almost (for it lacketh but little) to saint Giles in the fieldes: amongst the which buildinges for the most part being very new, one passeth the rest in largenesse of roomes, lately builded by a Widdow sometime wife to Richard Alington Esquier, which Richard Alington deceased in the yeare 1561. And thus much for that north side of Oldborne. |

Now from Newgate on the left hand or south side lyeth the old Bayly, and so downe by Seacole lane end to Oldborne bridge, vp Oldborne hill, by Shooe lane and Fewters lane to the barres.

South side of Oldborne.

Beyond the barres had ye in old time a Temple builded by the Templars, whose order first began in the yeare of Christ 1118. in the 19. of Henry the first. This Temple was left and fell to ruine since the yeare 1184. when the Templars had builded them a new Temple in Fleet streete, neare to the Riuer of Thames. A great part of this old Temple was pulled downe but of late in the yeare 1595. Adioyning to this old Temple, was sometime the Bishop of Lincolnes Inne, wherein he lodged when he repayred to this City. Robert de Curars<sup>1</sup> Bishop of Lincolne, builded it about the yeare 1147. John Russell Bishop of Lincolne, Chauncellor of England in the raigne of Richard the third, was lodged there. It hath of late yeares belonged to the Earles of Southampton, and therefore called Southampton house. Master Ropar hath of late builded much there, by meanes whereof part of the ruines of the old Temple were seene to remaine builded of Cane stone,

New streete. round in forme as the new Temple by Temple barre and other Temples in England. Beyond this old Temple, and the Bishoppe of Lincolnes house, is New streete, so called in the raigne of H. the 3. when he of a Iewes house founded the house of Conuerts, betwixt the old Temple and the new.

New streete or Chancery lane. The same street hath sithence beene called Chauncery lane, by reason that king E. the 3. annexed the house of Conuerts by patent to the office of Custos Rotulorum, or maister of the Rolles, in the 51. of his raigne.

Coursitors office in Chancery lane. In this streete the first faire building to be noted on the east side, is called the Coursitors office, builded with diuers fayre lodgings for Gentlemen, all of Bricke and timber, by sir Nicholas Bacon late Lord keeper of the great Seale.

Page 442 Neare vnto this Coursitors office, be diuers faire houses & large gardens, builded and made in a ground, sometime belonging to one great house on the other side the street, there made by Ralph Neuell Bishop of Chichester. This ground he had by the gift of H. the 3. as appeareth. The king granteth to Ralph Bishop of Chichester Chancellor, that place with the Garden which Iohn Herlison | forfeyled in that street, called Newstreete, ouer against the land of the sayde Bishoppe in the same streete, which place with the garden and appurtenance was the kinges exchete by the libertie of the cittie of London, as it was acknowledged before the king in his court at the tower of London, in the last pleas of the crown of that Cittie, cart. 11. H. 3.

Then was the house of conuertes, wherein now the Rowles of Chancery be kept. Then the Sergeants Inne, &c.

Black fryers Church in Oldborne. On the West side of Newstreete, towards the North ende thereof, was of olde time the church, and house of the Preaching Friers: the which house I finde that in the yeare of Christ, 1221. the Friers Preachers 13. in number came into England, and hauing to their Prior one named Gilbert de Frazineto in company of Peter de la Roche Bishoppe of Winchester, came to Canterbury, where presenting themselves before the Archbishop Steuens (Langton), hee commaunded the sayde Prior to preach, whose sermon he liked so well, that cuer after hee loued that order. These Fryers came to London, and had their first house without the Wall of the Cittie by Oldborne, neare vnto the old Temple.

Hubert de Burgo Earle of Kent was a great benefactor vnto these Fryers, and deceasing at his Mannor of Bansted in Surrey, or after some writers, at his Castle of Barkamsted in Hartfordshire, in the yeare 1242. was buried in their Church, vnto the which church he had giuen his place at Westminster, which the sayde Fryers afterward solde to Walter Grey Archbishop of Yorke, and he left it to his successors in that sea, for euer to be their house when they should repaire to the Cittie of London. And therefore the same was called Yorke place, which name so continued vntill the yeare 1529. that king Henry the eight tooke it from Thomas Wolsey Cardinall and Archbishop of Yorke, and then gaue it to name White hall.

In the yeare 1250. the Fryers of this order of preachers thorough Christendome and from Ierusalem, were by a conuocation assembled together, at this their house by Oldborne, to entreat | of their estate, to the number of 400. hauing meat and drink found them of almes, because they had no possessions of their owne. The first day the king came to their Chapter, found them meate and drinke, and dined with them. An other day the Queene founde them meate and drinke: afterward the Bishop of London, then the Abbot of Westminster, of S. Albons, Waltham, and others. In the yeare 1276. Gregory Rokesley Mayor and the Barons of London graunted and gaue to Robert Kilwerbie Archbishop of Canterbury, two lanes or wayes next the street of Baynards Castle, and the Tower of Mountfichet to be destroyed. On the which place the sayde Robert builded the late new church, with the rest of the stones that were left of the sayde Tower. And thus the blacke Fryers left their church and house by Oldborne, and departed to their new. This olde Fryer house, (iuxta Holborne sayeth the Patent) was by king Edwarde the first, in the 16. of his raigne, giuen to Henry Lacy Earle of Lincolne.

Next to this house of Fryers, was one other great House, sometime belonging to the Bishop of Chichester, whereof Mathew Paris writeth thus: Raph de noua villa, or Neuill, Bishop of Chichester and Chauncellor of England, sometime builded a noble house, euen from the grounde, not farre from the newe Temple and house of Conuerter, in the which place hee deceased in the yeare 1244.

Lincolns Inne.

In this place after the decease of the sayde Bishoppe, and in place of the house of Blacke Fryers, before spoken of, Henry Lacy Earle of Lincolne, Constable of Chester, and Custos of England, builded his Inne, and for the most parte was lodged there: hee deceased in this house in the yeare 1310. and was buried in the new worke, (whervnto he had beene a great benefactor) of saint Pauls church, betwixt our Lady chappell and saint Dunstones Chappell. This Lincolnes Inne sometime pertayning to the Bishops of Chichester, as a part of the sayde great house, is now an Inne of Court, retayning the name of Lincolnes Inne as afore, but now lately encreased with fayre buildinges, and replenished with Gentlemen studious in the common lawes. In the raigne of H. the 8. sir Thomas Louell was a great builder there, especially he builded the gate house and forefront towards the east, placing thereon aswell the Lacies armes as his owne: hee caused the Lacies armes to bee cast and wrought in leade, on the louer of the hall of that house, which was in the 3. Escutcheons a Lyon rampart for Lacie, 7. Mascules voyded for Quincie, and 3. Wheat sheaues for Chester. This Louer being of late repayred the sayde Escutcheons were left out. The rest of that side euen to Fleetstreete is replenished with fayre buildings.

founded.

Now the high Oldborne street, from the north end of Newstreet, stretcheth on the left hand in building lately framed, vp to S. Giles in the field, which was an Hospitall founded by Matilda the Queene, wife to Henry the first, about the yeare 1117. This Hospitall, sayeth the record of Edward the third, the 19. yeare, was founded without the barre veteris Templi London & conuersorum.

This Hospitall was founded, as a sell to Burton Lager of Ierusalem, as may appeare by a deed dated the 24. of H. the 7. in these wordes: Thomas Norton knight, Mayster of

Burton Lager of Ierusalem in England, and the Bretheren of the same place, keepers of the Hospitall of saint Giles without the barres of the olde Temple of London, haue solde to Geffrey Kent Cittizen & Draper of London a messuage or house with two sollars<sup>1</sup> aboue edified in the parrish of Alhallowes Hony lane in west Chepe, adioyning to the west part of a tenement called the Gote on the Hope, pertayning to the Drapers of London, for xxx.li.

At this Hospitall, the prisoners conuayed from the City of London towards Teyborne, there to be executed for treasons, felonies, or other trespasses, were presented with a great Bowle of Ale, thereof to drinke at theyr pleasure, as to be theyr last refreshing in this life.

Now without Ludgate lyeth the south end of the olde Bayly, then down Ludgate hill by Fleet lane, ouer Fleet bridge, vp Fleetestreete by Shooe lane, Fewtars lane, Newstreet or Chauncerie lane, and to Shire lane by the Barre on the right hand. And from Ludgate on the left hand or south side by Bride lane, Water lane, Crokers lane, Sergeants Inne, and the new Temple by the barre: all which is of Faringdon Ward as is afore shewed. |

NEXT without the Barre, the new temple, and Liberties of the City of London, in the Suburbes, is a libertie pertayning to the Dutchie of Lancaster, which beginneth in the east, on the south side or left hand by the riuier Thames, and stretcheth west to Iuie bridge where it endeth, and againe on the north side or right hand, some small distance without Temple barre in the high streete from a payre of stockes there standing, stretcheth one large middle row or troupe of small tenementes, partly opening to the south, partly towards the north, vp west to a stone crosse, now headles, ouer against the Strand, and this is the boundes of that libertie, which sometime belonged to Briane Lisle, since to Peter of Sauoy, and then to the house of Lancaster, as shall be shewed: Henry the third in the 30. yeare of his raigne did graunt to his vnckle Peter of Sauoy all those houses vpon the Thames, which sometimes pertayned to Briane de Insula, or Lisle, without the Walles

But first amongst other buildinges memorable for greatnes on the riuer of Thames, Excester house, so called for that the same belonged to the Bishoppes of Excester, and was their Inne or London lodging: who was first builder thereof I haue not read, but that Walter Stapleton was a greate Builder there in the raigne of Edward the second is manifest, for the Cittizens of London when they had beheaded him in Cheape neare vnto the cathedrall Church of S. Paule, they buried him in a heape of Sand or rubbish in his owne house without Temple barre, where | he had made great building. Edmond Lacie Bishoppe of Excester builded the great hall in the raigne of Henry the 6, &c. The same hath since beene called Paget house, because William Lord Paget enlarged and possessed it. Then was the Bishop of Bathes Inne, lately new builded, for a great part thereof, by the Lord Thomas Seamer Admirall, which house came sithens to bee possessed by the Earle of Arundel, and thereof called Arundell house.

Next beyond the which on the street side was sometime a faire cemitorie or churchyard, and in the same a parrish Church called of the Natiuity of our Lady and the Innocents of the Strand, & of some by meane of a Brotherhood kept there, called of S. Vrsula at the Strand.

Chesters Inne,

And neare adioyning to the sayd church betwixt it and the riuer of Thames, was an Inne of Chancery commonly called Chesters Inne, (because it belonged to the Bishop of Chester,) by others named of the scituation Strand Inne.

Liberties of the Dutchie of Lancaster 93

Then was there an house belonging to the Bishop of Landaffe, for I find in record the 4. of Edward the 2. that a vacant place lying neare the church of our Lady at Strand, the sayde Bishop procured it of Thomas Earle of Lancaster for the enlarging of this house.

Landalph his Inne.

Then had yee in the high streete a fayre bridge called Strand bridge, and vnder it a lane or way down to the landing place on the banke of Thames.

Then was the Bishoppe of Chester (commonly called of Lichfield and Couentrie) his Inne or London lodging : this house was first builded by Walter Langton Bishoppe of Chester, treasurer of England in the raigne of Edward the first.

Chester his

And next vnto it adioyning was the Bishop of Worcesters Inne : all which, to wit the parrish of Saint Mary at Strande, Strand Inne, Strand Bridge with the lane vnder it, the Bishop of Chesters Inne, the Bishoppe of Worcesters Inne, with all the tenementes adioyning, were by commandement of Edward Duke of Sommerset vncle to Edward the sixt, and Lord Protector pulled downe, and made leuell ground, in the yeare 1549. In place whereof he builded that large and goodly house, now called Somerset house.

In the high street neare vnto the Strande, sometime stode a crosse of stone against the Bishoppe of Couentrie or Chester his house, whereof I read that in the yeare 1294. and diuers other times, the Iustices Itenerantes sate without London, at the stone Crosse ouer against the Bishop of Couentries house, & somtime they sate in the Bishops house, which was hard by the strand as is afore sayd.

of Sauoy had issue by Beatrix, daughter to Aimon Earle of Geneva, 9. sons & 3. daughters: Amadis his first son succeeded Earle of Sauoy in the yeare 1253. Peter his second son, Earle of Sauoy & of Richmond, in 1268. Philip his third sonne, Earle of Sauoy and Burgundie, 1284. Thomas the 4. Earle of Flaunders and prince of Piemont, Boniface the eight, Archbishop of Canterbury, Beatrix his daughter married to Reymond Beringarius of Aragon, Earle of Prouince and Narbone, had issue & was mother to fve Queenes: The first, Margaret, wife to Lewes king of Fraunce, 2. Eliapor wife to Henry the 3. king of England, 3. Sanctia, wife to Richard king of Romaines, 4. Beatrix wife to Charles | king of Naples, 5. Iohanna wife to Philip king of Nauarre.

To return again to the house of Sauoy, Queene Eleanor, wife to king Henry the third, purchased this place afterwards of the Fraternitie or Brethren of Montioy, vnto whome Peter of Sauoy, as it seemeth, had giuen it, for her sonne Edmonde Earle of Lancaster, (as M. Camden hath noted out of a Register booke of the Dukes of Lancaster). Henry Duke of Lancaster repayred or rather new builded it with the charges of 52,000. Markes, which money he had gathered together at the Town of Bridgerike.<sup>1</sup>

John the French king was lodged there, in the yeare 1357. and also in the yeare 1363. for it was at that time the fayrest Mannor in England.

In the yeare 1381. the rebelles of Kent and Essex burnt this house, vnto the which there was none in the realme to bee compared in beauty and statelines, (sayth mine Author). They set fire on it round about, and made proclamation that none, on payne to loose his head, should conuert to his own vse any thing that there was, but that they should breake such plate and vessell of Gold and siluer as was founde in that house (which was in great plentie) into small peeces, and throw the same into the riuer of Thames: Precious stones they should bruse in mortars, that the same might bee to no vse, and so it was done by them: One of their companions they burned in the fire, because he minded to haue reserued one goodly peece of plate.

Liberties of the Dutchie of Lancaster 95

They found there certaine barrels of Gunpowder, which they thought had beene golde or siluer, and throwing them into the fire, more suddenly then they thought, the Hall was blowne vppe, the houses destroyed, and themselues very hardly escaped away.

This house being thus defaced, and almost ouerthrown by these rebelles for malice they bare to John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaster, of latter time came to the kings hands, and was again raysed and beautifully builded, for an Hospitall of S. Iohn Baptist, by king Henry the seuenth, about the yeare 1509. for the which Hospitall, retayning still the old name of Sauoy, he purchased lands to be imployed vpon the releewing of an hundred poor people. This Hospitall being valued to dispend 529 pound, fiteene shillings, &c. by yeare, was suppressed the tenth of Iune, the seuenth of Edward the sixt, the beddes, bedding and other furniture belonging thereunto with seuen hundred markes of the said landes by yeare, hee gaue to the Cittizens of London, with his house of Bridewell, to the furnishing thereof to be a workehouse for the poore and idle persons, and towards the furnishing of the Hospital of S. Thomas in Southwarke lately suppressed.

This Hospitall of Sauoy was againe new founded, erected, corporated and endowed with landes by Queene Mary, the thirde of Nouember: in the fourth of her raigne one Jackson tooke possession, and was made maister thereof in the same moneth of Nouember. The Ladies of the Court, and Maydens of honour (a thing not to be forgotten) stored the same of new with beddes, bedding and other furniture, in very ample manner, &c. and it was by patent so confirmed at Westminster, the 9. of May, the 4. and 5. of Philip and Mary.

The Chappell of this Hospitall serueth now as a Parish church to the Tenements thereof neare adioyning and others.

The next was sometime the Bishoppe of Carliles Inne, which now belongeth to the Earle of Bedford, and is called Russell or Bedford house. It stretcheth from the Hospitall of Sauoy, west to Iuie bridge, where sir Robert Cecill, principall Secretary to her Maiestie, hath lately raysed a large and stately house of brick and timber, as also leuiled and pauered the high way neare adioining, to the great beautifying of that street, and commoditie of passengers. Richard the 2. in the 8. of his raigne, granted licence to paue with stone the high way called Strand street from Temple barre to the Sauoy, and tole to be taken towards the charges, and again the like was granted in the 24. of H. the 6.

Iuie bridge in the high street which had a way vnder it, leading downe to the Thames, the like as sometime had the Strand bridge, is now taken downe, but the lane remayneth as afore, or better, & parteth the Liberty of the Dutchie, and the Citty of Westminster on that south side.

Now to beginne againe at Temple Barre ouer against it. In the high streete as is afore shewed, is one large Middle Rowe of | houses and small Tenementes builded, partly opening to the South, partlie towards the north. Amongst the which standeth the parrish Church of saint Clement Danes, so called because Harolde a Danish king and other Danes were buried there. This Harolde whome king Canutus had by a Concubine, raigned three yeares, and was buried at Westminster, but afterwarde Hardicanutus the lawfull sonne of Canutus, in revenge of a displeasure done to his mother, by expelling her out of the Realme, and the murder of his brother Allured, commaunded the body of Harolde to bee digged out of the earth, and to bee throwne into the Thames, where it was by a Fisherman taken vppe and buried in this Church-yard: but out of a fayre leager Booke, sometime belonging to the Abbey of Chartsey, in the Countie of Surrey, is noted as in Francis Thin, after this sorte. In the raigne of king Etheldred, the Monastery of Chartsey was destroyed. 90. Monkes of that house were slayne by the Danes, whose bodyes were buried in a place next to the Olde Monastery. William Malmseberie sayeth, they burnt the Church together with the Monkes and Abbot. But the Danes continuing in their fury (throughout the whole lande) desirous at the length to returne home into Denmarke, were by the iust iudgement of God all slayne at London in a place which is called the Church of the Danes.

This sayde middle row of houses stretching west to a Stone Crosse, now headles, by or against the Strand, including the sayd parrish Church of S. Clement, is also wholly of the libertie and Dutchie of Lancaster.

Thus much for the Boundes and antiquities of this libertie, wherein I haue noted Parrish Churches twaine, sometime 3. houses of name 6. to wit, the Sauoy, or Lancaster house, now an Hospitall, Somerset house, Essex house, Arundell house, Bedford or Russell house, and sir Robert Cecils house, besides Chesters Inne or Strand Inne, sometime an Inne of Chancerie, &c. This libertie is gouerned by the Chancellor of that Dutchie, at this present Sir Robert Cecill knight, principall Secretary to her Maiestie, & one of her Maiesties most honorable priue Councillers. There is vnder him a Steward that keepeth court | and Leete for the Queene, giueth the charge and taketh the oathes of euerie vnder Officer: then is there 4. Burgesses, and 4. assistants to take vp controuersies, a Bayliffe which hath 2. or 3. vnder Bailiffes, that make arrests within that libertie, 4. Constables, 4. Wardens that keepe the lands and Stocke for the poore, 4. wardens for high wayes, a Iury or Inquest of 14. or 16. to present defaults, 4. Alecunners, which looke to Assiase of weightes & measures &c. 4. Scauengers and a Beadle, and their common Prison is Newgate. There is in this libertie 50. men which is alwayes to be at an howers warning, with all necessary furniture to serue the Queene, as occasion shall require. Their charge at a Fifteene is 13.s. 4.d. ## The Citie of Westminster with the Antiquities, Boundes, and Liberties thereof

NOW touching the City of Westminster, I wil beginne at Temple Barre, on the right hand or North side, and so passe vppe West, through a Backe lane or streete, wherein doe stande three Innes of Chancery, the first called Clements Inne, because it standeth neare to saint Clements church, but nearer to the fayre fountaine called Clements well: the second, New Inne, so called as latelier made of a common hostery, and the signe of our Lady, an Inne of Chancery for Students, then the other, to wit about the beginning of the raigne of Henry the 7. and not so late as some haue supposed, to wit, at the pulling downe of Strand Inne, in the raigne of king Edward the sixt, for I read that sir Thomas More, sometime Lord Chancellor, was a Student in this new Inne, and went from thence to Lincolnes Inne, &c.

Lyons Inne of Chancery.
Drury lane. The thirde is Lyons Inne, an Inne of Chancery also. This street stretcheth vppe vnto Drury lane, so called, for that there is a house belonging to the Familie of the Druries. This lane turneth North towarde S. | Giles in the field. From the south end of this lane in the high street are diuerse faire buildings, Hosteries, and houses for Gentlemen, and men of honor, amongst the which Cicile house is one, which sometime belonged to the Parson of S. Martins in the fiede, and by composition came to Sir Thomas Palmer knight in the raighn of Edward the sixt, who began to builde the same of Bricke and Timber, very large and spacious, but of later time it hath beene farre more beautifully encreased by the late sir William Cicile Baron of Burghley, Lord Treasurer, and great counsellor of the estate.

From thence is now a continuall new building of diuers fayre houses, euen vp to the Earle of Bedfords house lately builded nigh to Iuy Bridge, and so on the north side to a lane that turneth to the parish Church of S. Martins in the field, in the liberty of Westminster. Then had ye an house wherein sometime were distraught and lunatike people, of what antiquity founded, or by whom I haue not read, neither of the suppression, but it was said that sometime a king of England, not liking such a kind of people to remaine so neare his pallace, caused them to be remoued farther of, to Bethlem without Bishops gate of London, and to that Hospitall the said house by Charing crosse doth yet remaine.

Then is the Mewse, so called of the kinges Faulchons there kept by the kinges Faulconer, which of olde time was an office of great account, as appeareth by a Recorde of Richard the second, in the first yeare of his raigne: Sir Simon Burley knight was made Constable for the castles of Windsor, Wigmore, and Guilford, and of the Manor of Kenington, and also master of the kings Faulcons at the Mewse neare vnto Charing crosse by Westminster. But in the yeare of Christ 1534. the 26. of H. the 8. the king hauing faire stabling at Lomsbery (a Manor in the farthest west part of Oldborne) the same was fiered and burnt, with many great horses, and great store of Hay. After which time, the forenamed house called the Mewse by Charing crosse was new builded, and prepared for stabling of the kings horses, in the raigne of Edward the sixt and Queene Mary, and so remaineth to that vse, and this is the farthest building West on the North side of that high streete. |

The Mewse

On the southside of the which street, in the liberties of Westminster (beginning at Iuie Bridge), first is Durham house, builded by Thomas Hatfield Bishop of Durham, who was made Bishop of that sea in the yeare 1345. and sat Bishop there 36. yeares.

house.

Amongst maters memorable concerning this house, this is one. In the yeare of Christ 1540. the 32 of Henry the eight, on May day, a great and triumphant Iusting was holden at Westminster, which had been formerly proclaimed in France, Flanders, Scotland and Spaine, for all commers that woulde vndertake the challengers of England, which were sir Iohn Dudley, sir Thomas Seymer, sir Thomas Po(y)nings, and sir George Carew knights, and Anthonie Kingston, and Richarde Cromwell Esquiers, all which came into the Lists that day richly apparelled and their horses trapped al in white Veluet: there came against them the sayde day 46. Defendants, or Vnder-takers, vz. the Earle of Surrey formost, Lorde William Howard, Lord Clinton, and Lord Cromwell, sonne and heyre to Thomas Cromwell Earle of Essex, and Chamberlaine of England, with other, and that day, after the Iustes performed, the Chalers rode vnto this Durham house, where they kept open household, and feasted the King and Queene, with her Ladies, and all the Court: the second day Anthonie Kingston and Richard Cromwell were made knights there: the thirde day of May the said Chalers did Turney on horsebacke with swordes, and against them came 49. Defendants: sir Iohn Dudley, and the Earle of Surrey, running first, which at the first course lost their Gauntlets, and that day sir Richarde Cromwell ouerthrew maister Palmer and his horse in the field, to the great honor of the chalengers, the fift of May the Chalers fought on foote at the Barriers, and against them came 50. Defendants, which fought valiantly: but sir Richard Cromwell ouerthrew that day at the Barriers master Culpepper in the field, and the sixt day the Challengers brake vp their household.

In this time of their housekeeping they had not onely feasted the King, Queene, Ladies, and all the Court, as is afore shewed : but also they cheared all the Knightes and Burgesses of the com|mon house in the Parliament, and entertained the Maior of London with the Aldermen and their wiues at a dinner, &c. The king gaue to euery of the said challengers, and their heyres for euer, in reward of their valiant actiuitie, one hundred markes, and a house to dwell in, of yearely reuenue, out of the landes pertayning to the Hospitall of S. Iohn of Jerusalem.

Next beyond this Durham house is another great house sometime belonging to the Bishop of Norwich, and was his London lodging, which nowe pertaineth to the Archbishop of Yorke by this occasion. In the yeare 1529, when Cardinall Wolsey Archbishop of Yorke was indited in the Premunirey, whereby King Henry the eight was entituled to his goodes and possessions : hee also seized into his hands the said Archbishops house, commonly called Yorke place, and changed the name thereof into White hal : whereby the Archbishops of Yorke being dispossessed, and hauing no house of repayre about London, Queene Marie gaue vnto Nicholas Heth then Archbishop of Yorke, and to his successors, Suffolke house in Southwarke, lately builded by Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolke, as I haue shewed.

This house the said Archbishop sold, and bought the afore-sayd house of old time belonging to the Bishops of Norwich, which of this last purchase is now called Yorke house : the Lord Chauncellors or Lord Keepers of the greate Seale of England haue beene lately there lodged.

Hospitall of
Rounciuall.

Then was there an Hospitall of S. Marie Rounciuall by Charing Crosse (a Cell to the Priorie and Couent of Rounciuall in Nauar in Pampelion Dioces) where a Eraternitie was founded in the 15. of Edward the 4. but now the same is suppressed and turned into tenements.

Charing
crosse.

Neare vnto this Hospitall was an Hermitage, with a chappell of S. Katherine, ouer against Charing crosse, which crosse, builded of stone, was of old time a fayre peece of worke there made by commandement of Edward the first, in the 21. yeare of his raigne, in memorie of Helianor his deceased Queene, as is before declared.

West from this Crosse stooke sometime an Hospitall of saint Iames, consisting of two hydes of lande with the appurtenances | in the parish (of) S. Margaret in Westminster, and founded by the Citizens of London, before the time of any mans memory, for 14. sisters maidens that were leprouse, liuing chastly and honestly in diuine seruice. Hospitall of Saint Iames. Page 455

Afterwards diuers Citizens of London gaue sixe and fifty li. rent therevnto, and then were adioyned eight brethren to minister diuine seruice there. After this also sundry deuout men of London gaue to this Hospitall foure Hides of land in the field of Westminster, and in Hendon, Calcote, and Hampsted, eighty acres of land and Woode, &c. King Edward the first confirmed those giftes, and granted a Fayre to be kept on the Eue of saint Iames, the day, the morrowe, and foure dayes following, in the eighteenth of his raigne. S. Iames Fayre for 7. dayes.

This Hospitall was surrendered to Henry the eight, the three and twentieth of his raigne, the sisters being compounded with were allowed Pensions for tearme of their liues, and the king builded there a goodly Mannor, annexing thereunto a Parke, closed about with a wall of bricke, now called saint Iames Parke, seruing indifferently to the said Mannor, and to the Mannor or Pallace of White Hall. S. Iames parke.

South from Charing crosse on the right hand, are diuers fayre houses lately builded before the Parke, then a large Tilt yard for Noblemen and other to exercise themselues in Iusting, Turn(ey)ing<sup>1</sup>, and fighting at Barryers. Tylt yarde at Westminster.

On the left hand from Charing Crosse bee also diuers fayre Tenements lately builded, till ye come to a large plotte of ground inclosed with bricke, and is called Scotland, where great buildings hath beene for receipt of the kings of Scotland, and other estates of that countrey: for Margaret Queene of Scots and sister to King Henry the eight, had her abiding there, when she came into England after the death of her husband, as the kings of Scotland had in former times, when they came to the Parliament of England. Scotland, a plot of ground so called.

Then is the said White Hal sometime belonging to Hubert de Burgh Earle of Kent, and Iusticier of England, who gaue it to the blacke Fryers in Oldborne, as I haue before noted. King H. the eight ordayned it to be called an Honor, and builded there a | sumptuous Gallery and a beautifull Gate house, thwart the high streete to saint James Parke, &c.

In this Gallory the Princes with their Nobility vse to stand or sit, and at Windowes to behold all triumphant Iustings, and other military exercises.

Beyond this Gallery on the left hand is the garden or orchyard belonging to the said White Hall.

Tennis courts,
Bowling Allies, and Cocke pit.

On the right hand be diuers fayre Tennis courtes, bowling allies, and a Cocke pit, al built by king Henry the eight, and then one other arched gate with a way ouer it thwarting the street from the kings gardens to the said parke.

Long ditch.
S. Stephens Ally.

From this gate vp Kings streete, to a bridge ouer Long ditch (so called for that the same almost insulateth the City of Westminster) neare which bridge is a way leading to Chanon Row, so called for that the same belonged to the Deane and Chanons of S. Stephens chappell, who were there lodged, as now diuers Noblemen and Gentlemen be: Whereof one is belonging to sir Edward Hobby, one other to Iohn Thine Esquier, once stately builded by Anne Stanhop Dutches of Somerset, mother to the Earle of Hartford, who now enioyeth that house. Next, a stately house now in building by William Earle of Darby, ouer against the which is a fayre house builded by Henry Clinton Earle of Lincolne.

From this way vp to the Woolestable and to the high Tower, or gate which entreth the pallace court, all is replenished with buildings and inhabitantes.

T. Clifford.

Touching this Woolestable, I reade that in the raigne of E. the first, the Staple being at Westminster, the parrishioners of S. Margaret and Marchants of the Staple builded of new the said church, the great Chancell excepted, which was lately before new builded by the Abbot of Westminster.

Record.
No siluer to be transported.

Moreouer that Edward the third, in the 17. of his raigne, decreed that no siluer bee carried out of the Realme on paine of death. And that whosoever transporteth wooll, should bring ouer for euery sacke foure nobles of siluer Bullion.

In the 25. of his raigne he appointed the Staple of Wooll to be kept onely at Canterbury, for the honour of S. Thomas. But in the 27. of the same king E. the Staple of Wooll, before kept at Bruges | in Flanders, was ordayned by Parliament to Page 457 be kept in diuers places of England, Wales and Ireland, as at New Castle, Yorke, Lincolne, Canterbury, Norwich, Westminster, Chichester, Winchester, Excester, Bristow, Carmardyn, &c. to the great benefit of the king, & losse vnto strangers & marchants. For there grew vnto the king by this meanes (as it was said) the summe of 1000 a hundred and two pounds by the yeare, more then any his predecessors before had receiued : the Staple at Westminster at that time began on the next morrow after the feast of S. Peter Ad vincula. The next yeare was granted to the king by Parliament towards the recouery of his title in France, fifty shillings of euery sacke of wooll transported ouer seas, for the space of sixe yeares next ensuing, by meanes whereof the king might dispend daily during those yeares more then a thousand markes starling. For by the common opinion there were more then 100000. sackes of Wooll yearely transported into forraine landes, so that during sixe yeares the said grant extended to fifteene hundred thousand pound starling.

Robert de Auesbury.

In the 37. of Edward the third it was granted vnto him for two yeares to take sixe and twenty shillings eight pence, vpon euery sack of Wooll transported, and the same yeare the staple of wooll (notwithstanding the kings oath and other great estates) was ordained to be kept at Callis, and sixe and twenty Marchants, the best and wealthiest of all England, to be farmers there, both of the Towne and Staple, for three yeares, euery Marchant to haue sixe men of Armes, and foure Archers at the kings cost. He ordained there also two Maiors, one for the towne, and one for the Staple, and he tooke for mala capta, commonly called Maltorth, twenty shillings, and of the said Marchants Gardians of the Towne forty pence, vpon euery sacke of Wooll.

Staple at Callis let to farme.

In the 44. of Edward the third, Quinborough, Kingston vpon Hull, and Boston, were made Staples of Wooll, which matter so much offended some that in the 50. of his raigne, in a Parliament at London, it was complained that the staple of

Record. Wooll was so remoued from Callis to diuers townes in England, contrary to the statute appointing that citizens and Marchants should keepe it there, and that the king might haue the profits and customes with the exchange of gold and siluer that was there made, by al the Marchants | in Christindome (esteemed to amount to 8000.li. by yeare the exchange onely): and the Citizens and Marchants so ordred the matter that the king spent nothing vpon souldiers neither vpon defence of the towne against the enemies, whereas now he spent 8000.li. by yeare.

In the 51. of Edward the third, when the Staple was settled<sup>1</sup> at Callis, the Maior of the Staple did furnish the Captaine of the towne vpon Enirode<sup>2</sup> with 100. Bilmen, 1200. Archers of Marchants and their seruants, without any wages.

Manuscript. In the yeare 1388. the twelfth of Richard the second, in a Parliament at Cambridge, it was ordayned that the Staple of Wooles should be brought from Middlebrough in Holland to Callis.

French Wooll staples at Middle-borough.

In the fourteenth of his raigne there was granted 40.s. vpon euery sacke of wooll, and in the 21. was graunted 50.s. vpon euery sacke transported by english men, and three pound by strangers, &c. It seemeth that the Marchants of this Staple be the most ancient Marchants of this Realme, and that all commodities of the realm are Staple Marchandizes by law and Charter, as Wooles, Leather, Wool-fels, Lead, Tyn, cloth, &c.

Staple Marchants the most ancientst of this realme.

King Henry the sixt had sixe wooll houses within the staple at Westminster: those he granted to the Deane and Cannons of saint Stephen at Westminster, and confirmed it the 21. of his raigne. Thus much for the Staple haue I shortly noted.

And now to passe to the famous Monastery of Westminster: at the very entrance of the Close thereof, is a lane that leadeth toward the west, called Theeuing lane, for that theeuues were led that way to the Gate house, while the sanctuary continued in force.

Theeuing lane.

This Monastery was founded and builded by Sebert king of the East Saxons, vpon the perswasion of Ethelbert king of

Kent, who hauing embraced christianity, and being baptized by Melitus Bishop of London : immediately (to shew himselfe a christian indeed) built a church to the honour of God and S. Peter, on the west side of the city of London, in a place (which because it was ouergrowne with thornes, and enuironed with water) the Saxons called Thorney, and now of the Monastery and west scituation thereof is called Westminster. | Page 459

Foundation of Westminster by Sebert, a Christian king not onely in word, but in deed.

In this place (saith Sulcardus) long before was a Temple of Sulcardus. Apollo, which being ouerthrowne, king Lucius built therin a church of Christianity.

Sebert was buried in this church, with his wife Athelgoda, whose bodies many yeares after, to wit in the raigne of Richard the second (saith Walsingham) were translated from the old church to the new, and there enterred.

Edgar king of the west Saxons repayred this Monastery about the yeare of Christ, 958. E. the Confessor builded it of new, whereupon T. Clifford writeth thus.

Without the walles of London (saith hee) vpon the Riuer of Thames, there was in times passed a little Monastery, builded to the honour of God and Saint Peter, with a few Benedict Monkes in it, vnder an Abbot, seruing Christ: very poore they were, and little was giuen them for their reliefe. Here the King entended (for that it was neare to the famous Cittie of London and the Riuer of Thames, that brought in all kinde of Marchandizes from all partes of the worlde) to make his Sepulcher. Hee commaunded therfore that, of the tenthes of all his rentes, the worke should bee begunne in such sort as should become the Prince of the Apostles. T. Clifford.

At this his commandement the worke is nobly begun, euen from the foundation, and happily proceedeth till the same was finished: the charges bestowed, or to bee bestowed, are not regarded. Hee graunted to this church great priuiledges, aboue all the churches in this land, as partly appeareth by this his Charter.

Then was this Monastery againe repaired by the Abbots of that church, king Edward the firſt and his ſucceſſors putting to their helping hands.

Edward the second appropriated vnto this Church the patronages of the churches of Kelueden and Sabritsworth<sup>1</sup> in Essex in the Diocesse of London.

Simon Langham Abbot (hauing beene a great builder there in | the yeare 1362.) gaue 400.li. to the building of the body Page 461 of the church: but (amongst others) Abbot Islip was in his time a great builder there, as may appeare in the stone worke and glasse windowes of the church. Since whose decease that worke hath staied as he left it, vnperfected, the church and steeple being all of one height.

King Henry the seuenth, about the yeare of Christ 1502. caused the chappel of our Lady, builded by Henry the third, with a Tauern also called the White Rose neare adioyning, to be taken downe: in which plot of ground, on the 24. of Ianuary, the first stone of the new chappell was laid by the New chappell at Westminster. hands of Abbot Islip, sir Reginald Bray, knight of the Garter, Doctor Barnes, Maister of the Rolles, Doctor Wal, Chaplen to the king, Maister Hugh Aldham, Chaplen to the Countess of Darby and Richmond (the Kinges mother), sir Edward Stanhop knight, and diuers other: vpon the which stone was engrauen the same day and yeare, &c.

The charges in building this chappell amounted to the summe of 14000. pound. The stone for this worke (as I haue beene informed) was brought from Huddlestone Quarrie in Yorkeshire.

The Altar and sepulture of the same king Henry the seuenth, wherein his body resteth in this his new chappel, was made & finished in the yeare 1519. by one Peter a Painter of Florence: for the which he receiued 1000. pound starling for the whole stuffe and workmanship, at the hands of the kings executors, Richard Bishop of Winchester, Richard Bishop of London, Thomas Bishop of Durham, John Bishop of Rochester, Tho. Duke of Norfolke, Treasurer of England, Charles Earle of Worcester the kinges Chamberlaine, John Fineux knight, chiefe Iustice of the kinges Bench, Robert Reade knight, cheife Iustice of the Common place.

This Monastery being valued to dispend by the yeare 3470. pound, &c. was surrendrd to Henry the eight, in the yeare 1539. Benson, then Abbot, was made the first Deane: and not Alms men, & so it was named the Collegiat church of Westminster, founded by Queene Elisabeth, who placed Doctor Bil first Deane of that new erection, after whome succeeded Doctor Gabriel Goodman, who gouerned that church forty yeares, and after Doctor L. Andreues.

This church hath had great priuiledge of Sanctuary within the precinct therof, to wit, the church, churchyard and close, &c. from whence it hath not beene lawfull for any prince or other, to take any person that fled thether for any cause: which priuiledge was first granted by Sebert king of the East Saxons, since increased by Edgare king of the West Saxons, renewed and confirmed by king Edward the Confessor, as appeareth by this his Charter following.

Sanctuary at

Edward by the grace of God, King of Englishmen: I make it to be known to all generations of the world after me, that by speciall commandement of our holy father Pope Leo, I haue renewed and honored the holy church of the blessed Apostle S. Peter of Westminster, and I order and establish for euer, that what person of what condition or estate soeuer hee be, from whence soeuer he come, or for what offence or cause it be, either for his refuge into the said holy place, he be assu|red of his life, Page 466

More of this sanctuary ye may read in our histories, and also in the statute of Henry the 8. the 32. yeare.

Parish church
of S. Margaret.

of E. the 6.

The parish church of S. Margaret sometime within the Abbey, was by E. the Confessor remoued, and builded without, for ease of the Monks. This church continued till the daies of E. the 1. at what time the marchants of the staple and parishioners of Westminster builded it all of new, the great chancell excepted, which was builded by the Abbots of Westminster, and this remaineth now a fayr parish church, though sometime in danger of down pulling: In the south Ile of this church is a fayre marble monument of Dame Mary Billing, the heyre of Robert Nesenham of Conington in Huntingtongshire, first married to William Coton, to whose issue her inheritance alone discended, remayning with Rob. Coton at this day, heyre of her and her first husbandes familie: her second husband was sir Thomas Billing chiefe Iustice of England, & her last, whom likewise she buried, was Thomas Lacy, erecting this monument to the memory of her 3. husbands, with whose armes she hath garnished it, and for her own burial, wherein she was entered in the yeare 1499.

Next to this famous Monastery, is the kings principall Pallace, of what antiquity it is vncertain: but Edward the Confessor held his court there, as may appeare by the testimony of sundrie, and namely of Ingulphus as I haue before told you. The said king had his pallace, and for the most remayned there: where hee also ended his life, and was buried in the Monastery which hee had builded. It is not to be doubted, but that king William the first, as hee was crowned there, so he builded much at this Pallace, for he found it far inferior to the building of princely pallaces in France. And it is manifest by the testimonie of many authors, that W. Rufus builded the great Hall there, about the year of Christ 1097. Amongst others, Roger of Win- douer, and Mathew Paris, doe write, that king William (being returned out of Normandy, into England) kept his feast of Whitsontide very roially at Westminster, in the new hall which he had lately builded, the length whereof (say some) was 270. foote, and seuentie foure foot in bredth, and when he heard men say, that this Hall was too great, he answered and said: this hall is not bigge inough by the one halfe, and is but a Bedde chamber in comparison of that I meane to make: a diligent searcher (saith Paris) might find out the foundation of the hal, which he had supposed to haue builded, stretching from the riuer of Thames euen to the common high way. This Pallace was repaired about the year 1163. by Thomas Becket Chauncelor of England, with exceeding great celerity and speede, which before was ready to haue fallen downe. This hath beene the principall seat and Pallace of al the kings of England since the conquest: for here haue they in the great hall kept their feasts of coronation especially, and other solemne feasts, as at Christmas and such like most commonly: for prooffe whereof, I finde Recorded that in the yeare 1236. and the twentieth of Henry the third, on the 29. of December, William de Hauerhull, the kinges Treasurer, is commanded that vpon the day of circumcision of our Lord he cause 6000. poore people to be fed at Westminster, for the state of the king, the Queene, and their children, the weake and aged to be placed in the great hall, & in the lesser, those that were most strong and in reasonable plight in the kinges chamber, the children in the Queenes, and when the king knoweth the charge he would allow it in the accounts.

place of the Table, to wit in the midst, which the Noblemen took in euill | part: the king sate on the right hand, and the Archbishop on the left, and then all the Prelates & Nobles according to their estates: for the king himselfe set the Guests. The yeare 1242, he likewise kept his Christmas in the hall, &c. Also in the yeare 1243. Richard Earle of Cornewall, the kings brother, married Cincia, daughter to Beatrice Countesse of Prouince, and kept his mariage feast in the great Hall at Westminster, with great royalty and company of noble men: insomuch, that there were told (triginta milia) 30000 dishes of meates at that dinner.

In the yeare 1256. king Henry sate in the Exchequer of this Hall, and there set downe order for the appearance of Shiriffes, and bringing in of their accounts: there was fiue Markes set on euery Shiriffes head for a fine, because they had not distrained euery person that might dispend fiteene pound land by the yeare, to receyue the order of Knighthoode, as the same Shiriffes were commaunded. Also the Maior, Aldermen, and Shiriffes of London, being accused of oppression and wrongs done by them, and submitting themselues in this place before the king sitting in judgement vpon that matter, they were condemned to pay their fines for their offences committed, and further euery one of them discharged of assise and warde.

E. the Confessor.

In the yeares 1268. and 1269. the same king kept his Christmas feasts at Westminster as before: and also in the same 1269. he translated, with great solemnitie, the bodie of king Edward the Confessor into a new Chappell, at the backe of the high Altar: which Chappell he had prepared of a marueylous workemanship, bestowing a new Tombe or Shrine of Golde, and on the day of his translation he kept a royall feast in the great Hall of the Palace: thus much for the feasts of old time in this hall.

We read also, that in the yeare 1236. the riuer of Thames ouerflowing the bankes, caused the Marches about Woolwich to be all on a Sea, wherein Boats and other vesselles were carried with the streame, so that besides cattell, the greatest number of men, women and children, inhabitants there, were drowned: and in the great Palace of Westminster, men did row with wheries in the middest of the Hall, being forced to ryde to theyr chambers. |

Moreouer in the yeare 1242, the Thames ouerflowing the banks about Lambhithe, drowned houses and fieldes, by the space of sixe miles, so that in the great hall at Westminster, men tooke their horses, because the water ran ouer all. This Palace was (in the yeare 1299. the 27. of Edward the first) burnt by a vehement fire, kindled in the lesser hall of the kings house: the same with many other houses adioyning, and with the Queenes chamber, were consumed, but after that repayred.

In the yeare 1303. the 31. of Edward the first, the kings treasurie at Westminster was robbed, for the which Walter, Abbot of Westminster, with 49. of his brethren, and 32. other, were throwne into the Tower of London, and indighted of the robbery of an hundred thousand pound, but they affirming themselues to be cleare of the fact, and desiring the king of speedie iustice, a commission was directed for inquiry of the truth, and they were freed.

In the yeare 1316. Edward the second did solemnize his feast of Penticost at Westminster, in the great hall, where sitting royally at the table with his Pears about him, there entred a woman adorned like a Minstrell, sitting on a great horse, trapped as Minstrels then vsed, who rode round about the Tables, shewing pastime, and at length came vp to the kings Table, and laide before him a letter, and forthwith turning her horse, saluted euery one, and departed. The letter being opened, had these contents: 'Our Soueraigne Lord the King hath nothing curteously respected his knights, that in his fathers time, and also in his owne, haue put forth their persons to diuers perils, and haue vtterly lost, or greatly diminished their substance, for honor of the said king, and he hath enriched abundantly such as haue not borne the waight as yet of the busines,' &c.

This hall being finished in the yeare 1399. the same King kept a most royal Christmas there, with dayly Iustings, and runnings at Tilt, whereunto resorted such a number of people, that there was euerie day spent twentie eight, or twentie sixe Oxen, and three hundred sheepe, besides fowle without number: he caused a Gowne for himselfe to be made of Golde, garnished with Pearle and precious Stones, to the value of 3000. Marks: he was garded by Cheshire men, and had about him commonly thirteene bishops, besides Barons, Knights, Esquires, and other more then needed: insomuch, that to the houshold, came euery day to meate 10000. people, as appeareth by the Messes tolde out from the Kitchen to 300. seruitors.

Ro. Iuelefe.

Thus was this great hall for the honour of the Prince oftentimes furnished with guests, not onely in this kings time (a prodigall Prince) but in the time of other also, both before and since, though not so vsually noted. For when it is said, the king held his feast of Christmas, or such a feast at Westminster, it may well be supposed to be kept in this great hall, as most sufficient to such a purpose.

Ro. Fabian.

King Henry the 7. feasted the Maior of London, &c.

I find noted by Robert Fabian (sometime an Alderman of London) that king Henrie the seuenth in the ninth of his raigne (holding his royall feast of Christmas at Westminster) on the twelfth day, feasted Raph Austrey, then Maior of London, and his brethren the Aldermen, with other commoners in great number, and after dinner dubbing the Maior knight, caused him with his brethren to stay and behold the disguisings and other disports, in the night following shewed in the great hall, which was richly hanged with Arras, and staged about on both sides: which disportes being ended in the morning, the king, the Queene, the Ambassadors, & other estates, being set at a table of stone, 60. knights, and Esquires serued 60. dishes to the kings Messe, and as many to the Queenes (neither flesh nor fish) and serued the Maior with twentie foure dishes to his messe, of the same maner, with sundrie wines in most plenteous wise: and finally, the King and Queene, being conueyed with great lights into the Pallace, the Mayor with his companie in Barges returned and came to London by breake of the next day. Thus much for building of this great hall, | and feasting therein.

It moreouer appeareth that many Parliaments haue beene kept there: for I find noted, that in the yeare 1397. the great hall at Westminster, being out of reparations, and therefore, as it were, new builded by Richard the second (as is afore shewed) the same Richard in the meane time hauing occasion to hold a parliament, caused for that purpose a large house to be builded in the middest of the Palace Court, betwixt the clocke Tower, and the gate of the olde great hall: this house was very large and long, made of tymber, couered with Tyle, open on both the sides, and at both the endes, that all men might see and heare what was both sayde and done.

Parliament kept in Westminster hall.

The Kinges Archers (in number 4000. Cheshire men) compassed the house about with their Bowes bent, and Arrowes nocked in their handes, alwayes readie to shoote: they had bouch of Court (to wit, meate and drinke) and great wages, of six pence by the day.

Bouch of Court.

The olde great Hall being new builded, Parliaments were againe there kept as before: namely, one in the yeare 1399. for the deposing of Richard the second. A great part of this Palace at Westminster was once againe burnt in the yeare 1512. the 4. of Henry the eight, since which time, it hath not beene reedified: onely the great Hall, with the offices neare adioyning, are kept in good reparations, and serueth as afore, for feastes at Coronations, Arraignments of great persons charged with treasons, keeping of the Courts of iustice, &c. But the Princes haue beene lodged in other places about the city, as at Baynards Castle, at Bridewell, and White hall, sometime called Yorke place, and sometime at S. James.

I find of record the 50. of Ed. the 3. that the Chapter house of the Abbot of Westm. was then the vsual house for the commons in Parliament.

This great hall hath beene the vsuall place of pleadings, and ministration of Iustice, whereof somewhat shortly I will note. In times past, the courts and benches followed the king, wheresoeuer he went, as well since the conquest, as before, which thing at length being thought combersome, painfull,

In this hall he ordayned three iudgement seates, to wit, at the entry on the right hand, the common place<sup>1</sup>, where ciuill matters are to <be> pleaded, specially such as touch lands or contracts: at the vpper end of the Hall, on the right hand, or Southest corner, the Kings bench, where pleas of the Crowne haue their hearing: and on the left hand or Southwest corner, sitteth the Lord Chancellor, accompanied with the master of the Rowles, and other men, learned for the most part in the Ciuill lawe, and called maisters of the Chauncerie, which haue the Kings fee. The times of pleading in these courts are foure in the yeare, which are called Termes, the first is Hillarie Terme, which beginneth the 23. of Ianuary, if it be not Sunday, and endeth the 12. of February. The second is Easter Terme, and beginneth 17. dayes after Easter day, and endeth four dayes after Ascension day. The third Terme beginneth 6. or seuen dayes after Trinitie Sunday, and endeth the Wednesday fortnight after. The fourth is Michaelmas Terme, which beginneth the 9. of October, if it be not Sunday, and endeth the 28. of Nouember.

And here is to be noted, that the Kings of this Realme haue vsed sometimes to sit in person in the Kings Bench: namely King Edward the fourth, in the yere 1462. in Michaelmas Terme sate in the Kings Bench three dayes together, in the open Court, to vnderstand how his lawes were ministred and executed.

Within the Port, or entrie into the Hall, on eyther side are ascendings vp into large Chambers without the Hall adioyning thereunto, wherein certaine Courts be kept: namely, on the right hand, is the court of the Exchequer, a place of account for the reuenewes of the Crowne: the hearers of the account haue Auditors vnder them, but they which are the chiefe for accounts of the prince, are called Barons of the Exchequer, whereof one is called the chiefe Baron. al is called the high treasurer. In this Court be heard those that are delators, or informers, in popular and penall actions, hauing Informers. thereby part of the profite by the law assigned vnto them.

In this Court, if any question bee, it is determined after the order of the common law of England by twelue men, and all subsidies, Taxes and Customes, by account: for in this office, the | Shiriffes of the Shire do attende vpon the execution of Page 473 the commandements of the Iudges, which the Earle should do, if he were not attending vpon the Princes in the warres, or otherwise about him: for the chiefe office of the earl was, to see the Kings iustice to haue course, and to bee well executed in the Shire, and the Princes Reuenewes to bee well aunswered and brought into the Treasurie.

If any fines or amerciaments be extracted out of any of the sayde Courts vpon any man, or any arrerages of accounts of such thinges as is of customes, taxes and subsidies, or other such like occasions, the same the Shiriffe of the Shire doth gather, and is aunswerable therefore in the Exchequer. As for other ordinarie rents of patrimoniall landes, and most commonly of taxes, customes, and subsidies, there be particular receyuers and collectors, which doe aunswere it into the Exchequer. This Court of the Exchequer hath of olde time, and as I thinke, since the Conquest, beene kept at Westminster, notwithstanding sometimes remoued thence by commaundement of the king, and after restored againe, as namely in the yeare 1209, King John commaunded the Exchequer to be remoued from Westminster to Northhampton, &c.

On the left hand aboue the staire is the Duchie chamber, wherein is kept the Court for the Duchie of Lancaster, by Dutchy court. a Chancellor of that Duchie, and other officers vnder him. Then is there in an other chamber, the office of the receipts of Office of receipt. the Queenes reuenewes for the Crowne: then is there also the Starre Chamber, where in the Terme time euery weeke once Star chamber. at the least, which is commonly on Frydayes and Wednesdayes, and on the next day after the Terme endeth, the Lord Chancellor and the Lords, and other of the priuy Councell, and the chiefe Iustices of England, from 9. of the clocke till it be 11. do sit.

thereof is decked with the likenes of Stars guilt: there be complaints heard, of ryots, rowts, and other misdemeanors, which if they bee found by the kings Councell, the partie offender shall be censured by these persons, which speake one after another, and hee shal bee both fined and commaunded to prison. |

Then at the vpper end of the great hall by the Kings bench, is a going vp to a great Chamber, called the White hall, wherein is now kept the court of Wards and Liueries: and adioyning thereunto is the Court of Requests. Then is S. Stephens Chappell, of old time founded by king Stephen. King John in the 7. of his reign graunted to Baldwinus de London Clarke of his Exchequer, the Chappleship of Saint Stephens at Westminster, &c. This Chappell was againe since, of a farre more curious workemanship, new builded by king Edward the third, in the year 1347. for thirtie eight persons in that Church to serue God, to wit, a Deane, 12. secular Canons, thirteene Vicars, foure Clarkes, sixe Choristes, two Seruitors, to wit, a Verger, and a keeper of the Chappell. He builded for those from the house of receit, along nigh to the Thames, within the same Pallace, there to inhabite, and since that, there was also builded<sup>1</sup> for them, betwixt the Clocke-house and the Wooll-staple, called the Wey house. He also builded to the vse of this Chappell (though out of the Pallace Court) some distance west, in the little Sanctuarie, a strong Clochard of stone and timber, couered with Lead, and placed therein three great Bels, since vsually rung at coronations, triumphs, funerall of Princes, and their obits. Of those Bels men fabuled, that their ringing sowred all the drinke in the towne. More, that about the biggest Bell was written,

*King Edward made me, Thirtie thousand and three,
Take me downe and wey me,
And more shall ye find me.*

But these Bels being taken downe indeed, were found all three not to wey 20. thousand. True it is, that in the Citie of Roane in Normandie, there is one great Bell, that hath such inscription as followeth.

By this chappel of S. Stephen, was sometime one other smaller chappel, called our Lady of the Piew, to the which Chappel of our things I haue read that Richard the 2. after the ouerthrow of Wat Tilar and other his rebels in the 4. of his raigne, went to Westminster, and there giuing thanks to God for his victorie, made his offering in this Chappell, but as diuerse haue noted, namely John Piggot, in the yeare 1452.<sup>1</sup> on the 17. of February, by negligence of a Scholler appoynted by his Schoolemaister to put forth the lightes of this Chappell, the Image of our Ladie richly decked with iewels, precious stones, pearles, and rings, more then any Ieweller could iudge the price, for so sayth mine Author, was with all this apparell, ornaments, and Chappell it selfe burnt, but since againe reedified by Anthony

On the East side of this Court, is an Arched Gate to the riuier of Thames, with a fayre Bridge and landing place, for all men that haue occasion. On the North side is the South ende of Saint Stephens Alley, or Canon Row, and also a way into the old wooll staple: & on the West side is a verie faire gate begun by Richard the third, in the yeare 1484. and was by him builded a great height, and many faire lodgings in it, but left vnfinished, and is called the high Tower at Westminster. Thus much for the monasterie and pallace may suffice. And now will I speake of the gate house, and of Totehill streete, stretching from the west part of the Close.

Westminster.

The Gate-house is so called of two Gates, the one out of the Colledge court toward the North, on the East side whereof was the Bishop of Londons prison for Clarkes conuict, and the other gate, adioyning to the first but towards the west, is a Gaile or prison for offenders thither committed. Walter Warfield Celerer to the Monastery, caused both these gates with the appurtenances to be builded in the raigne of Edward the third.

Henry the 7.

On the Southside of this gate, king H. the 7. founded an almes house for 13. poore men: one of them to be a priest, aged 45. yeres, a good Gramarian, the other 12. to be aged fiftie yeares, without wiues, euery Saturday the priest to receyue of the Abbot, or prior, foure pence by the day, and each other two pence halfe penny by the day for euer, for their sustenance, and euery yeare to each one a gowne and a hood ready made: and to three women that dressed their meat, and kept them in their sicknes, each to haue euery Saturday 16.d. and euery yere a gowne ready made. More, to the 13. poore men yearly 80. quarters of cole, and 1000. of good fagots to their vse: in the hall and kitchen of their mansion, a discreete Monke to be ouerseer of them, and he to haue 40.s. by the yeare, &c. and hereunto was euery Abbot and Prior sworne. Neare vnto this house westward, was an old chappell of S. Anne, ouer against the which the Lady Margaret mother to king H. the 7. erected an Almeshouse for poore women, which is now turned into lodgings for the singing men of the colledge: the place wherein this chappell and Almeshouse standeth, was called the Elemosinary or Almory, now corruptly the Ambry, for that the Almes of the Abbey were there distributed to the poore. And therein Islop Abbot of Westmin. erected the first Presse of booke printing that euer was in England | about the yeare of Christ, 1471. William Caxton Cittizen of London, mercer, brought it into England, and was the first that practised it in the sayde Abbey, after which time, the like was practised in the Abbyes of S. Augustine at Canterbury, S. Albons and other monasteries. From the west gate runneth along Totehill streete, wherein is a house of the Lord Gray of Wilton, and on the other side at the entrie into Totehill field, Stourton house, which Gyles, the last L. Dacre of the south, purchased and builde new, whose Lady and wife Anne sister to Thomas the Lorde Buckhurst, left money to her Executors to builde an hospitall for twentie poore women, and so many children to be brought vp vnder them, for whose maintenance she assigned landes to the value of one hundred pound by the yeare, which Hospitall her Executors haue new begun in the field adioyning. From the entry into Totehill field, the streete is called Petty France, in which, and vpon S. Hermits hill, on the south side thereof, Cornelius van Dun (a Brabander borne, Yeoman of the Guard to king H. the 8. king E. the 6. Queene Mary and Queene Elisabeth) built 20. houses for poore women to dwell rent free, and neare hereunto was a chappell of Mary Magdalen, now wholly ruinated.

Citty.

The Cittie of Westminster for ciuill gouernment is diuided into twelue seuerall Wardes, for the which the Deane of the collegiate church of Westminster, or the high Steward doe elect 12 Burgesses, and as many assistantes, that is, one Burgesse, and one Assistant for euery Warde, out of the which twelue Burgesses, two are nominated yearly, vpon Thursday in Easter weeke, for chief Burgesses to continue for one yeare next following, who haue authority giuen them by the Act of Parliament, 27. Elizabeth, to heare, examine, determine and punish according to the lawes of the Realme, and lawfull customes of the Cittie of London, matters of incontineney, common scoldes, inmates, and common annoyances, and likewise to commit such persons as shall offend against the peace, and therof to giue knowledge within foure and twentie houres to some Iustice of Peace in the County of Midlesex.

HAUING thus run through the description of these Cities of London and Westminster aswell in their originall foundations, as in their increases of buildinges and ornaments, together with such incidentes of sundrie sortes as are before, both generally and particularly, discoursed: It remaineth that somewhat bee noted by me, touching the pollicie and gouernment, both Ecclesiastical and ciuill, of London: as I haue already done for Westminster, the order whereof is appointed by the late statute, euen as that of London is maintained by the customes thereof, most laudably vsed before all the time of memory.

Antiquities of

And first to beginne with the Ecclesiasticall iurisdiction, I read that the Christian faith was first preached in this Iland (then called Britaine) by Ioseph of Arimathea, and his brethren disciples of Christ, in the time of Aruiragus, then Gouernor here, vnder the Romaine Emperour, after which time, Lucius king of the Britaines sent his Ambassadors Eluanus and Meduannus, two men learned in the scriptures, with letters to

Eleutherius Bishop of Rome, desiring him to send some deuout and learned men, by whose instruction he and his people might be taught the faith and religion of Christ. Eleutherius Page 479 baptized those messengers, making Eluanus a Bishoppe and Meduuanus a Teacher, and sent ouer with them into Britaine two other famous Clearkes, Faganus & Deruuianus, by whose diligence Lucius and his people of Britaine were instructed in the faith of Christ and baptized, the temples of Idols were conuerted into cathedral churches, & Bishops were placed where Flammies before had bin, at London, Yorke and Carleon vpon Vske were placed Archbishops, saith some. The Epistle said <sup>1</sup> to be <sup>1</sup> sent by Eleutherius to king Lucius, for the establishing of the faith, ye may read in my Annales, Som- Liber custom. maries and Chronicles, truely translated & set down as mine author hath it, for some haue curtailed and corrupted it, and then fathered it vppon reuerend Bede, who neuer wrote word thereof, or otherwise to that effect, more then this as followeth.

In the yeare 156. Marcus Aurelius Verus the 14. Emperour Bede. after Augustus, gouerned the Empire with his Brother Aurelius Comodus, In whose time Elutherius, a Holy man, being Pope of the Church of Rome, Lucius king of Britaines wrote vnto him, desiring that by his commaundement hee might bee made Christian : which his request was graunted him, whereby the Britaines receiuing then the faith, kept it sound and undefiled in rest and peace, vntill Dioclesian the Emperours time : thus farre Bede, which may suffice to proue the Christian Faith there to be receiued here. And now of the London Bishops as I find them.

There remaineth in the Parish Church of S. Peter vppon Cornhill in London, a table wherein is written that Lucius founded the same Church to be an Archbishops see, and Metropolitane or chiefe church of his kingdome, and that it so endured the space of foure hundred yeares, vntill the comming of Augustine the Monk & others from Rome, in the raigne of the Saxons. The Archbishops names, I finde onely to be set downe by Ioceline of Furnes, in his book of Brittish Bishoppes, and not else where. Thean (sayeth hee) was the first Archbishophe of London in the time of Lucius, who builded the said church of S. Peter, in a place called Cornhill

14. Theanus, the foureteenth, fledde with the Britaines into Wales, about the yeare of Christ, 587. Thus much out of Joceline of the Archbishops: the credit whereof I leaue to the iudgement of the learned, for I reade of a Bishop of London (not before named) in the yeare of Christ 326. to be present at the 2. councell, holden at Arles, in the time of Constantine the great, who subscribed thereunto in these wordes, Ex prouincia Britaniz Ciuitate Londinensi Restitutus Episcopus, as plainly appeareth in the first Tome of the Councelles: hee writeth not himselfe Archbishop, and therefore maketh the matter of Archbishops doubtful, or rather ouerthroweth that opinion.

. Tome Conc.

The Saxons being Pagans, having chased the Britons with the Christian preachers into the mountaines of Wales and Cornewall: and hauing diuided this kingdome of the Britons amongst themselues, at the length, to wit, in the yeare 596. Pope Gregory moued (of) a godly instinction (sayeth Bede) in the 147. yeare after the arriual of the Angles or Saxons in Britaine, sent Augustine, Melitus, Iustus and John with other Monks to preach the gospel to the saide Nation of the Angles: these landed in the Ile of Thanet, and were first receiued by Ethelbert, King of Kent, whome they conuerted to the faith of Christ with diuers other of his people in the 34. yeare of his raigne, which Ethelbert gaue vnto Augustine the City of Canterbury. |

This Augustine in the yeare of Christ 604, consecrated Melitus and Iustus bishops, appointing Melitus to preach vnto the East Saxons, whose chiefe citie was London: and there K. Sebert Nephew to Ethelbert by preaching of Melitus receiued the word of life: and then Ethelbert, king of Kent builded in the Citie of London S. Pauls Church, wherein Melitus began to bee Bishop in the yeare 619. and sate fife yeares. Ethelbert by his charter gaue lands to this Church of S. Paul: so did other kings after him. King Sebert through the good life, and like preaching of Melitus, hauing receiued Baptisme, to shew himself a Christian builded a Church to the honour of God and S. Peter, on the west side of London, which Church is called Westminster, but the successors of Sebert, being Pagans, expelled Melitus out of their kingdomes.

Saint Pauls Church in London first founded.

1. Melitus first Bishop of London, 619.

Iustus the second, Bishop for a time, and then Melitus againe: after whose decease, the seate was voyde for a time: at length Sigebert, sonne to Sigebert, brother to Sebert, ruled in Essex: he became a Christian, and tooke to him a holy man named Cedde, or Chadde, who wan many by preaching and good life to the Christian religion.

2. Iustus, 624.

Cedde, or Chad, was by Finan consecrated Bishop of the East Saxons, and he ordred Priests and Deacons in all the parts of Essex, but especially at Ithancaster, and Tilberie.

3. Cedde, B. of London, 658: Ithancaster, and Tilberie. Raphe Cogshall.

This Citie of Ithancaster (sayth Raph Cogshall) stood on the banke of the riuer Pante that runneth by Maldun in the hundred of Danesey, but now is drowned in Pante, so that nothing remaineth but the ruine of the Citie in the Riuer. Tilberie (both the West and East) standeth on the Thames side, nigh ouer agaynst Grauesend.

Wina, expelled from the Church of Winchester by Cenewalche the king, was adopted to be the Bishop of London in the raigne of Wolferus king of Mercia, and sat 9. yeares.

4. Wina, 666.

Erkenwalde, borne in the castle, or towne of Stallingborough in Lindsey, first Abbot of Crotsey<sup>1</sup>, was by Theodore arch-bishop of Canterburie, appointed to be Bishop of the East

Saxons, in the Citie of London. This Erkenwald in the yeare of Christ 677. before he was made Bishop, had builded two Monasteries, one | for himselfe, being a Monke in the Isle of Crote in Surrey, by the riuer of Thames, and another for his sister Edilburge, being a Nun, in a certain place called Berching in Essex: he deceased at Berching in the yeare 697. and was then buried in Pauls church, and translated into the new Church of saint Paule in the yeare 1148.

6. Waldhere 697.
King Sebba became a
Pauls Church.

Waldhere was Bishop of London. Sebba, king of the East Saxons, at his hands receyued the habite of Monke, for at that time there were Monkes in Pauls church, as writeth Radulphus De Diceto<sup>1</sup>, and others. To this Bishop he brought a great summe of money, to bee bestowed and giuen to the poore, reseruing nothing to himselfe, but rather desired to remaine poore in goodes, as in Spirit, for the Kingdome of Heauen: when hee had raigned thirty yeare, hee deceased at Pauls, and was there buried, and lyeth nowe in a coffin of stone on the North side of the Isle next the Quire.

7. Ingwaldus,
716.

Ingwaldus, Bishop of London, was at the consecration of Tatwine, Archbishop of Canterbury: he confirmed the foundation of Crowland in the yeare 716. sayth Ingulfus, and deceased in the yeare 744. as sayth Houeden.

746. Engulfe, Bishop of London.

754. Wichet, or Wigerus, Bishop of London.

761. Eadbrightus, or Edbrithe, Bishop of London.

768. Eadgain, or Eadgarus, Bishop of London.

773. Kenewallth, Bishop of London.

784. Eadbaldus, Bishop of London.

795. Heatbright, Bishop of London, deceased 802. saith Houeden.

813. Osmond Bishop of London: he was witnesse to a Charter made to Crowland in the yeare 833. saith Ingulfus.

835. Ethelnothe, Bishop of London.

838. Elbertus, or Celbertus<sup>2</sup> Bishop of London.

841. Deorwulf,<sup>3</sup> Bishop of London.

850. Swithulfus, Bishop of London: he likewise was witnesse to a Charter of Crowland 851.

870. Vlfsius Bishop of London.
878. Ethelwardus, Bishop of London.
886. Elstanus Bishop of London, died in the yeare 900. saith Asser: and all these, sayth the Authour of Flores Historiarum, were buried in the old church of saint Paule, but there remayneth now no memorie of them.
900. Theodricus Bishop of London: this man confirmed king Edreds Charter, made to Winchester in the yere 947. wherby it seemeth that he was Bishop of London of a later time then he is here placed.
922. Welstanus Bishop of London.
941. Brithelme Bishop of London.
958. Dunstanus Abbot of Glastonberie, then Bishop of Worcester, and then Bishop of London: he was afterward translated to Canterburie, 960.
960. Ealfstanus bishop of London, the 28. in number.
981. Edgare bishop of London: he confirmed the graunts made to Winchester, and to Crowland, 966, and againe to Crowland 970. the Charter of Etheldred, concerning Vlfrunhampton, 996.
1004. Elphinus bishop of London.
1010. Alwinus bishop of London.
1012. Alfhune bishop of London: he was sent into Normandie in the yeare 1013. sayth Asser.
1044. Robert a Monke of Gemerisins<sup>1</sup> in Normandie, bishop of London 7 yeares, afterward translated from London to Canterberie.
1050. Specgasius elected, but reiected by the king.
1051. William, a Norman, Chaplaine to Edward the Confessor, was made bishop of London, 1051. sate 17. yeares, and deceased 1070. He obtained of William the Conqueror the charter of liberties for the citie of London, as I haue set downe in my Summarie, and appeareth by his Epitaph in Paules church.
1070. Hugh de Orwell bishop of London: hee died of a leprosie when he had sitten fiteene yeares.

1199. William S. Mary Church, a Norman, bishop of London, who was one of the three Bishops that by the Popes commaundement executed his interdiction or curse vpon the whole realme of England, but he was forced with the other Bishops to flie the Realme in 1208. and his Castell at Stortforde<sup>1</sup> in Essex, was by commaundement of king John ouerthrowne, 1210. This William in companie of the Archbishop of Canterburie and of the Bishop of Elie went to Rome, and there complained agaynst the king 1212. and returned, so as in the yeare 1215. King John in the Church of Saint Paule, at the handes of this William tooke vpon him the Crosse for the holy land: hee resigned his Bishopricke of his owne voluntarie, in the yeare, 1221. sayth Cogshall. |

1221. Eustachius de Fauconbridge, Treasurer of the Exchequer (saith Paris) Chancellor of the Exchequer (sayth Taxtor, and Cogskall) bishop of London, 1223. whilest at Chelmesforde he was giuing holy Orders, a great tempest of winde and raine annoyed so many as came thither, whereof it was gathered, how highly God was displeased with such as came to receyue Orders, to the ende they might liue a more easie life of the Stipende appoynted to the Church men, giuing themselves to banketting, and so with vncleane and filthie bodies, (but more vncleane soules) presume to minister vnto God, the Authour of puritie and cleannesse. Falcatus de Breut was deliuered to his custodie in the yeare 1224. This Eustachius deceased in the yeare 1228. and was buried in Paules Church, in the South side without or aboute the Quire.

1229. Roger Niger Archdeacon of Colchester, made Bishop of London. In the yeare 1230. sayth Paris, vpon the feast day of the conuersion of S. Paul, when he was at Masse in the Cathedrall Church of S. Paule, a great multitude of people being there present, suddenly the weather waxed darke, so as one could scantly see another, and an horrible thunderclap lighted on the Church, which so shooke it that it was like to haue fallen, and therewithal out of a darke cloude proceeded a flash of lightning, that all the Church seemed to be on fire, whereupon such a stench ensued, that all men thought they should haue died: thousands of men and women ran out of the church, and being astonied fell vpon the ground voyd of all sence and vnderstanding, none of all the multitude tarried in the Church, saue the Bishop and one Deacon, which stood still before the high Aultar, awayting the will of God: when the ayre was cleansed, the multitude returned into the Church, and the bishop ended the seruice.

This Roger Niger is commended to haue beene a man of worthy life, excellently well learned, a notable Preacher, pleasant in talke, milde of countenance, and liberall at his table. He admonished the Vsurers of his time to leaue Mathew Paris. such enormities, as they tendered the saluation of theyr soules, and to doe penance for that they had committed:

but when hee sawe they laughed him to scorne, and also threatned him, the bishop generally excommunicated and accursed all such, and commaunded streightly that such Usurers should depart farther from the Citie of London, which hither towards had beene ignoraunt of such mischief and wickednesse, least his Dioces should be infected therewithall. He fell sicke, and dyed at his Mannor of Bishops hall, in the lordship and parish of Stebunheth, in the yeare 1241, and was buried in Pauls Church, on the north side of the Presbiterie, in a faire tombe coped, of gray Marble.

Of all these Hospitals, being twenty in number, you may reade before in their seuerall places, as also of good and charitable prouisions made for the poore, by sundrie well disposed Cittizens.

IT is to be obserued, that leprose persons were alwayes, for <sup>Leuiticus 15.</sup> auoiding the daunger of infection, to be separated from the <sup>Numbers 5.</sup> sound, &c. God himselfe commaunding to put out of the Host <sup>Leprose per-</sup> euery leaper. Whereupon I reade that in a prouinciall Synode <sup>sons to be</sup> holden at Westminster by Hubert Archbishoppe of Canterbury, <sup>separated from</sup> in the yeare of Christ 1200. the second of king Iohn, it was decreed according to the institution of the Lateran Counsaile, that when so many leprose people were assembled, that might bee able to builde a Church with a Churchyard for themselves, and to haue one especiall priest of their owne, that they should bee permitted to haue the same without contradiction, so they bee not iniurious to the olde Churches, by that which was graunted to them for pitties sake. And further it was decreede, that they bee not compelled to giue any Tithes of their Gardens or increase of cattell.

I haue moreouer heard, that there is a writte in our Law, <sup>Leprouse per-</sup> de leproso amouendo, and I haue read that king Edward the <sup>sons to be</sup> third in the 20. yeare of his raigne, gaue commaundement to <sup>voided the</sup> the mayor and Shiriffes of London, to make proclamation in <sup>Citty.</sup>

euery Ward of the citty and suburbes, that all leprose persons inhabiting there should auoid within fifteen dayes next, and that no man suffer any | such leprose person to abide within his house, vpon paine to forfeite his said house, and to incurre the kinges further displeasure: And that they should cause the said Lepers to be remoued into some out places of the fieldes, from the haunt or company of sound people: whereupon certaine Lazar houses, as may be supposed, were then builded without the cittie some good distance, to wit, the locke without Southwarke in Kent street, one other betwixt the Miles end and Stratford Bow, one other at Kingsland, betwixt Shoreditch and Stoke Newington, and an other at Knights bridge, west from Charing crosse. These foure I haue noted to bee erected for the receit of Leprouse people sent out of the citty. At that time also the cittizens required of the Gardian of saint Giles hospitall, to take from them, and to keepe continually, the number of foureteene persons leprous, according to the foundation of Matilde the Queene, which was for leprous persons of the cittie of London and the shire of Middlesex, which was granted: more, the Wardens or Keepers of the Portes, Gates or Posternes of this citty were sworne in the Mayors court before the Recorder, &c. That they should well and faithfully keepe the same Portes and Posternes, and not to suffer any leprous person to enter the sayde citty.

Iohn Gardener Porter of the Postern by the Tower his oth before the Mayor and Recorder of London, on Monday after the feast of saint Bartlemew, the 49. of Edward the third: That the Gates and Posterne be well and faithfully kept in his office and Baylywicke, and that he should not suffer any leapers or leaper to enter the citty, or to remaine in the suburbes, and if any leaper or leapers force themselues to enter by his Gates or Posterne, hee to binde them fast to horses, and send them to bee examined of the superiors, &c.

Finally, I read that one William Pole Yeoman of the crowne to king Edward the fourth, being stricken with a leprosie, was also desirous to build an Hospitall, with a chappell to the honour of God and saint Anthony, for the reliefe and harborow of such leprous persons as were destitute in the kingdome, to the end they should not be offensiue to other in their passing to and fro: for the which cause Edward the 4. did by his charter dated the | 12. of his raigne, giue vnto the said W. for Page 501 euer, a certaine parcell of his land, lying in his high way of Highgate, and Haloway, within the Countie of Middlesex, Lazar house at Holoway. containing 60. foote in length, & 34. in breadth.

The temporall Gouernment of this City, somewhat in briefe manner.

THIS Citie of London being vnder the gouernment of the Britons, Romaines, and Saxons, the most ancient and famous City of the whole realme, was at length destroyed by the Danes, and left desolate: as may appeare by our histories. But Patent. Ascrius Meneuen. Florencius Wigorn. Marianus Scotus. Aelfred king of the west Saxons, hauing brought this whole realme (from many parts) into one Monarchie, honourably repayred this Citie, and made it againe habitable, and then committed the custody thereof to his sonne in law Adhered Earle of Mercia: after whose decease the Citie with all other possessions, pertayning to the saide Earle, returned to king Edward surnamed the Elder, &c. And so remained in the kings hands, being gouerned vnder him by Portgraues (or Portgraues. Portreues) which name is compounded of the two saxon words, porte, and gerefe or reue. Porte betokeneth a Towne, and Gerefe signifieth a Gardian, ruler or keeper of the towne. Robert Fabian.

These Gouernors of old time (saith Robert Fabian) with the lawes and customes then vsed within this citie, were registred in a booke called the Doomes day, written in the saxon tongue: but of later dayes when the said lawes and customes were changed, and for that also the said booke was of a small hand, sore defaced, & hard to be red or vnderstood, it was lesse set by, so that it was imbeseled, & lost. Thus farre Fabian.

Notwithstanding I haue found by search of diuers old Registers and other record abroad, namely in a booke some- Li. S. Albanie. time appertayning to the Monastery of saint Albons, of the Portgraues, & other Gouernors of this citie, as followeth.

First, that in the raigne of king Edward the last before the conquest, Wolfegare was Portgraue: as may appeare by the Page 502 Charter of the same king, in these words. Edward king, greeteth Alfward Bishop, and Wolfgar my Portgraue, & all the Burgesses of London. And afterward that in another charter, king Edward greeteth William Bishop, and Swetman my Portgraue. And after that in another charter to the Abbey of Chertsey, to William Bishop, and Leofstane, and Alssy Portgraues. In the raigne of William Conqueror, William Bishop of London procured of the said Conqueror his Charter of liberties, to the same William Bishop, & Godfrey Portgraue, in saxon tongue, and corrected in English thus :

Cittizens of
Burgesses.

Charter of W.
Conquerour.

William king greet W. Bishop, & Godfrey Portgraue, & all the Burgesses within London, French and English. And I graunt that they be all their law worth, that they were in Edwards dayes the king. And I will that each child bee his fathers heire. And I will not suffer that any man do you wrong, and God you keepe. And then in the raigne of the said Conqueror & of W. Rufus, Godfrey de Magnaule was Portgraue, (or shiriffe) as may appeare by their Charters, and

Richard de Par was Prouost.

Leyland.

After them Aubery de Vere was Portgraue, and Robert Bar Querel Prouost. This Aubery de Vere was slaine in the raigne of K. Stephen. It is to be noted also that K. H. the first granted to the Cittizens of London the Shriuewicke thereof, and of Middlesex, as in another place is shewed.

Shiriffes.

In the raigne of king Stephen, Gilbert Becket was Portgraue, and Andrew Bucheuet Prouost.

After him, Godfrey Magnaule, the sonne of William, the sonne of Godfrey Magnaule, by the gift of Maulde the Empresse, was Portgraue or shiriffe of London and Middlesex, for the yearely farme of three hundred pound, as appeareth by the Charter.

In the time of king H. the second, Peter Fitz Walter was Portgraue: after him, Iohn Fitz Nigel was Portgraue: after him Ernulfus Buchel became Portgraue: and after him,

William Fitz Isabel. These Portgraues are also in diuers recordes called Vicecounties, Vicounties, or shiriffes, as being vnder an Earle, for that they then, as since, vsed that office as the shiriffes of London do till this day. Some Authors do call them Domesmen, Eldermen, or Judges of the kings Court.

Portgraues, since called Shiriffes, and Iudges of the Kings Court, & haue therefore vnder Shiriffes men learned in the law, to sit in their Courts. Domesmen of Iudges of the kings Court.

William Fitz Stephen, noting the estate of this Citie, and gouvernement thereof, in his time vnder the raigne of king Stephen, and of Henry the second, hath these words.

This Cittie (saith he) euen as Rome, is diuided into wardes, it hath yearely shiriffes insteade of Consuls, it hath the Dignity of Senators and Aldermen, it hath vnder Officers, & according to the quality of lawes, it hath seuerall Courts, and general assemblies vpon appointed dayes. Thus much for the antiquity of shiriffes, and also of Aldermen, in seuerall Wardes of this Cittie, may suffice. And now for the name of Bailiffes, and after that, of Maiors as followeth.

In the first yeare of king Richard the first, the Citizens of London obtained to be gouerned by two Bailiffes, which bailiffes are in diuers ancient deeds called shiriffes, according to the speech of the lawe, which called the shire Ballina, for that they, like as the Portgraues, vsed the same office of shriuewicke, for the which the City paid to fee farme three hundreth pounds yearely as before, since the raigne of Henry the first, which also is yet paid by the Citie into the Exchequer vntill this day.

Bailiffes of London.

They also obtained to haue a Maior, to be their principall Gouvernour and Lieftenant of the citie, as of the kings Chamber.

1189. The names of the first Bailiffes, or Officers, entring into their office at the feast of Saint Michael the Archangell; in the yeare of Christ 1189. were named<sup>1</sup> Iohn Herlison, Roger Duke, William de Hauerhill,<sup>1</sup> bailiffes or sheriffes.

} Gentlemens men 7.

Whereof nine of these haue Liuries of the Lord Mayor, viz. The sword bearer and his man, the three Caruers and the foure Yeomen of the water side. All the rest haue their Liuries from the Chamber of London.

Thus farre after my notes deliuered by an Officer of the Lord Maiors house, but vnperfect: for I remember a Crowner, an vnder Chamberlaine, and foure Clarkes of the Maiors Court, and others.

The Shiriffes of London their Officers

THE Shiriffes of London, in the yeare 1471. were appointed each of them to haue 16. Sergeants, euery Sergeant to haue his Yeoman. And 6. Clarkes, to wit, a Secondary, a Clarke of the Papers, and 4. other Clarkes, besides the vnder shiriffes Clarkes, their Stewards, Butlers, Porters, and other in household many. |

Of the Maiors and Shiriffes Liuries somewhat.

TO follow president of former time, the Clarkes of Companies were to enquire for them of their companies that would haue the Maiors Lyuery, their money as a beneuolence giuen, which must be xx s. at the least put in a purse, with theyr names that gaue it, and the Wardens to deliuer it to the Mayor by the first of December, for the which euery man had then sent him foure yeardes of broade Cloath rowed or striped thwart, with a different colour to make him a Gowne, and these were called rey Gownes, which was then the Liury of the Mayor, and also of the Shiriffes, but each differing from others in the colours.

Of Older times I reade, that the Officers of this Cittie ware Gownes of partie colours, as the right syde of one colour, and the left syde of an other: as for example, I reade in Bookes of accountes in the Guildhall, that in the 19. yeare of Henrie the sixt, there was bought for an Officers Gowne two yeards of Cloath, coloured Mustard villars (a colour now out of vse) and two yeardes of Cloath coloured blew, price two shillings the yeard, in all eight shillings. More, paid to John Pope, Draper, for two Gowne clothes, eight yeards of two colours eux ambo deux de rouge (or red) medley brune and porre (or purple) colour, price the yeard 2. s. These Gownes were for Piers Rider, and John Bukles, Clarkes of the Chamber.

More, I reade that in the yeare 1516. in the seuenth of Henrie the 8. it was agreed by a common Councill in the Guildhall, that the shiriffes of London should (as they had beene accustomed) giue yearely Reved Gownes, to the Recorder, Chamberlaine, common Sergeant, and common Clarke, the Sworde bearer, Common hunt, Water Bayly, common Crier, like as to their owne Officers, &c.

1525. More, in the 16. of Henrie the eight, sir William Bayly then being Maior, made a request for that clothes of Ray (as hee alledged) were euill wrought, his Officers might bee permitted (contrarie to custome) for that yeare to weare Gownes of one colour, to the which in a common Councill Page 140 one answered and said, yea, it might be permitted, and no man said nay, and so it passed. Thus much for partie coloured, and Ray Gownes haue I read. But for beneuolence to the Maior, I find that of later time, [that] each man giuing fortie shillings towards his charges, receyued foure yeards of broade cloath to make him a Gowne, for Thomas White performed it in the first of Queene Mary, but sir Thomas Lodge gaue in stead of foure yeards of broad cloth, three yards of Satten to make them Dublets, and since that the three yards of Satten is turned into a siluer spoone, and so it holdeth.

1. Alhallowen day.
2. Christmasse day.
3. Saint Stephens day.
4. Saint Iohns day.
5. New years day.
6. Twelfe day.
7. Candlemasse day.

The 23. of Henrie the eight, these companies had place at the Maiors feast, in the Guild hall in order as followeth, I speake by president, for I was neuer feast-follower.

These Companies seuerally at sundry times purchased the kinges fauour and licence by his Letters Patentes, to associate themselues in Brotherhoodes with maister and Wardens for their gouernment, many also haue procured Corporations with Priuileges, &c. but I reade not of licence by them procured for Liuries to be worne, but at their Gouernours discretion to appoint as occasion asketh, some time in triumphant manner, some time more mourning like, and such Liuries haue they taken vpon them, as well before as since, they were by licence associated into Brotherhoods or Corporations. For the first of these companies that I reade of to bee a Guild, Brotherhoode or Fraternitie in this Cittie were the Weauers, whose Guild was confirmed by Henry the second. The next Fraternity, which was of saint Iohn Baptist, time out of minde called of Taylors, and Linnen Armorers of London, I find that king Edwarde the first, in the 28. of his raigne, confirmed that Guild by the name of Taylors and Linnen Armorers, and gaue to the Brethren | there of authority, yearely to chuse vnto them a Gouernour or Maister with Wardens, &c. The other Companies haue since purchased licence of societies, Brotherhoodes, or Corporations in the raignes of Edwarde the thirde, Richard the second, Henry the fourth, Henry the fift, Henry the sixt, and Edward the fourth, &c.

1236. THE twentieth of Henry the third, The Mayor, Aldermen, Shiriffes and Cittizens of London rode out to meete the King and his new wife, Queen Elianor, daughter to Reymond Beringarius of Aragon, Earle of Prouince and Narbone. The Cittizens were clothed in long garments, embroydered about with gold, and silke of diuers colours, their horses finelie trapped, to the number of three hundred sixtie, euerie man bearing a golden or siluer cuppe in his hande, the kinges Trumpets before them sounding, &c. as yee may reade in my Annales.

1300. The 29. of Edward the first, the saide king tooke to wife Margaret sister to Philip Le Bew king of Fraunce, they were married at Canterbury. The Queene was conuayed to London, against whome the Cittizens to the number of sixe hundred rode in one Liuerie of red and white, with the cognisances of their misteries embroydered vpon their sleeues, they receiued her foure miles out of London, and so conueyed her to Westminster.

1415. The 3. of Henry the fift, the said king arriuing at Douer, the mayor of London with the Aldermen and craftes men riding in red with hoods red and white, met with the king on the Blacke Hith, comming from Eltham with his prisoners out of France.

1432. The 10. of Henry the sixt, hee being crowned in France, returning into England, came to Eltham towards London, and the Mayor of London Iohn Welles, the Aldermen, with the comminalty rode against him on Horsebacke, the Mayor in Crimson | veluet, a great veluet hat furred, a girdle of golde aboute his middle, and a Bawdrike of gold about his necke trilling down behind him, his three Henxemen, on three great coursers following him, in one sute of red, all spangled in siluer, then the Aldermen in Gownes of scarlet, with sanguine hoodes, and all the Comminaltie of the citty cloathed in white gownes, and scarlet hoods, with diuers cognizances embrodered on their sleeues, &c.

1485. The first of Henrie the seuenth, The Mayor, Aldermen, Shiriffes and Comminality, all cloathed in Violet (as in a mourning colour) mette the king at Shorditch, and conuayed him to Powles Church, where hee offered his Banners.

Thus much for liueries of Cittizens in auncient times, both in triumphes and otherwise, may suffice, whereby may be obserued that the couerture of mens heads was then hoodes, for neyther Cappe or hat is spoken of, except that John Wels Mayor of London to were a hat in time of triumph, but differing from the hattes lately taken in vse, and now commonly worne for Noble mens Liueries. I reade that Thomas Earle of Lancaster in the raigne of E. the second gaue at Christmas in Liueries, to such as serued him, 159. broade cloathes, allowing to euery garment furies to furre their hoodes: more nearer our time, there yet remeyneth the counterfeites and pictures of Aldermen, and other that liued in the raignes of Henrie the sixte and Edwarde the fourth, namely Alderman Darby dwelled in Fenchurch street over against the parrish church of S. Diones, left his picture, as of an Alderman in a gowne of skarlet on his backe, a hoode on his head, &c. as is in that house (and else where) to bee seene: for a further monument of those late times, men may beholde the glasse Windows of the Mayors court in the Guild hall about the stayrs, the mayor is there pictured, sitting in habite, party coloured, and a hoode on his head, his Sworde-bearer before him with an hatte or Cappe of maintenance: the Common Clarke, and other officers bare headed, their hoodes on their shoulders: and therefore I take it, that the vse of square bonets worne by Noble men, Gentlemen, Cittizens and others, tooke beginning in this | Realm by Henry the seuenth, and in his time, and of further antiquitie I can see no counterfeyte or other prooue of vse. Henry the eight (towards his latter raigne) wore a round flat cap of scarlet or of veluet, with a bruch or Jewell, and a feather, diuers Gentlemen, Courtiers, and other did the like. The youthfull Cittizens also tooke them to the new fashion of flatte caps, knit of woollen yearne blacke, but so light that they were forced to tye them vnder their chins, for else the wind would be maister ouer them. The vse of these flat round cappes so far increased (being of lesse price then the French Bonet) that in short time some yong Aldermen tooke <to> the wearing of them, Sir Iohn White ware it in his Maioralty, and was the first that left example to his Followers, but now the spanish felt, or the like counterfeyte, is most commonly of all men both spirituall and temporall taken to vse, so that the French Bonet or square cappe, and also the round or flat cap, haue for the most parte giuen place to the spanish felte, but yet in London amongst the grauer sort, (I meane the Liueries of Companies) remayneth a memory of the hoodes of olde time worne by their predecessors: These hoodes were worne, the Roundelets vpon their heads, the skirts to hang behind in their neckes to keep them warme, the tippet to lye on their shoulder, or to wind about their neckes, these hoodes were of olde time made in colours according to their gownes, which were of two colours, as red and blew or red and purple, murrey, or as it pleased their Masters and wardens to appoint to the Companies, but now of late time, they haue vsed their gowns to be al of one colour, and those of the sadest; but their hoodes being made the one halfe of the same cloath their gownes be of, the other halfe remayneth red as of old time.

NOW since that I haue given you an outward view of this Page 546 City, it shall not be impertinent to let you take an insight also of the same, such as a Londoner borne discoursed aboue twenty yeares agoe, for aunswere (as it seemeth) to some obiections, that then were made against the growing greatnes thereof. The author gaue it me, & therefore, howsoeuer I conceale his name (which it selfe pretendeth not), I thinke I may without his offence impart it to others, that they may take pleasure in the reading as I doubt not but he did in the writing. Long may they (that list) enuie, and long may wee and our posterity enioy the good estate of this Cittie. |

196 An Apologie of the Cittie of London

Page 547 A Discourse of the names and first causes of the institution of Cities and peopled townes. And of the commodities that doe growe by the same: and namely of the Cittie of London. Written by way of an Apologie (or defence) against the opinion of some men, which thinke that the greatnes of that Cittie standeth not with the profit and securitie of this Realme.

CITTIES and well peopled places bee called Oppida, in Latine, eyther ab ope danda, or ab opibus, or ab opponendo se hostibus. They be named also Ciuitates a coeundo, and urbes either of the word urbare, because the first inclosure of them was described with the draught of a plow, or else ab orbe, for the rounde compasse that they at the first had.

In the Greeke a cittie is tearmed πόλις, eyther of the worde πολὺς, multus, or of πολεύω, πολεύειν, id est, habitare, alere, gubernare.

In the Saxon (or old English) sometimes Tun, which wee now call towne, deriued of the word Tynan, to inclose or tyne, as some yet speake. But for as much as that worde was proper to euery village, and inclosed dwelling, therefore our auncesters called their walled townes byrh or byrig, and wee now Bury and Borow, of the Greeke word πύργος, (as I thinke) which signifieth a Tower or a high building.

The walles of these townes had their name of vallum, because at the first they were but of that earth which was cast out of the trench or ditch wherewith they were enuironed.

Page 548 But afterward, being made of matter more fitte for defence, they were named a muniendo mænia. By the Etimologie of these names, it may appeare that common Weales, Citties and townes, were at the first inuented to the end that men might lead a ciuill life amongst themselues, and bee saued harmeles againe theyr enemies: whereupon Plato saith, Ciuitates ab initio utilitatis causa constitutæ sunt. Aristotle, 1. Politicorum, 2. saith, Ciuitas a natura profecta est: homo enim animal aptum est ad cætus, et proinde ciuitatis origo ad viuendum, institutio ad

bene viuendum refertur. And Cicero, lib. primo de inuentione, in the beginning saith: Fuit quoddam tempus cum in agris homines passim bestiarum more vagabantur, &c., quo quidem tempore, quidam (magnus viz. vir et sapiens) dispersos homines in agris, & tectis siluestribus abditos, ratione quadam compulsi in vnum locum, atque eos in vnamquamque rem induxit vtilem & honestam. Vrbibus vero constitutis fidem colere, & iustitiam retinere discebant, et aliis parere sua voluntate consuescebant &c. The same man discourseth notable to the same effect, in his Oration pro Sestio, a little after the middest thereof, shewing that in the life of men dispersed, vis beareth all the sway: but in the ciuill life and societie, ars is better maintained, &c. This thing well saw king William the Conqueror, who in his lawes, fol. 125. saith, Burgi et Ciuitates fundatæ & edificatæ sunt, ad tuitionem gentium & populorum Regni, & idcirco obseruari debent cum omni libertate, integritate & ratione. And his predecessors, king Ethelstane, and king Canutus in their lawes, fol. 62, and 106. had commaunded thus: Oppida instaurentur, &c.

Seeing therefore that as Cicero, 2. officior., saith, Proxime et secundum Deos, homines hominibus maxime utiles esse possunt. And that men are congregated into Citties and commonwealthes, for honestie and vtilities sake, these shortly bee the commodities that do come by citties, comminalties, and corporations. First, men by this nearenes of conuersation are withdrawn from barbarous feritie and force to a certaine mildnes of manners and to humanity and iustice: whereby they are contented to giue and take right, to and from their equals and inferiors, and to heare and obey their heades and superiors. Also the doctrine of God | is more fitly deliuered, Page 548 and the discipline thereof more aptely to bee executed, in peopled townes then abroad, by reason of the facilitie of common and often assembling. And consequently, such inhabitantes be better managed in order, and better instructed in wisdom: whereof it came to passe that at the first, they that excelled others this way, were called astuti of the Greeke worde δωρυ, which signifieth a Citty, although the tearme bee now declined to the worst part, and doe betoken euil, euen as Tyrannus, Sophista, and some such other originally good wordes are fallen : And hereof also good behauiour is yet called Vrbanitas, because it is rather found in Citties, then else where. In summe, by often hearing, men be better perswaded in religion, and for that they liue in the eye of others, they bee by example the more easily trayned to iustice, and by shamefastnesse restrayned from iniurie.

And whereas commonwealthes and kingdomes cannot haue, next after God, any surer foundation, then the loue and good will of one man towards another, that also is closely bred and maintayned in Citties, where men by mutual societie and companying together, doe grow to alliances, comminalties and corporations.

The liberall sciences and learnings of all sortes, which bee lumina reipublicæ, doe flourish onely in peopled townes, without the which a realme is in no better case then a man that lacketh both his eyes.

Manual artes or Handy crafts, as they haue for the most part beene inuented in townes and citties, so they cannot any where else be eyther maintained or amended. The like is to bee sayde of Marchandize, vnder which name I comprehend all manner of buying, selling, bartering, exchaunging, communicating of thinges that men need to and fro. Wealth and riches, which are truely called subsidia belli, et ornamenta pacis, are increased chiefly in Townes and Citties both to the prince and people.

The necessity of the poore and needy is in such places both sooner to be espied, and hath meanes to be more charitably relieved.

The places themselues bee surer refuges in all extremities of forraine inuasion, and the inhabitantes be a ready hand & strength of men with munition to oppresse intestine sedition.

Moreover, for as much as the force of the warres of our time consisteth chiefly in shot, all other souldiers being either horse men or footemen armed on lande, or Mariners at the sea, it seemeth to me that Citizens and Townesmen be as fit to be imploied in any of these seruices, that on horsebacke onely excepted, as the inhabitants that be drawne out of the countrey.

Furthermore, euen as these societies and assemblies of men in Cities and great Townes, are a continuall bridle against tyranny, which was the cause that Tarquin, Nero, Dionisius, and such others haue alwayes sought to weaken them, So, being wel tempered, they are a strong forte and bulwarke not onely in the Aristocritie, but also in the lawfull kingdome or iust royalty.

At once the propagation of Religion, the execution of good policie, the exercise of Charity, and the defence of the countrey, is best performed by townes and Cities: and this ciuill life approacheth nearest to the shape of that mysticall body whereof Christ is the head, and men be the members: whereupon both at the first, that man of God Moyes, in the commonwealth of the Israelites, and the Gouvernours of all Countries in all ages sithence haue continually maintayned the same. And to chaunge it were nothing else but to Metamorphose the world, and to make wilde beastes of reasonable men. To stand longer vpon this it were, in re non dubia, uti oratione non necessaria: and therefore I will come to London.

The singularities of the City of London.

WHATSOEVER is said of Cities generally, maketh also for London specially: Howbeit these thinges are particularly for our purpose to bee considered in it. The scituation: the former estimation that it hath had: the seruice that it hath done: the present estate and gouernment of it, and such benefites as do grow to the realme by the maintenance thereof.

Seuerne, in the southwest, and Thames in the southeast: of the which, Thames both for the streight course in length reacheth furthest into the bellie of the land, and for the breadth and stilnesse of the water is most nauigable vp and downe the streame: by reason whereof London standing almost in the middle of that course, is more commodiously serued with prouision of necessities, then any towne standing vpon the other two Riuers can be, and doth also more easily

200 An Apologie of the Cittie of London

* | communicate to the rest of the Realme the commodities of her owne entercourse and trafficke.

This Riuer openeth indifferently vpon France and Flaunders, our mightiest neighbours, to whose doings wee ought to haue a bent eye, and special regard: and this Citie standeth thereon in such conuenient distance from the sea, as it is not onely neare enough for intelligence of the affayres of those Princes, and for the resistance of their attempts: but also sufficiently remoued from the feare of any sodaine daungers that may be offered by them: whereas for the Prince of this Realme to dwell vpon Trent, were to turne his backe, or blind side to his most daungerous borderers: and for him to rest and dwell vpon Seuerne, were to be shut vp in a cumbersome corner: which openeth but vpon Ireland onely, a place of much lesse importance.

Neither could London be pitched so commodiously vpon any other part of the same riuer of Thames, as where it now standeth. For if it were remoued more to the west, it should lose the benefit of the ebbing and flowing: and if it were seated more towards the East, it should be nearer to daunger of the enemie, and further both from the good ayre, and from doing good to the inner parts of the Realme: neither may I omit that none other place is so plentifully watered with springs, as London is.

And whereas, amongst other things, Corne and Cattell, Hay and Fuell be of great necessitie: of the which Cattell may be driuen frome afarre, and corne may easily be transported.

But Hay and Fuell, being of greater bulke and burthen, must be had at hande: onely London, by the benefit of this scituation and Riuer, may be sufficiently serued therewith.

Page 552 In which respect | an Alderman of London reasonably (as me thought) affirmed, that although London receiued great nourishment by the residence of the Prince, the repaire of the Parliament, and Courtes of Justice, yet it stooode principally by the aduantage of the scituation vpon the Riuer: for whenas on a time it was told him by a Courtier, that Queene Mary, in her displeasure against London, had appointed to remoue with the Parliament and Terme to Oxford, this playne man demaunded, whether she meant also to diuert the Riuer of Thames from London, or no? and when the Gentleman had answered no, then, quoth the Alderman, by Gods grace wee shall do well enough at London, whatsoeuer become of the Tearme and Parliament. I my selfe being then a young scholler at Oxford, did see great preparation made towards that Tearme and Parliament, and do well remember that the common opinion and voyce was, that they were not holden there because prouision of Hay could not be made in all the Countrey to serue for ten whole dayes together, and yet is that quarter plentifully stored with Hay for the proportion of the shire it selfe.

For prooffe of the ancient estimation of London, I will not vse the Authoritie of the Brittish Historie, nor of such as follow it, (although some hold it credible enough that London was first Trinobantum ciuitas, or Troia noua, that famous Citie in our Histories, and then Ludstoune, and by corruption London, as they report) because they bee not of sufficient force to drawe the gaynesayers. Neither will I stand much vpon that honourable testimony which Geruas. Tilberiens. giueth to London in his booke de otii Imperialibus, saying thus, concerning the blessing of God towards it,

Inuida fatorum series summisque negatum

Nam ea annis 354. ante Romam conditam numquam amisit principatum nec bello consumpta est.

But I will rather vse the credite of one or two auncient forraine writers, and then descend to latter histories. Cornel. Tacitus lib. 14. Annal. sayth, Londinum copia negociatorum et commelatumum maxime celebris; and Herodian in the life of Page 553 Seuerus the Emperour sayth, Londinum vrbs magna et opulenta. Beda, lib. Hist. Ecclesiastic. 1. Cha. 29. sheweth that Pope Gregory appointed two Archbishops Seas in England, the one at London, the other at Yorke; king Ethelstane in his lawes appointing how many Mint maisters should be in each Citie, allotteth eight to London, and not so many to any other

202 An Apologie of the Cittie of London

Citie. The Penner of those lawes that are said to be made by Edward the Confessor, and confirmed by William the Conqueror saith, London est caput Regni et Legum. King Henry the first, in the third Chapter of his lawes, commaundeth that no Citizen of London should be amerced aboue 100 s. for any pecuniarie paine. The great Charter of England, that Helena for which there was so long and so great warre and contention, in the ninth chapter saith, civitas London habeat omnes suas Libertates antiquas &c. About the time of King I. London was reputed regni firmata Columna, as Alexander Necham writeth, and in the beginning of the raigne of Richard the second it was called Camera regis, as Thomas Walsingham reporteth. I passe ouer the recitall of the Saxon Charter of king William the Conqueror, the latine Charters of Henry the first & second, of Richard the first, of John, and of Edward the first, all which gaue vnto the Citizens of London great Priuiledges, and of Edward the third, who reciting al the grants of his predecessors, not onely confirmed but also increased the same, and of the latter kings who haue likewise added many things thereunto. Onely I wish to be noted by them, that during all this time, all those wise and politique Princes haue thought it fit, not onely to maintaine London in such plight as they found it, but also to adorne, increase and amplifie it with singular tokens of their liberall fauour and good liking. And whether there be not now the same or greater causes to draw the like or better estimation and cherishing, let any man be iudge, that will take the paines to compare the present estate of London, yet still growing to better, with the former condition of the same.

It were too much to recite particularly the Martiall seruices that this city hath done from time to time: neither do I think that they be all committed to writing, only for a tast as it were, I will note these few following. |

Page 554 Almost 60. yeares before the Conquest, a huge armie of the Danes (whereof king Sweyne was the leader,) besieged king Etheldred in London (then the which as the storie sayeth then he had none other refuge), but they were manfully repulsed, and a great number of them slaine.

After the death of this Sweyne, his sonne Canutus (afterwarde king of England) besieged London, both by land and water: but after much labour finding it impregnable, he departed: and in the same yeare repaying his forces, he girded it with a new siege, in the which the Citizens so defended themselves, and offended him, that in the end he went away with shame.

In the dissention that arose betweene king Edward the Confessor & his father in law Earle Goodwin (which was the mightiest subiect within this land that euer I haue read of) the Earle with a great armie came to London, and was for all that by the countenance of the Citizens resisted, till such time as the Nobilitie made reconciliation betweene them. About 70. years after the Conquest, Maude the Emperesse made warre vpon king Stephen for the right of the Crowne, and had taken his person prisoner, but by the strength and assistance of the Londoners and Kentishmen, Maude was put to flight at Winchester, and her brother Robert, then Earle of Glocester, was taken in exchange, for whome King Stephen was deliuered. I dispute not whose right was better, but I auouch the seruice, seeing Stephen was in possession.

The Hystorie of William Walworth the Maior of London is well knowne, by whose manhooe and policie, the person of king Richarde the second was rescued, the Citie saued, Wat Tilar killed, and all his straglers discomfited, in rewarde of which seruice, the Maior and other Aldermen were knighted.

Jacke Cade also hauing discomfited the kinges Armie, that was sent agaynst him, came to London, and was there manfully and with long fight resisted, vntill that by the good policie of the Citizens his company was dispersed.

Finally, in the tenth yeare of the raigne of king Edward the fourth, and not many dayes before the death of Henrie the sixt, | Thomas Neuell, commonly called the bastard of Fauconbridge, armed a great companie agaynst the king, and being denied passage through London, he assaulted it on diuerse parts: but he was repulsed by the Citizens, and chased as farre as Stratford with the losse of a great many.

Thus much of certaine their principall, and personall seruices, in war onely, for it were infinite to repeate the particular aides of men and money which London hath ministered: and I had rather to leaue it to be coniectured at, by comparison to be made between it and other Cities, whereof I will giue you this one note for an example. In the 12. yeare of the raigne of king Edward the 2. it was ordered by Parliament, that euery City of the realme should make out souldiers agaynst the Scots: at which time London was appoynted to send 200. men, and Canterburie, being then one of our best Cities, 40. and no more. And this proportion of fīue<sup>1</sup> to one, is now in our age increased, at the least fīue<sup>1</sup> to one, both in souldiers and subsidie. As for the other seruices that London hath done in tymes of peace, they are to be measured by consideration of the commodities, whereof I will speake anon. In the meane season let the estate and gouernment of this City be considered to the end that it may appeare that it standeth well with the policie of the Realme.

Cæsar in his Commentaries is witnes, that in his time the Cities of Britaine had large territories annexed vnto them, and were seuerall estates of themselues, gouerned by particular kings or Potentates, as in Italie and Germany yet be: and that Mandubratius was king of the Trinobants, whose chiefe citie London is taken to haue beene. And I find not that this gouernment was altered, either by Cæsar, or his successors, notwithstanding that the Countrie became tributarie vnto them: but that it continued vntill at length the Britons themselves reduced all their peoples into one Monarchie, howbeit that lasted not any long season: for vpon Vortiger their king came the Saxons our Auncestors, and they draue the Britons into Wales, Cornwall, and Britaine in France, and in processe of Warre diuided the Country amongst themselues into an Eptarchie, or seauen kingdomes, of the which one was called the Kingdome of the East Saxons, | which hauing in maner the same limits that the Bishoprike of London now inioyeth, contayned Essex, Middlesex and a part of Hertfordshire, and so included London. Again, it appeareth that in course of time and about 800. yeares after Christ, Egbert (then K. of the west Saxons) Vt pisces sæpe minutos magnus comest, ouer-came the rest of the kings, and once more erected a Monarchie,

Now I doubt not (whatsoever London was in the time of Cæsar) but that vnder the Eptarchie and Monarchy it hath bene a subiect, and no free City, though happily endowed with some large priuiledges. For king William the Conqueror found a Portreeue there, whose name was Godfrey (by which name he greeteth him in his Saxon Charter<sup>1</sup>, and his office was none other then the charge of a Bayliffe, or Reeue, as by the selfe same name continuing yet in Grauesend, and certain other places, may well appeare. But the Frenchmen vsing their own language, called him sometime a Prouost, and sometime a Bayliffe: whatsoever his name and office were, he was perpetuus Magistratus, giuen by the Prince, and not chosen by the Citizens, as it seemeth, for what time king Richard the first needed money towards his expedition in the Holy land, they first purchased of him the Libertie to choose yearly from amongst themselues two Bayliffes: and king Iohn his successor, at their like sute changed their Bayliffes into a Maior, and two shiriffes. To these Henrie the third added Aldermen, at the first eligible yearely, but afterward by king Edward the third made perpetuall Magistrates, and Iustices of the peace within their wards, in which plight of government it presently standeth. This shortly as I could, is the Historical and outward estate of London: now come I to the inward pith and substance.

The estate of this Citie is to be examined by the quantitie, and by the qualitie.

The quantitie therefore consisteth in the number of the Citizens, which is very great, and farre exceedeth proportion of Hippodamus, which appoynted 10000. and of others which haue set downe other numbers, as meete stintes in theyr opinions to bee well gouerned, but yet seeing both reason and experience haue | freed vs from the law of any definite Page 557 number, so that other things be obserued, let that bee admitted: neither is London, I feare me, so great as populous: for well sayth one, Non idem est magna Ciuitas & frequens, magna est enim quæ multos habet qui arma ferre possunt, whatsoever the number bee, it breedeth no feare of sedition: for as much as the same consisteth not in the extreames, but in a verie medio-

critie of wealth and riches, as it shall better appeare anone. And if the causes of English rebellions be searched out, they shall bee found in effect to bee these twaine, Ambition and Couetousnes, of which the first raigneth in the mindes of high and noble personages, or of such others, as seeke to be gracious and popular, and haue robbed the hearts of the multitude, whereas in London, if any where in the worlde, honus vere onus est, and euery man rather shunneth then seeketh the Maioraltie which is the best marke amongst them, neyther hath there been any strong faction, nor any man more popular then the rest, forasmuch as the gouernment is by a Paterne, as it were, and alwayes the same, how oftensoeuer they change their Magistrate. Couetousnesse, that other Syre of sedition, possesseth the miserable and needy sort, and such as be naughty packes, vnthrifts, which although it cannot be chosen, but that in a frequent City as London is, there shall be found many, yet beare they not any great sway, seeing the multitude and most part there is of a competent wealth, and earnestly bent to honest labour. I confesse that London is a mighty arme and instrument to bring any great desire to effect, if it may be woon to a mans deuotion: wherof also there want not examples in the English Historie. But forasmuch as the same is by the like reason seruiceable and meete to impeach any disloyall attempt, let it rather be well gouerned then euil liked therefore, for it shall appeare anon that as London hath adhered to some rebellions, so hath it resisted many, and was neuer the author of any one. The qualitie of this Citty consisteth eyther in the law and gouer(n)ment thereof: or in the degrees and condition of the Citizens, or in their strength and riches.

It is besides the purpose to dispute, whether the estate of the gouernement here bee a Democratie, or Aristocratie, for whatsoeuer it bee, being considered in it selfe, certayne it is, that in respect of the whole Realme, London is but a Citizen, and no Citie, a subiect and no free estate, an obedienciarie, and no place indowed with any distinct or absolute power, for it is gouerned by the same law that the rest of the Realme is, both in causes Criminall, and Ciuill, a few customes onely excepted, which also are to bee adiudged or foriudged by the common law. And in the assembly of the estates of our Realme (which we call Parliament) they are but a member of the Comminaltie, and send two Burgesses for theyr Citie, as euerie poore Borough doth, and two knights for their Countie as euerie other shyre doth, and are as straightly bound by such lawes as any part of the Realme is, for if contribution in subsidie of money to the Prince bee decreed, the Londoners haue none exemption, no not so much as to asesse themselues: for the prince doth appoint the Commissioners.

If Souldiers must be mustered, Londoners haue no law to keepe themselues at home, if prouision for the Princes housholde bee to bee made, their goods are not priuiledged. In summe, therefore, the gouernment of London differeth not in substance, but in ceremonie from the rest of the realme, as namely, in the names and choise of their officers, and in their Guildes and Fraternities, established for the maintenance of Handicrafts, and Labourers, and for equitie and good order, to be kept in buying and selling. And yet in these also are they to be controlled by the generall law: for by the statutes 28. E. 3. Chap. 10. and 1. H. 4. Chap. 15. the points of their misgouernment are inquirable by the inhabitants of the Forren shyres adioyning and punishable by such Iusticiars as the Prince shall thereunto depute. To conclude therefore, the estate of London for gouernement is so agreeable a Symphony with the rest, that there is no feare of daungerous discord to ensue thereby.

The multitude (or whole body) of this populous Citie is two wayes to bee considered, generally and specially: generally, they bee naturall Subiects, a part of the Commons of this Realme, and are by birth for the most part a mixture of all countries of the same, by bloud Gentlemen, Yeomen and of the basest sort, without distinction, and by profession busie Bees, and trauellers for their liuing in the hieue of this common wealth, but specially considered, they consist of these three parts, Marchantes, Handicrafts men, and Labourers. Merchandise is also diuided into these three sortes, Nauigation, by the which Marchandizes are brought, and carried in and out ouerthe Seas: Inuection by the which commodities are gathered into the Citie, and dispersed from thence into the Countrey by lande: and Negotiation, which I may call the keeping of

208 An Apologie of the Cittie of London

a retayling or standing shop. In common speech they of the first sort be called Marchantes, and both the other Retaylers. Handicrafts men bee those which do exercise such artes as require both labour and cunning, as Goldsmithes, Taylors, and Haberdashers, Skinners, &c. Labourers and Hirelings I call those quorum operae non artes emuntur, as Tullie sayeth, of which sort be Porters, Carmen, Watermen, &c. Againe these three sortes may be considered, eyther in respect of their wealth, or number: in wealth Marchants, and some of the chiefe Retaylers haue the first place: the most part of Retaylers, and all artificers, the second or meane place: and Hyrelings the lowest roome: but in number they of the middle place be first, and doe farre exceede both the rest: Hyrelings be next, and Marchantes bee the last. Now, out of this, that the estate of London, in the persons of the Citizens, is so friendly enterlaced, and knit in league with the rest of the Realme, not onely at their beginning by birth and bloud as I haue shewed, but also verie commonly at their ending by life and conuersation (for that Marchantes and rich men, being satisfied with gaine, doe for the most part marry theyr Children into the Countrey, and conuey themselues after Ciceroes counsell, veluti ex portu in agros & possessiones): I doe inferre<sup>1</sup> that there is not onely no danger towards the common quiet thereby, but also great occasion and cause of good loue and amitie; out of this, that they be generally bent to trauell, and doe flie pouertie, per mare, per saxa, per ignes, as the Poet sayeth, I draw hope, that they shall escape the note of many vices, which idle people do fall into. And out of this, that they bee a great multitude, and that yet the greatest part of them be neyther too rich nor too poore, but doe liue in the mediocritie, I conclude with Aristotle, that the Prince needeth not to feare sedition by them, for thus sayth hee: Magnæ urbes magis sunt a seditione liberæ, quod in eis dominetur | mediocritas, nam in paruis nihil medium est, sunt enim omnes vel pauperes vel opulenti. I am now to come to the strength and power of this Cittie, which consisteth partly in the number of the Cittizens themselues, whereof I haue spoken before, partly in their riches, and in their warlike furniture, for as

The wealth and warlicke furniture of London is eyther publicke or priuate, & no doubt the common treasure cannot be much there, seeing that the reuenew which they haue hardly sufficeth to maintaine their bridge and Conduits, and to pay their Officers and seruantes. Their Tolle doth not any more then pay their Fee Farme, that they pay to the Prince. Their Issues for default of Appearances be neuer leuied, and the profites of their Courtes of Iustice do goe to particular mens handes. Argumentes hereof be these two, one that they can do nothing of extraordinarie charge without a generall contribution : an other that they haue suffered such as haue borne the chiefe office amongst them, and were become Bankrupt, to depart the Cittie without reliefe, which I think they neyther would nor could haue done, if the common tresure had sufficed to couer their shame, hereof therefore we need not be afraide. The publike armour and munition of this Citty remayneth in the Hals of the Companies, as it doth throughout the whole Realme for a great part in the Parrish churches, neyther is that kept together, but onely for obedience to the law, which commandeth it, and therefore if that threaten daunger to the estate it may by another law bee taken from them, and committed to a more safe Armourie.

The priuate riches of London resteth chiefly in the handes of the Marchantes and Retaylers, for Artificers haue not much to spare, and Labourers haue neede that it were giuen vnto them. Now how necessarie and seruiceable the estate of Marchandise is to this realme, it may partly appeare by the practise of that peaceable, politike and rich Prince king Henry the seauenth, of whome Polidore (writing his life) sayeth thus: Mercatores ille sæpenumero pecunia multa data gratuito inuabat, vt mercatura ars vna omnium cunctis æque mortalibus tum commoda, tum | necessaria, in suo regno copiosior esset. But Page 56r chiefly by the inestimable commodities that grow thereby: for who knoweth not that we haue extreame neede of many thinges, whereof forraine Countries haue great store, and that wee may spare many thinges whereof they haue neede: or who is ignorant of this, that wee haue no mines of siluer or golde within our realme: so that the encrease of our coyne and Bulloine commeth from else where, and yet neuertheless we be both fed, clad, and otherwise serued with forraine commodities and delightes, as plentiful as with our domesticall: which thing commeth to passe by the meane of Marchandise onely, which importeth necessities from other Countries, and exporteth the superfluities of our own. For seeing wee haue no way to encrease our treasure by mines of gold or siluer at home, and can haue nothing without money or ware from other countries abroad, it followeth necessarily, that if wee follow the counsel of that good olde husband Marcus Cato, saying, Oportet patrem familias vendacem esse, non emacem, and doe carrie more commodities in value ouer the seas, then we bring hether from thence, that then the Realme shall receiue that ouerplus in money: but if we bring from beyond the seas marchandise of more value, then that which we do send ouer may counteruaile, then the Realme payeth for that ouerplus in ready money, and consequently is a looser by that ill husbandrie: and therefore in this part great and heedefull regard must be had that Symmetria and due proportion be kept, least otherwise eyther the Realme bee defrauded of her treasure, or the subiectes corrupted in vanitie, by excessive importation of superfluous and needles Marchandize, or els that wee feelee penurie, euen in our greatest plentie and store, by immoderate exportation of our own needfull commodities. Other the benefites that marchandise bringeth, shall hereafter appeare in the general recitall of the commodities that come by London, and therefore it resteth that I speake a word of Retaylors, and finally shewe that much good groweth by them both. The chiefe part of Retayling, is but a handmaide to marchandise, dispersing by peecemeale, that which the marchant bringeth in grosse: of which trade be Mercers, Page 562 Grocers, Vinteners, Haberdashers, Ironmongers, Millayners, and al such as sell wares growing or made beyond the seas, and therefore so long as Marchandise it selfe shalbe profitable and such proportion kept as neyther we loose our treasure thereby nor be cloyed with vnecessary forrain wares, this kind of Retayling is to be retayned also.

Now that Marchantes and Retaylors of London be very rich and great, it is so farre from any harme, that it is a thing both prayseworthy and profitable: for Mercatura (sayeth Cicero) si tenuis est, sordida putanda est, sin magna est et copiosa non est vituperanda. And truely Marchants and Retaylars doe not altogether intus canere, and profit themselues only, for the prince and realme both are enriched by their riches: the realme winneth treasure, if their trade be so moderated by authority, that it breake not proportion, & they besides beare a good fleece, which the prince may sheare when shee<sup>1</sup> seeth good.

But here before I conclude this part, I haue shortly to aunswere the accusation of those men, which charge London with the losse and decay of many (or most) of the auncient Citties, Corporate Townes and markets within this Realme, by drawing from them to her selfe alone, say they, both all trade of traffique by sea, and the retayling of Wares, and exercise of Manuall Artes also. Touching Nauigation, which I must confesse, is apparantly decayed in many port townes, and flourisheth onely or chiefly at London, I impute that partly to the fall of the Staple, the which being long since a great trade, and bestowed sometimes at one town and sometimes at another within the realme, did much enrich the place where it was, and being now not onely diminished in force, but also translated ouer the seas, cannot but bring some decay with it, partly, to the empayring of hauens, which in many places haue empouerished those townes, whose estate doth ebbe and flow with them, and partly to the dissolution of religious houses, by whose wealth and haunt, many of those places were chiefly fedde and nourished. [I meane not to rehearse particular examples of euery sort: for the thing it selfe speaketh, and I hast to an ende: As for Retaylers therefore, and Handicraftes men, it is no maruaile if they abandon Countrie Townes, and resort to London: for | not onely the Court, which is now a dayes much greater & more gallant then in former times, and which was wonte to bee contented to remaine with a small companie, sometimes at an Abbey or

212 An Apologie of the Cittie of London

Priorie, sometimes at a Bishops house, and sometimes at some meane Mannor of the kings own, is now for the most part either abiding at London, or else so neare vnto it, that the prouision of thinges most fit for it, may easily be fetched from thence: but also by occasion thereof, the Gentlemen of all shires do flie and flock to this Citty, the yonger sort of them to see and shew vanity, and the elder to saue the cost and charge of Hospitality, and house keeping. For hereby it commeth to passe that the Gentlemen being eyther for a good portion of the yeare out of the Countrie, or playing the Farmours, Grasiars, Brewers or such like, more then Gentleman were wont to doe within the Countrie, Retaylers and Artificers, at the least of such thinges as pertayne to the backe or belly, do leaue the Countrie townes, where there is no vent, and do flie to London, where they be sure to finde ready and quicke market. And yet I wish, that euen as many Townes in the Low countries of king Philips doe stand some by one handy arte, and some by an other: so also that it might be prouided here that the making of some things, might (by discreete dispensation) be allotted to some speciall townes, to the end, that although the daintinesse of men cannot be restrayned, which will needes seeke those things at London, yet other places also might be relieued, at the least by the Workemanship of them.

Thus much then of the estate of London, in the gouernment thereof, in the condition of the Cittizens, and in their power and riches. Now follow(s) the enumeration of such benefites, as redound to the Prince and this Realme by this Citty: In which doing I professe not to rehearse all, but onely to recite and runne ouer the chiefe and principall of them.

Besides the commodities of the furtherance of Religion, and Iustice: The propagation of Learning: The maintenaunce of artes: The increase of riches, and the defence of Countries (all which are before shewed to grow generally by Citties, and be common to London with them) London bringeth singularly

By aduantage of the scituation it disperseth forraine Wares, (as the stomacke doth meat) to all the members most commodiously.

By the Benefite of the riuer of Thames, and greate trade of Marchandize, it is the chiefe maker of Marriners, and Nurse of our Nauie, and ships (as men know) be the wooden Walles for defence of our realme.

It maintaineth, in flourishing estate, the countries of Norfolk, Suffolke, Essex, Kent and Sussex, which as they lie in the face of our most puissant neighbour, so ought they, aboue others, to bee conserued in the greatest strength and riches: and these, as it is well knowne, stand not so much by the benefite of their owne soile, as by the neighbourhood and nearnes which they haue to London.

It releeueth plentifulle, and with good policie, not onely her owne poore people, a thing which scarcely any other Towne or shire doth, but also the poore that from each quarter of the Realme doe flocke vnto it, and it imparteth liberally to the necessitie of the Uniuersities besides. It is an ornament to the realm by the beautie thereof, and a terror to other countries by reason of the greate welth and frequencie. It spreadeth the honour of our Countrie far abroad by her long nauigations, and maketh our power feared, euen of barbarous Princes. It only is stored with rich Marchants, which sort onely is tollerable: for beggarlie Marchantes do byte too neare, and will do more harme then good to the Realm.

It onely of any place in this realme is able to furnish the sodaine necessity with a strong armie. It auayleth the prince in Tronage, Poundage and other her customes, much more then all the rest of the realme.

It yeeldeth a greater Subsidie then any one part of the realme, I meane not for the proportion of the value of the goodes onelie, but also for the faithfull seruice there vsed, in making the asseesse, for no where else bee men taxed so neare to their iust value as in London: yea many are found there, that for their countenance and credite sake, refuse not to bee rated aboue their abilitie, which thing neuer hapneth abroad in the country. I omit that in ancient time, the inhabitants of London & other Cities, were accustomably taxed after the tenth of their goods, when the countrie was assessed at the fifteenth, and rated at the viij. when the countrie was set at the xii. for that were to awake a sleeping Dogge, and I should be thought dicenda, tacenda locutus, as the Poet said.

It onely doth and is able to make the Prince a readie prest or loane of money.

It onely is found fit and able to entertaine strangers honourable, and to receiue the Prince of the Realme worthily.

Almightie God (qui nisi custodiat ciuitatem, frustra vigilat custos) grant, that her Maiestie euermore rightly esteeme & rule this Citie, and he giue grace, that the Citizens may answere duty, aswell towards God and her Maiestie, as towards this whole realme and countrey, Amen.

An Appendix contayning the examination of such causes as haue heretofore moued the Princes, either to fine and ransome the Citizens of London, or to seize the Liberties of the City it selfe

THESE all may be reduced to these few heads: for eyther the Citizens haue adheared, in aide or armes, to such as haue warred vpon the Prince: or they haue made tumult, and broken the common peace at home: or they haue misbehaued themselues in point of gouernment and iustice: or finally, and to speake the plaine truth, the princes haue taken hold of small matters, and coyned good summes of money out of them.

To the first head I will referre whatsoeuer they haue done either in those warres that happened betweene king Stephen and Maude the Empresse, being competitors of the crowne: or beetweene king John and his nobles, assisting Lewes the French kings sonne when he inuaded the Realme: for it is apparent by all Histories, that the Londoners were not the mouers of these wars, but were onely vsed as instruments to maintayne them. The like is to be said of all the offences that king Henry the third, whose whole raigne was a continuall warfare, conceiued against this City, concerning the bearing of Armour against him: for the first part of his raigne was spent in the continuation of those warres that his father had begun with Lewes. And the rest of his life he bestowed in that contention, which was commonly called the Barons warres. In which Tragedy London, as it could not be otherwise, had now and then a part, and had many a snub at the kings hand for it. But in the end when he had triumphed ouer Simon Mountford at Euesham, London felt it most tragicall: for then hee both seysed their liberties, and sucked themselues drie: and yet Edictum Kenelworth, made shortly after, hath an honourable testimonie for London, saying, Te London laudamus, &c. As for the other offences that he tooke against the Londoners, they pertaine to the other parts of my diuision.

Next after this, against whom the Londoners did put on armes, followeth king Edward the second, who in the end was depriued of his kingdome, not by their meanes but by a generall defection, both of his owne wife and sonne, and almost of the whole Nobility and Realme besides. In which trouble, that furious assault and slaughter committed by them vpon the Bishop of Excester, then Treasurer of the Realme, is to be imputed, partly to the sway of the time wherewith they were carried, and partly to a priuate displeasure which they had to the Bishop.

Finally commeth to hand King Richard the second: for these three onely in all the Catalogue of our kings, haue beene heauie Lordes to London, who also had much contention with his Nobilitie, and was in the end deposed. But whatsoever countenance and aide the Citie of London brought to the warres and vprores of that time, it is notoriously true that London neuer led the dance, but euer followed the pipe of the Nobilitie. To close vp this first part therefore I affirme, that in all the troublesome actions during the raigne of these three kings, as also in all that heauing in, & hurling out, that after-ward happened betweene king H. the sixt, and king Edward the fourth, the City of London was many times a friend and fautor, but neuer the first motiue or author of any intestine warre or sedition. Page 567

In the second room I place a couple of tumultuous affrayes that chaunced in the daies of king R. the first, the one vpon the day of his Coronation against the Iewes, which contrary to the kings owne proclamation, would needes enter the Church to see him sacred, & were therefore cruelly handled by the common people. The other was caused by William with the long beard, who after that he had inflamed the poore people against the richer sort, and was called to answere for his fault, tooke Bow church for Sanctuary, and kept it Castle like, till he was fiered out.

Dependents Here is place also for the stoning to death of a Gentleman, seruant to the halfe brother of king Henry the third, which had before prouoked the Citizens to fury, by wounding diuers of them without any cause, 1257: for the riotous fray betweene the seruantes of the Goldsmithes and the Taylors, 1268: for the hurly burly and bloodshed betweene the Londoners and the men of Westminster, moued by the young men vpon an occasion of a wrestling on Saint Iames day, 1221, and made worse by one Constantine an ancient Citizen: for the braule and businesse that arose about a Bakers loafe at Salisbury place 1391: for the which and some other misdemeanors king Richard the 2. was so incensed by euill counsell against the Londoners that he determined to destroy them, & raze their Citie: and for the fight that was betweene the citizens & sanctuary men of S. Martins 1454, vnder king Henry the sixt: and finally for the misrule on euill May day 1519. and for such other like if there haue beene any.

To the third head may be referred the seiser of their liberties, for a false iudgement giuen against a poore widdow, called Margaret Viel, 1246. the 2. seuerall seisers in one yeare 1258. for false packing in collections of money, and other enormities: and finally the seiser made by king Edward the first for taking of bribes of the Bakers 1285. But all this security in seising and resuming of the liberties, which was in old time the

In the last place stand those offences, which I repute rather taken then giuen, and do fall within the measure of the adage, ut canem cædas, cito inuenias baculum: for king Iohn in the tenth of his raigne deposed the Bailiffes of London, because they had bought vp the wheate in the market, so that there was not to serue his Purueyers. King Henry the third his sonne compelled the Londoners to pay him 5000.li. because they had lent to Lewes the French the like summe, of a good mind to dispatch him out of their Citie and the realme, at such time as the Protector and the whole Nobilitie fell to composition with him for his departure. And the same king fined them at three thousand markes, for the escape of a prisoner out of Newgate, of whom they tooke no charge: for he was a Clarke, prisoner to the Bishop of London, vnder the custody of his owne seruants, and as for the place, it was onely borrowed of the Londoners to serue that turne. Hitherto of these things to this end, that whatsoever misdemeanor shall bee objected out of Historie against London, the same may herein appeare, both in his true place, and proper colour. |

The Author to the Reader.

BECAUSE amongst other mine Authors I haue oftentimes alledged Fitz-Stephens, as one more choice then other, namely for the auncient estate of this Citie, more then 400. yeares since: and also the said Author being rare, I haue in this place thought good by impression to impart the same to my louing friends, the learned Antiquaries, as the Author wrote it in the Latine tongue. And first to note in effect, what M. Bale in commendation of the said Author writeth.

William Stephanides, or Fitzstephen, a Monke of Canterbury, borne of worshipfull parentes in the Citie of London, wel brought vp at the first vnder good Maisters, did more and more increase in honest conditions and learning: for euer in his young yeares there appeared in him a certaine light of a Gentlemanlike disposition, which promised many good things, afterward by him performed. Such time as other spent in braules, and idle talke, he employed in holesome exercises for the honour of his countrie, following therein the example of Plato: and was very studious both in humanity and diuinity.

The City of London his birth place, the most noble of all other Cities of this land, and the Princes seate, scituated in the south part of the Iland, he loued aboue all the other, so that at length hee wrote most elegantly in latine of the sites and rites of the same. Leland in diuers of his bookes commendeth him for an excellent writer. He liued in the raigne of king Stephen, wrote in the raigne of Henry the second, and deceased in the yeare of Christ 1191. in the raigne of Richard the first. |

Est ibi, in ecclesia Beati Pauli, Episcopalis Sedes. Quondam fuit Metropolitana, et adhuc futura creditur, si remeauerint ciues in insulam: nisi forte Beati Thomæ Martyris titulus Archiepiscopalis dignitatem illam Cantuariæ, vbi nunc est, conseruet perpetuam. Sed cum vtramque vrbium harum<sup>8</sup> Sanctus Thoma illustrauerit, Londoniam ortu, Cantuariam occasu, ipsius Sancti intuitu, cum iustitiæ accessu, habet altera aduersus alteram quod amplius alleget. Sunt etiam, quod ad Christianæ fidei cultum pertinet<sup>9</sup>, tum in Londonia tum in suburbano, tresdecim maiores ecclesiæ Conuentuum, præter minores Parochianas<sup>10</sup> centum viginti sex.

shalbe supplied, and I professe (if more touching this worke come vnto me) to afforde it, in all dutie. In the meane time I recommend this to your view, my laboures to your consideration, and my selfe to your seruice (as I haue professed during life) in this or any other.

1, ll. 1-15. As the . . . greater maiestie.] As Rome the chiefe Citie of the world to glorifie it selfe, drew her originall from the Gods, Goddesses, and demy Gods, by the Troian progeny. So this famous Citie of London for greater glorie, and in emulation of Rome, deriueth it selfe from the very same originall. For (as Jeffery of Monmoth, the Welche Historian reporteth) Brute descended from the demy god Eneas, the sonne of Venus, daughter of Iupiter, aboute the yeare of the world 2855, the yeare before Christes natiuitie 1108, builded a Citie neare vnto a riuier now called Thames, and named it Troynouant, or Trenouant.

About the feast of S. Michael there was a great and solempne iusting of all the stout Earles, Barons and nobles of the realme, at London in West Cheape, betwixt the great crosse and the great conduit, nigh Sopars Lane, which iusting lasted three daies; where Queene Philip with many Ladies fell from a stage of timber, notwithstanding they were not hurt at all: wherefore the Queene toke great care to saue the Carpenters from punishment, and through her prayer (which she made on her knees) she pacified the King and counsaile, and thereby purchased great loue of the people. After which time the King caused this silde or shede to bee made, and strongly to bee builded of stone, for himself, the Queene, and other estates to stand in, and there to behold the iustings and other shewes at their pleasure<sup>1</sup>.

This Conduite was the first sweete water that was conueyed by pipes of lead vnder ground, to this place in the Citie, from Paddington; it was castellated with stone and cesternd in lead, which was begunne in the yeare 1285. l. 15. INSERTS: Without this lane is the Standarde in Cheape, which Iohn Wels Grocer Maior 1430 caused to be made with a small cesterne for fresh water, hauing one Cocke continually running, when the same is not turned nor lockt; this was finished by his executors, Thomas Knoles, and Iohn Chichley, they purchased licence of Henry the sixt, to conuey water, to make the Conduite. Now whether the Standarde in West Cheape, so oft spoken of in former times, be the same and stooode iust in this place, or else where, or that the same were remoueable, may be some question: for it is manifest that in the raigne of Edward the thirde, and at other times when the great iustinges, and other running on horsebacke were practised betwixt the great Crosse, and the great Conduite at Sopars lane end, there was no such Standarde, or other Obstacle betweene them, neither was that streete paved with hard stone as now it is. We read that in the yeare 1293, three men had their right hands stricken off at the Standard in Cheape for rescuing of a Prisoner; it is verie likelie therefore that the olde Crosse in Cheape (which was then newlie builded) was also the Standarde.

In the yeare 1326 the Citizens tooke Walter Stapleton, Bishop of Excester, and beheaded him with other at the Standarde in Cheape. In the yeare 1399 King Henry the fourth caused the Blanch Charters made by Richarde the second, to bee burnt at the Standarde in West Cheape. In the yeare 1381. Wat Tylar beheaded Richarde Lions and others in Cheape. In the yeare 1461. Iohn Daue had his hand stricken off at the Standarde in Cheape, also Iacke Cade the Rebell beheaded the Lorde Say at the Standarde in Cheape &c. Thus much for the Body of Cheape warde may suffice<sup>2</sup>.

‘In the yere 1581. the 21. of Iune in the night, the lowest Images about the said Crosse, were broken and defaced.

Whereupon proclamation was made, that who so wold bewray the doers therof, shuld haue fortie crownes: but nothing came to light. The Image of the blessed virgin at that time robbed of her son, and her armes broken by which shee staid him on her knees, her whole bodie also was strained with ropes so as it was readie to fall: But was in the yere 1595. again fastened and repaired. In the yere 1596. about Bartholomewtide, a new Sonne mishapen (as borne out of time) was laide in her armes. The other Images remaining broken as before.

On the east side of the same Crosse, the steppes being taken thence, vnder the Images of Christes resurrection, was set vp a curious wrought frame of grey Marble, and in the same an Image in Alabaster of a woman

NOTES

For a list of abbreviations used in the citation of authorities
see p. 389 below.

'The foundation of the Citie of London.'

'Aftar the common opinion, and as writithe Geffrey Monmouthe, Brute the first kynge of the Britaynes in this Ysle about the yere of the worlde 2855, the yere before Christes natiuite 1108, builded a citie nere vnto a riuar now called Thames, and named it Trenouantum, or new Troy. Kynge Lud repayred this Citie with fayre buildings, Towres, and Walls, and named it Cair Lud, or Lud's Towne, more he builded on the west parte of this citie a stronge gate naming it Lud gate, and this he did about the yere before Christes birthe 66. This Lud had yssue two sons, &c.'

The text of the early part of the Survey as now contained in Harley MS. 538 is much disordered. The third chapter, 'Of Riuers, Brooks, &c.', is in a fragmentary state; this is to be explained no doubt by the existence of a revised draft in Tanner MS. 464—see note below. The text of the early chapters in the Harley MS. agrees fairly closely with the edition of 1598, but with some occasional variations: e.g. p. 6, l. 20, 'faynt and cowardous hartes'; and p. 7, ll. 5-7, 'was naythar man of his handes nor good of counsel, but gyven to unlawfull &c.'

5, l. 14. the first that inwalled this Citie. For notices of the most recent discoveries on the Roman wall see articles in Archæologia, lii. 615 (at Aldersgate), lix. 125-40 (at Newgate), lx. 169-250 (at various points between Moorgate and the Tower). Discoveries on the last occasion indicated that the wall was built about the end of the second century (lx. 183). ## NOTES

see p. 389 below.

‘After the common opinion, and as writithe Geoffrey Monmouth, Brute the first kynge of the Britaynes in this Ysle about the yere of the worlde 2855, the yere before Christes natiuite 1108, builded a citie nere vnto a riuar now called Thames, and named it Trenouantum, or new Troy. Kynge Lud repayred this Citie with fayre buildings, Towres, and Walls, and named it Cair Lud, or Lud’s Towne, more he builded on the west parte of this citie a stronge gate naming it Lud gate, and this he did about the yere before Christes birthe 66. This Lud had yssue two sons, &c.’

The text of the early part of the Survey as now contained in Harley MS. 538 is much disordered. The third chapter, ‘Of Riuers, Brooks, &c.’ is in a fragmentary state; this is to be explained no doubt by the existence of a revised draft in Tanner MS. 464—see note below. The text of the early chapters in the Harley MS. agrees fairly closely with the edition of 1598, but with some occasional variations: e.g. p. 6, l. 20, ‘faynt and cowardous hartes’; and p. 7, ll. 5-7, ‘was naythar man of his handes nor good of counsel, but gyven to unlawfull &c.’

5, l. 14. the first that inwalled this Citie. For notices of the most recent discoveries on the Roman wall see articles in Archaeologia, lii. 615 (at Aldersgate), lix. 125-40 (at Newgate), lx. 169-250 (at various points between Moorgate and the Tower). Discoveries on the last occasion indicated that the wall was built about the end of the second century (lx. 183). Stow’s citation of Simeon of Durham is an error; the reference to Helena is found only in Henry of Huntingdon, Hist. Anglorum, 30.

9, l. 8. the wall on the southside. There is good reason to believe that Thames Street marks the line of the most ancient walls, and that the street was outside on the river-bank; the gates and wharves below have been recovered from the river. See Lethaby, London before the Conquest, 90.

11-21. Of Auncient and present Riuers, &c. A revised draft of this chapter is bound up with Stow’s transcripts of Leland’s Collections in Tanner MS. 464 (1), ff. 155-63. In its characteristics it is exactly similar to the principal portion of the original in Harley MS. 538. It supplies some variations of interest and importance, viz.:—

Holeburn strate in 1251 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 3). The meaning is no doubt the burn in the hollow or hole (Isaac Taylor, Words and Places, 186-7); compare the neighbouring Hockley in the Hole. This is accepted by the best authorities. But the notorious, though later, association of Holborn with the hill has suggested support for Stow's second form. For a prolonged discussion see Notes and Queries, 8th ser. ix, x, xii, 9th ser. i, and 10th ser. ii and v. See also a paper by F. G. Waller on The Holeburne in Trans. Lond. and Midd. iv. 97-123, with a map.

15, l. 32. Skinners well, neare unto Clarkes well. Stow's authority for the history of all these wells is the Cartulary of the Priory of the Nuns at Clerkenwell (Cotton MS., Faustina, B. II). The most important document is one, dated April 1197, relating to the donations of Lecia de Montigny, widow of Henry Foliot, and daughter of Jordan Briset the founder; this is printed in Monasticon, iv. 83, and appears in another form in Feet of Fines, 7 and 8 Ric. I, No. 136, Pipe Roll Soc. 20. Skinners well is there described as lying in the valley between the Nuns' Priory and the Holeburn. It is traditionally said to have been on the west side of the Church of St. James, Clerkenwell. The Clerkes Well was fifty years ago still marked by a pump at the south-east corner of Ray Street (London Past and Present, i. 418, iii. 252). The two wells can have been only a little distance apart. So the Clerks' plays are described commonly as held at Skinnerswell. There does not seem to be any authority for the statement that the Skinners held plays. In Aug. 1385 the performance of the play that was customarily held at 'Skynneres welle' was forbidden (Letter-Book, H, 272). For other references to the plays see Malvern's continuation of Higden, ap. Polychronicon, ix. 47, 259; Nicolas, Lond. Chron. 91; Devon, Issue Rolls of the Exchequer, 244; Chambers, Mediaeval Stage, ii. 380.

16, l. 6. Faggess well. In 1197 certain lands are described as lying between the Garden of the Hospitallers and Smithfield Bar 'super rivulum de Fackeswell', and other lands as between that brook and 'Chikennelane'. (Feet of Fines, u. s.) This fixes the position of Faggesswell brook as approximately at the boundary of the City.

l. 7. Todwell. This is clearly a misreading by Stow of Cotton MS., Faustina, B. II, f. 27, where certain land is described as 'inter Skinners well et Godewelle subtus viam usque in Holeburn'; Stow has written 'Skinnerswell' in the margin. In Feet of Fines, u. s., Godewell is described as between the Priory and the Holeburne; apparently somewhat to the south, and on the far side of the valley.

l. 7. Loders wel. About 1200 Muriel de Montigny gave the 'fons qui vocatur Loddereswell' to the Nuns of Clerkenwell with a right of way thereto from the Priory (Cartulary, f. 32 vo.).

l. 8. Radwell. This comes from the same source, 'terram quam Osbertus tenuit in Redwell' (Cartulary, ff. 6, 39). The reference is apparently to Radwell in Hertfordshire.

1. 11. Dame Annis the cleare. 'A spring called Dame Annis de Cleare, called by the name of a rich London widow, called Annis Cleare, who, matching herself with a riotous courtier in the time of Edward I, who vainly consumed all her wealth, and leaving her in much povertie, there she drowned herself, being then but a shallow ditch or running water.' The Pleasant walks of Moore Fields: a dialogue between a Country Gentleman and a Citizen, 1607.

This well was neare Paul Street, Finsbury, in the neighbourhood of which there is still a St. Agnes Terrace. The name St. Agnes Clair Fields continued till a hundred years ago.

1. 13. Perillous pond. The site is in Baldwin Street, City Road. As 'Peerless Pool' it continued as a public bath till well into the last century; see for an account of it in 1831 Gent. Mag. Library, xvi. 213-14. For the pond in Stow's time see Dekker and Middleton, The Roaring Girl, Act II. sc. i: 'Push! let your boy lead his water-spaniel along, and we'll show the bravest sport at Parlous Pond.'

10, l. 14. was begun to be made. So in vol. i. p. 13, Stow writes of Walbrook 'before there was any ditch'. If he meant that there was no ditch before 1213 he was in error. Recent excavations have shown clearly that there was a ditch of Roman work. See Archaeologia, lii. 615, and lx. 203-7, and 212-3. The Roman ditch was, however, smaller than the great ditch of the thirteenth century. On the obstruction of the ditch see further vol. i. p. 164, and notes on pp. 297 and 369 below.

20, l. 4. to be clemsed. The draft in Harley MS. 538, f. 5, then proceeds: 'and dyvars tymes sene, lyghtly once in xx yerres the same hath been observed, as myself have sene, but now of late no suche mattar, that charge is saved and greate profit made by suffringe or rather forsyng the decay thereof; a matter manifest to all, and nathelesse for me to write.' This passage takes the place of the whole remainder of vol. i. p. 20.

21, l. 2. by report of Bartholomew Linsted, alias Fowle. Stow's friend, William Lambarde, rejected the story, calling Prior 'Fowler' an obscure man, and his story 'without date of time or warrant of writing' (Dictionarium Angliae Topographicum, 176: first published in 1730, but written before 1585). See Chronicles of London Bridge, 33-8.

1. 20. the Timber Bridge. The earliest proof is in the record of the drowning of a witch at 'Lundene brige' in King Edgar's time (Kemble, Cod. Dipl. dxc). The date of Swein's siege was 1013.

22, l. 25. Joseph Holland. One of Stow's associates in the old Society of Antiquaries. He was a native of Devon, and a herald and genealogist. Some of his manuscript collections are preserved in the British Museum and at the College of Arms (Hearne, Curious Discourses, ii. 436). A paper of his was included in John Dodderidge's Opinions of certain learned antiquaries on The Antiquities of Parliaments: London, 1658 and 1670, from Harley MS. 305.

23, l. 9. more towards the west. Stow is in error. The Roman bridge was on the same place as the mediaeval bridge, just east of the existing bridge. This was shown by discoveries when the bridge was building about 1830. See Roach Smith, ap. Archaeological Journal, i. 112.

24, margin. William Packenton, Treasurer of Edward the Black Prince, and author of a Chronicle in French from 1208 to 1333. Leland (Collectanea, ii. 455) translates some extracts, which tend to show that this Chronicle was the second edition of the Brute. See Sir E. M. Thompson's edition of Chronicon Galfridi le Baker, pp. 183-4, and Dic. Nat. Biog. xliii. 95. Stow probably quotes from Leland.

25, l. 4. In the yeare 1395. The date is wrong. David Lindsay, Earl of Crawford, had licence to come to England for the tournament on Jan. 22, 1390, and was here till the end of May (Rotuli Scottiae, ii. 103). Stow's authority was Hector Boece (Scot. Hist. 335, ed. 1575, where there is no date), as shown in his MSS. An earlier account is given by Andrew Wyntoun. See Chronicles of London Bridge, 187-203.

26, l. 8. To conclude of this bridge. With Stow's account may be compared that of Lyly in Euphues and his England (ii. 192, ed. Bond): 'Among all the straunge and beautifull showes, mee thinketh there is none so notable as the Bridge which crosseth the Theames, which is in manner of a continuell streete, well replenyshed with large and stately hotuses on both sides, and situate upon twentie arches, whereof each one is made of excellent free stone, everye one of them being three score foote in hight, and full twentie in distaunce one from another.' See for more exact dimensions Chronicles of London Bridge, 81.

29, l. 9. Aeldgate. Stow's derivation is wrong. If correct the old form should be Ealdgate. But it appears as 'Ealsegate' in the De Miraculis S. Edmundi of Hermann, written about 1095 (Memorials of St. Edmunds, i. 43, Rolls Ser.), and the normal forms throughout the Middle Ages are 'Alegate' and 'Algate'. Aldgate is the Eastgate of the English Chronicle (sub anno 1052), though the gate by the Tower is said by Stow (vol. i. p. 28) to have been the chief gate on that side till 1190. Norman, the first prior of Trinity (1108-47), rebuilt Aldgate from the foundation (Guildhall MS. 122, f. 13). Mr. Stevenson suggests that Algate was derived from Ealh, an owner or builder. The east gate of Gloucester was known as 'Ailesgate' from 'Æðel' (Engl. Hist. Rev. xii. 491).

31, l. 23. The eldest note, &c. However, it occurs in Domesday (i. 128): 'Canonici S. Pauli habent ad portam Episcopi x. cotarios.' Gilbert Foliot (d. 1187) refers to his gate called 'Bissupsgate' (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 25).

32, l. 28. there builded a Posterne. The record from Letter-Book, I (ap. Memorials, 614) shows that what was done in 1415 was the enlargement of 'the little Postern, built of old in the wall of the said city'. The gardens, destroyed in 1498 (ii. 76-7), were laid out at the same time. For Moorfield, see further notes on pp. 369-70.

33, l. 5. Cripplegate. Abbo of Fleury does not describe the bringing of St. Edmund to London. Hermann, who does, says that the procession came in at Ealsegate (Memorials of St. Edmund's Abbey, i. 43). In the Nova Legenda Angliæ (ii. 596-9, ed. Horstman) the gate is Algate. Lydgate, however, writes in his Legend of St. Edmund and St. Fremund (ap. Horstman's Sammlung Altenglischer Legenden, p. 436):

He kam to London toward eue late
At whos komying blynde men kauhte syht,
And whan he was entred Crepylgate
They that were lame be grace they goon upryht.

The change was no doubt due to the fancied derivation of Cripplegate from cripples, who begged there, which appears in Liber S. Bartholomæi (Cotton MS., Vesp., B. ix, f. 15): 'Ad portam, que lingua Anglorum crepelsgate, Latine vero porta contractorum vocatur.' (This is the passage relating to Alfune which Stow quotes lower down: but the Liber was not written till about 1180; both here and in the English version on f. 54 there are notes of Stow's in the margin.) For later instances of this derivation see Baldwin's humorous version below, and Ben Jonson in Every Man in his Humour, 'As lame as Vulcan, or the founder of Cripplegate.' But 'cripple' in Cripplegate is connected with O.E. 'crepel', a burrow. So Cripplegate would mean the sunk, or covered, or perhaps the narrow (cramped) gate. Cripplegap is used in the north of England of a small hole left in walls for the sheep to pass through. There was a postern at Shrewsbury called Crepulgate, and connected with the Severn by a lode (O.E. lad) called Crepul-lode. (N. and Q. 9th Ser. i. 2.)

Cripplegate is one of the three gates named in the Laws of Ethelred about 1000 (Thorpe, Ancient Laws and Institutes, p. 127). 'Crepelgate' is the most usual form of the name in early London wills and documents.

l. 26. Alfune. See above, and note on p. 360 below.

l. 36. I. de Blackwell. John de Bauquell, who was a prominent citizen at the time, ancestor of the later Blackwells. See pp. 336-7 below.

84, l. 1. Fabians Manuscript. This notice does not appear in the printed Chronicle of Fabyan. See further, Introduction, p. xxxv.

Margin. In a booke called Beware the cat. A most scarce and curious tale, published under the initials G. B., but now known to have been written by William Baldwin (see vol. i. p. x). Only two copies, one printed in 1570, the other in 1584, are known; but ten copies were reprinted privately by J. O. Halliwell-Phillips in 1864. For its history see further Catalogue of the Huth Library, i. 80, and J. P. Collier, Bibliographical Account of Early English Literature, i. 43-7.

Beware the Cat is a tale professed to be told by one of Baldwin's friends, when they were keeping Christmas, 1552, in John Day's office at Aldersgate. It is a quaint medley of folk-lore, fairy-story, and broad jest, mingled with satire on popery, which opens thus:—

'Being lodged, as I thank him I have been often, at a friend's house of mine, which were rowmish within than garnish without, standing at Saint Martin's Lane end, hangeth partly upon the town-wall that is called Alder's Gate, either of one Aldrich, or els of elders, that is to say ancient men of the citie, which among them builded it, as bishops did. Bishopsgate, or els of elder trees, which bischaunce, as they doe in the Gardines now there about, so while the comon there was vacant, grew abundantly in the same place where the gate was after builded, and called thereof Eldergate, as Moorgate took the name of the field without it, which hath been a very moore, or els because it is the most ancient gate of the cittie, was thereof in respect of the other, as Newgate, called the Elder Gate, or els as Ludgate taketh the name of Lud, who builded it, so most part of Haroldes (I know) will soonest assent Aleredus builded this, but they are deceived, for he and his wife Algag builded Algate, which thereof taketh the name, as Cripple gate doth of a Cripple, who begged so much in his life as (put to the silver weather-cock which he stole from Powles steeple), after his death builded it.'

'But whereof soever this gate, Aldersgate, took the name (which longeth chiefly to Historyes to know), &c.'

The whole passage reads like a piece of grave fooling, which proved too delicate for Stow's simplicity.

Stow himself is at fault in his derivation. Aldersgate is a corruption of Ealdredesgate, or Ealdred's gate, by which name it is mentioned about 1000 (Thorpe, Ancient Laws, &c., p. 127). Later forms are Aldredesgate in 1275, and Aldrichegate in 1243 and 1372 (Cal. Wills, i. 25, ii. 162; Mun. Gild, i. 106).

ll. 25-6. John Day . . . a late famous Printer. Dibdin (Typ. Antig. iv. 41) writes of him thus: 'There are very few of our earlier printers to whom both literature and typography are more deeply indebted.' Day, who died 1584, had been a printer at Aldersgate from 1549, and published about 230 volumes. See Dict. Nat. Biog. xiv. 233.

85, l. 2. Newgate, as latelier builded. Recent excavations revealed extensive remains of the Roman wall and gate at Newgate (Archaeologia, lix. 125-40). This was no doubt also the Westgate of Saxon London—'Westgetum' in a charter, dated 857, of Burhred of Mercia, ap. Thorpe, Diplomatarium, 118. Probably the new gate was built after one of the great fires early in the twelfth century; but the Vita Arkenwaldi, which is quoted here and in vol. i. p. 69, describes only the buildings of Maurice and Richard about St. Paul's (Nova Legenda Angliae, i. 395-6, ed. Horstman). Saward de 'Nova Porta' is mentioned in a deed about 1162 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 5), and Newgate is referred to as a prison in the Pipe Roll for 1190. Its earlier name was Chamberlain Gate: see note on pp. 361-2. See also R. R. Sharpe, Memorials of Newgate Gaol.

ll. 21-3. the high and large street . . . so crossed and stopped vp. The greatest change appears to be that described in Wren's Parentalia, p. 272. 'Upon demolishing the ruins [of St. Paul's] and searching the foundations of the Quire, the Surveyor [Wren] discovered nine wells in a row, which no doubt had anciently belonged to a street of houses that lay aslope from the High Street [Watling Street] to the Roman causeway [Cheapside], and this street, which was taken away to make room for the new Quire [of 1256], came so near to the old [Norman] Presbyterium that the church could not extend further that way at first.' It has been argued from this that a Roman road ran diagonally to Newgate; but the theory is doubtful: see Lethaby, London before the Conquest, 150-2.

38, l. 19. John Offrem. His real name was John de Frome. See Ann. Lond. 46, Lib. de Ant. Legg. 22, and Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 14 b.

l. 38. In the year 1414, &c. Probably this refers to the occurrence in 1419, when, through the abuse of the privileges of Ludgate by persons 'more willing to take up their abode there . . . than to pay their debts,' the Mayor and Sheriffs abolished that prison, and removed the prisoners to Newgate. This was in June. In November following, since many persons, 'by reason of the fetid and corrupt atmosphere that is in the hateful gaol of Newgate,' had died, Whittington ordered the use of Ludgate to be restored (Memorials, 673, 677).

38, l. 4. Ludsgate, or Fludsgate. Camden, Britannia (ii. 80, ed. Gough), 'Ludgate or Fludsgate, as Leland thinks, from the rivulet there.' Geoffrey of Monmouth (Hist. Brit.) speaks of it as 'the gate which to this day is called in the British tongue Porth-Lud, and in the Saxon Luddesgata'. The tradition may be old, and Mr. W. H. Stevenson (Eng. Hist. Rev. xii. 491) has suggested again that the name is due to an owner called Ludd or Ludda. But 'ludgeat' is given in O.E. dictionaries as meaning a postern, and 'lidgate' is used of a swinging gate between a meadow and the highway (N. E. D.) See also Lethaby, London before the Conquest, 84-6.

l. 24. Hebrew characters. The Hebrew should probably be read — הן מצב הר' משה בן הרבן יצחק

41, l. 11. Downe gate, so called of the sodaine descending. 'Downe,' and its explanation, seem to be guesses of Stow's. A wharf 'apud Duuegate' is mentioned in an alleged charter of William I (Cotton Charter, vi. 3), which, though a fabrication, probably dates from the reign of Henry I. Stephen granted to St. Mary Overy the stone house of William de Pont de l'Arche 'contra seldas de Dovegata' (Mon. Angl. vi. 172). In a charter of Henry II to Rouen, 1150-1, there is mention of the port of 'Duuegate' at London (Cal. French Documents, 34-5, ed. Round). 'Duuesgate' occurs in an early deed in the Clerkenwell Cartulary (Cotton. MS., Faustina, B. ii, f. 75; where Stow has written 'Dunesgate', but the third letter is certainly u). 'Douegate', or 'Duuegate', is the regular mediaeval form. In the sixteenth century it is 'Dow Lane' and 'Dovegate'. 'Duvegate' looks like a compound (O.E. **Dufangeat*) of Dove, probably a woman's name. Camden (Britannia, ii. 80) writes: 'Dourgate, vulgarly Dowgate, or the Water gate'; this is an impossible derivation.

ll. 30-31. Guild hall of the marchants of Cullen. The Emperor's men are mentioned in the Laws of Ethelred II (978-1016), and the house of the merchants of Cologne appears in a charter of Henry II in 1157. (Lappenberg, Urkundliche Geschichte des Stahlhofes, II. 3). Probably this was identical with the Gilda Aula Teutonicorum (see p. 319 below), for in 1235 certain property in All Hallows Hay-wharf is described as between the Guildhall of the Cologne merchants and Wancelines-lane (? Wyndgoslane—Anc. Deeds, A. 1791). Riley (Mun. Gild. I. p. xcvi) thought that the two were distinct; but the Gilda Aula Teutonicorum is first mentioned in 1260, and no notice of the Guildhall of the Cologne merchants occurs after that date.

42, l. 1. Wolfes gate. Probably a mere misprint for 'Wolses gate'; but the error has been perpetuated in all editions. In the Liber Albus (Mun. Gild. I. 242, 697) it appears as 'Wolsiesgate in Corderia', and as 'Wolsyesyate'. Stow himself on i. 235 has 'Wolses gate'. So also 'Wolsis lane', ap. Cal. Wills, i. 220.

48, l. 2. W. rex Angliæ, &c. The charter is contained in Cotton MS., Faustina, A. iii, f. 63<sup>vo</sup>, where, however, it reads 'terra Alunodi de porta Sancti Bothulphi'.

52, l. 5. here to digresse a little. In Hearne's Curious Discourses (ii. 318, 2nd ed.) there is a note on sterling money which Stow had contributed to the old Society of Antiquaries. It is, however, very brief, and does not represent this long digression.

58, l. 7. In the year 1414. Oldcastle's escape was in Oct. 1413; the parliament of Leicester in May 1414.

60, l. 26. large summes of monies. The draft in Harley MS. 538. f. 15 then continues: 'both presently in theyr lyves and also by theyr testaments at theyre deseace. Amonge the whiche by testament Robar Large, maior of London, in anno Christi 1439, gave 100 markes. Sir Stephen Forstar, maior in anno 1454, gave 20 li., Sir John Crosby, shryve, who deceased anno 1475, gave 100 li. to the wirkes of the newe towre of stone at the sowthe ende of London bridge. Richard Gardinar, maior in 1478, gave 100 li. to the buylding up of the voyd place upon London bridge. John Mathew, maior anno 1490, gave 10 markes, &c. This gate and towre was then both strongly and beautifully builded, and sens of late repayed.'

62, l. 33. The rights that belonged to Robert Fitzwalter, &c. The French original is in the Liber Custumarum (Mun. Gild. II. i. 147-51). Stow's translation is not quite accurate. Read—p. 63, l. 12: 'the feet, hands and head, argent, with a sword in the hands of the said image'; l. 16: 'shall salute the mayor as his companion and peer'; ll. 19, 20: 'to bear, to carry, and to gouern'; l. 20: 'to your power'; ll. 34-5: 'chosen forthwith of the host of the City of London'; ll. 36-9: 'command the mayor and burgesses of the city to cause to be rung the common bell of the said city; and all the commons shall go follow the banner of St. Paul, and the banner of the said Robert; which banner of St. Paul the same Robert shall bear in his own hand as far as Algate'; p. 64, ll. 2-5: 'think good, if so be they must make any issue forth of the city. Then also must the said mayor, the said Robert, and two of the most sage persons of each ward dismount to foresee'; l. 31: 'it is lawfull'; p. 65, l. 6: 'at Wodewharf'<sup>1</sup>; l. 13: 'his great Council.' Though omitted in the edition of 1598, 'The Rights of Robert FitzWalter' appear in the draft in Harley MS. 538.

The second Robert FitzWalter had licence in 1275 to transfer Baynard's Castle and the Tower called Montfichet to Archbishop Kilwardby for the founding of Blackfriars (see i. 68), but with a reservation of all his franchises and privileges in the City. (C. P. R. Edw. I, i. 96.) It was in pursuance of this reservation that in 1303 he claimed his privileges. The claim was renewed by him in 1321, before the King's Justices, who refused to entertain it. It was for the last time advanced by John FitzWalter in 1347, but peremptorily rejected by the Mayor and Common Council. (Letter-Book F, 169.) See Riley's Introduction to Mun. Gild. II. i. pp. lxxvi-lxxxiv; and Memorials, p. 236. On the soke of Robert FitzWalter and the jurisdiction of the Lord of Castle Baynard on the Thames see Eng. Hist. Rev. xvii. 485-6, with a document edited there by Miss Bateson from Add. MS. 14252.

68, l. 29. This Robert deceased. Stow is in error in his genealogy. Robert FitzWalter, the baronial leader, died in 1234, and his son Walter in 1258. Robert II was an infant when his father died, and lived till 1325. He was succeeded by Robert III, who died in 1328. John, son of Robert, died in 1361. The male line of FitzWalter became extinct in 1432. Nicolas, Historic Peerage, 199; G. E. C., Complete Peerage.

l. 34. More of the Lord FitzWalter. In the draft in Harley MS. 538, f. 17<sup>vo</sup> there follows a long account of the intervention of Walter, Lord FitzWalter, in defence of the City in their quarrel with John of Gaunt in 1377. FitzWalter offered his help as 'being by ancient inheritance standard-bearer to the city'. The passage, which is given in the Annales, p. 433, ed. 1605, is a translation from the Chronicon Angliae, pp. 121-3.

l. 36. how this honour of Baynards Castell fell, &c. The later Baynard Castle was not on the site of the old house of the FitzWalters at Blackfriars, but some distance to the east near Paul's Wharf. In a declaration made about 1446 it is stated that a certain deed was sealed 'in the duc of Yorkys place besyde Paulys warfe, in a chambyr in the est parte of the courte, were that my lord of Glowsetir lyith now' (Lappenberg, II. 71; the date of the deed seems to have been 1417). This enables us to identify the later Baynard Castle with the 'Hospice called le Old Inne by <sup>1</sup> The Woodwharf was apparently near to, if not identical with, the later Paul's Wharf. In the thirteenth century, and as late as 1349, St. Bennet Hithe was called St. Benedict at Woodwharf (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 4, 5; Cal. Wills, i. 8, 59, 562). In 1320 it appears as St. Benedict at Wodewharf near St. Paul's Wharf, and after 1349 as St. Benedict at Paul's Wharf (id. i. 287, 605; ii. 111). In the original draft in Harley MS. 538 Stow wrote 'at a wood wharf'.

Pauls Wharfe', which appears amongst the possessions of Edward, Duke of York, who was killed at Agincourt (Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 14). After the death of Humphrey of Gloucester it fell, with the rest of his property, to the crown (Rot. Parl. v. 132), but soon reverted to Richard, Duke of York. It is called 'Baynardis Castell' as Richard's house in 1457 (Chron. Lond. 168). It is possible that Edward, Duke of York, may have acquired the 'Old Inne' through his marriage to Philippa, widow of Walter FitzWalter (d. 1386)—see ii. 110 above.

67, l. 6. King of the Romaines. In Harley MS. 538, f. 19, 'fabian writer' is put in the margin. The notice does not occur in the printed Continuation, but see Chron. London, pp. 259, 260.

68, l. 33. as appeareth by their grantes. A longish explanation is inserted in Harley MS. 538, f. 19<sup>v</sup>o:—'Edward the first, the tenth yere of his reigne, graunted to the maior and citizens of London to take toward the makynge of the wall and inclosure of the Citie certayn customes, as apperith by the graunt. Also Kyng Edward the second sent his writ commaunding the Citizens of London to make the walle alle redy begon, and the Towre at the ende of the same walle within the watar of Thames, nere to the house of the Blake friars, of the profites rising of the customes before to them graunted; this writ was dated the 18 of Julii the 4 of E. the second. The wall was then finished, &c.'

69, ll. 1, 2. An other Tower . . . the King. In place of this sentence Harley MS. 538, f. 19<sup>v</sup>o, has:—'A Towre or Castle there was in the west parte of the Citie, as William fitz Stevens hath noted in these words: "The Citie of London saythe he (who wrote in the reigne of Henry the second) habet ab occidente arcem palatinam, ab oriente duo castella munitissima. It hath in the west a princely tower or castle. And in the east two towres or castles. Now for the first, to wite in the west, which was a princely Towre or Castle in the reigne of H. the second as the same FitzStephen notithe. It hath bene of longe since distroyed, and no monument thereof remayninge, wherefore I could nevar lerne where the same was situate, more than on the west parte of the Citie. I read that, &c.'"' l. 5. foundation of a new Church. In Harley MS. 538 Stow then inserts: 'a wirke that men iudged would nevar have bene finished, it was to them so wonderfull for largenes.' And four lines lower, after successor: 'dyd also wonderfully increase the same chirche, purchasyng of his owne cost the large stretes about it.' The next paragraph—This Tower or Castle to large Chronicles—is omitted.

70, l. 35. Base court. See note on p. 340.

l. 8. the Queenes Wardrobe. According to the City record (Memorials, 450) it was to the Great Wardrobe in Castle Baynard that Richard went.

l. 23. Sernes Tower. See note on p. 329.

72, l. 18. The three principall Churches, &c. See FitzStephen's text on ii. 221 above, where the churches are named as St. Paul's, Trinity, and St. Martin's. But Stow's copy (see note ad loc.) did not name the churches. The schools at St. Mary Arches (de Archa) and St. Martin-le-Grand are mentioned in a deed, probably before 1141, of Henry of Blois (d. 1171), bishop of Winchester (Round, Commune of London, 117). The School at St. Paul's was as old as the reign of Henry I (Dugdale, St. Paul's, 6).

l. 27. Ingulphus . . . writeth thus. This passage (Gale, Scriptores, i. 62, 73) is one of the most noted in the spurious fifteenth-century chronicle falsely ascribed to Ingulph. The story is of course quite unwarranted.

73, l. 15. Our Ladie of Rounciuall. See note on p. 374.

l. 27. four other Grammer schooles. See i. 194 and note on p. 321.

74, l. 11. Mannor of the Rose. See note on p. 322.

l. 39. reniued in . . . Christs Hospitall. In the Annales sub anno 1555, Stow describes a disputation held here before the Mayor on St. Bartholomew's Eve, when the prizes were three silver pens, and the first was won by a scholar of St. Anthony's.

78, l. 12. Boltas Mootes. This appears in all editions of the Survey. But no doubt the true reading should be 'Boltes, Mootes, and putting of cases'. It is often difficult to distinguish a from e in Stow's handwriting. This will then agree with 'meetings, boltinges, and other learned exercises' a few lines lower down. Boltinges (or boltes) were discussions inferior to Moots. The holding of Moots has been of late years after long disuse revived: see 'Douthwaite, Gray's Inn, 80-7, and Fletcher, Pension-book of Gray's Inn.

81, l. 21. the friendly water of Thames. Nash looks at the matter differently when he writes in Pierce Penilesse of 'Brewers that by retayling filthy Thames water come in few yerres to be worth fortie or fiftie thousand pound.' (Works, ii. 33.)

ll. 26-7. the Shoemakers . . . to Saint Martins Le Grand. So Dekker in The Guls Hornbooke (Works, ii. 223): 'If thy quicksiluer can runne so farre on thy errant as to fetch thee booties out of S. Martens.'

l. 37. Stationers of Paules Church yarde. In the sixteenth century the principal booksellers and publishers were gathered there. References in contemporary literature are of course common, e.g. 'Paul's Churchyard the peruser of every man's works, and Exchange of all Authors.' (Nash, Strange Newes, &c., ap. Works, ii. 207.) For a list of booksellers in St. Paul's Churchyard in 1582 see Arber's Transcript of Stationers' Registers.

82, l. 16. Thomas Clifford. This and the other quotation from Clifford (on ii. 105) clearly come from the 'Life of Edward the Confessor,' which was written for Queen Eadgyth within a few years of her husband's death.—See Luard, Lives of Edward the Confessor, 417. In the Annales (p. 128, ed. 1605) Stow makes the same quotation from 'T. Clifford', but a little earlier (on p. 123) refers to the Vita Edwardi Regis as dedicated to Eadgyth by a nameless writer. On ii. 102 Clifford is cited for events in the reign of Edward I. Possibly Clifford was a friend who supplied Stow with information.

83, ll. 3, 4. quaffing . . . is mightily increased. Nash in 1592 writes thus: 'Superfluitie in drink, a sinne, that ever since we have mixt ourselves with the Low Countries is counted honourable; but before we knew their lingring warres, was held in y<sup>e</sup> highest degree of hatred that might be. Then if we had seene a man goe wallowing in the streetes, or line sleeping under the boord we would have spet at him as a toade, and warnd all our friends out of his company; now he is nobody that cannot drinke super nagulum, &c. He is reputed a pesaunt and a boore that will not take his licour profoundly' (Pierce Penilesse, ap. Works, ii. 78).

Margin. W. Patten. He was son of Richard Patten (d. 1536), cloth-worker of London, and was Lord of the Manor of Stoke Newington. He was a lawyer by profession, and a member of the old Society of Antiquaries as late as Feb. 1590 (Stowe MS. 1045, f. 2). His only known work is an account (reprinted in Tudor Tracts, ed. A. F. Pollard) of 'The expedition into Scotland' in 1548, in which he had taken part. See Dict. Nat. Biog. xlv. 50, and vol. i, p. 114, above.

84, l. 2. I read that. Stow clearly follows the Anominalle Chronicle (517) for the erroneous statements that Richard's mother accompanied him in a whirlicote, and that Buckingham was present (see Oman, Great Revolt of 1381, pp. 63, 197: however, the City record—Memorials, 449—also gives the former). On the Anominalle Chronicle, see Introduction, p. xxxiii, and note on p. 366 below.

l. 14. the use of coatches. In the Annales (p. 867, ed. 1631) there is a notice added by Howes, which, however, reads like an expansion of the present passage, and may perhaps have come from Stow's collections: 'In the yeare 1564 Guilliam Boonen, a Dutchman, became the Queene's Coachman, and was the first that brought the use of coaches into England. . . . Then little by little they grew usuall among the Nobilities, and others of Sort, and within twentie yeeres became a great trade of Coachmaking. About that time began long Waggones to come in use, such as now come to London from Canterbury, Norwich, Ipswich, Gloucester, &c., with passengers and commodities. Lastly, even at this time, 1605, began the ordinary use of Caroaches.' 'Caroach' was used of a town-carriage as distinguished from 'coach', a country-carriage.

Stow himself in the Summary Abridged (p. 260, ed. 1604), under date 1555, writes: 'This yeare Walter Ripon made a coach for the Earle of Rutland, which was the first coach (saith he) that euer was made in England. Since, to wit, in anno 1564, the said Walter Ripon made the first hollow turning coach, with pillers and arches, for her maiestie, being then her seruant. Also in anno 1584, a Chariot Throne, with foure pillars behind to beare a Canapie with a crowne imperiall on the toppe, and before two lower pillars, whereon stood a Lion and a Dragon, the supporters of the arms of England.'

S. Rowlands, in 1612, writes in Knave of Hearts, p. 7:

Such Carting ne'er was seen before,
A Coach must carry to Church dore
An Asse that's with foure Horses drawne:
And Mistress Easie to the Pawne Must passe upon two paire of Wheelles,
As though the poxe were in her Heeles.

85, l. 13. an account made by H. Leicester. A copy of this 'Record of Pontefract' was in possession of J. Watson Reid, F.S.A., who intended to publish it. See J. G. Nichols's Illustrations of Manners and Expenses, pp. ix, x, where a fragment is printed. See also Nichols's Leicestershire, i. 223. Stow's transcript seems to be faulty (cf. i. 86, l. 23); the first sum totals only 4,560*l.* 16*s.* 8½*d.*, instead of 5,230*l.* 17*s.* 7½*d.*; the second is correct, and the third and fourth are only a few pence out.

87, l. 27, margin. Rob. Fabian's manuscript. The quotation does not correspond so well with the printed Fabyan, pp. 632-3, as with the Vitellius Chronicle (Chron. Lond. 168). Fabyan's manuscript may have followed more closely the common original.

91, l. 19. sir Thomas Cromwel. Wriothesly writes in his Chronicle, i. 96: 'My Lord Cromwell had among them one m. men of gunners, morris pykes, and bowemen, goeing in jerkins after the socheners fashion, and his gentlemen goeing by, to sett them in array, in jerkins of buffe leather, dublets and hose of white satten and taffata sarsenet, which he did for the honour of the citey.'

96, l. 7. One other shew, &c. The original of this narrative is contained in two fragments amongst Stow's Collections, ap. Harley MS. 247, derived apparently from a continuation of Higden's Polychronicon. They are printed at the end of Sir E. M. Thompson's Introduction to the Chronicon Angliae (pp. lxxvii and lxxxii). Stow has somewhat altered his original, which, for instance, in ll. 25-7 has 'with black vizerdes like deuils nothing amiable, seeming like legates'. 'From some forain Princes' is a gloss.

100, l. 5. Roger Houeden. Hoveden (ii. 131) has only a brief note. Stow's source is the Gesta Henrici Secundi (i. 155). The real date was June or July 1174. Mr. Round has shown by reference to the Pipe Roll for 1175, giving account 'de catallis Johannis Vetuli suspensi', that in John Senex we have an elegant Latinization of the well-known London surname 'Viel' (Commune of London, 112; cf. Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 25).

101, l. 29. the vertue that a great fire hath. In his account of the great pestilence of 1563 Stow relates that on July 9 every householder was ordered 'to lay owt woodd and make bonfyers in y<sup>e</sup> stretes and lanes to that intent they should therby consume y<sup>e</sup> corrupte ayers, which othar wyse myght infecte y<sup>e</sup> sitie with y<sup>e</sup> plage . . . it wase commaundyd to contynue y<sup>e</sup> same iij tymes a weke'. (Memoranda, p. 123.)

101, l. 30. On the Vigil, &c. The Hanse merchahts made provision in their expenses for 1400 for the hanging out of lamps on St. John's eve and on St. Peter's eve, and also for furnishing two torches for the Corpus Christi procession (cf. i. 230 above). See Lappenberg, Stahlhof, II. 27.

108, l. 13. a great muster. Some contemporary notices for 1538-9, apparently written by a citizen, and preserved amongst Stow's Collections (Harley MS. 530, f. 119), include the following :

'Memorandum. That on Thorsday the viij day of May, in the yere of our Lord M.vc. xxxix, was made a muster in London, suche a mouster seyn in no kynges day y<sup>t</sup> eny man can tell of: for ther was in nomber xxxvj M. men in harnys, wythe morys pykys, and handgonys, and bowys; w<sup>t</sup> all y<sup>e</sup> alldermen one horsebak, w<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> shreffes in blake velvet, & chaynes of gold abowzt ther neckes. And the fyrst setting owt of euery warde was commaundyd to goo owt at Algat to myllend grene, & the ffleyde ther abowzt; and browzt forthe ageyn & set v in aray of all maner of wepons; & so forthe a longste throwz Chepsyde & throwz powlles chirche yard, & throwz ffleyt stret, & so to Westmyster throwz Kyng Stret, & y<sup>e</sup> seyntwary; and so Rounde abowzt y<sup>e</sup> kynges parke, & by sent James, & so over y<sup>e</sup> feldes by y<sup>e</sup> condyt hede, & so forthe to holborne, and in at new gat, & so euery man home.

'God save the Kyng.

'Master Wyllm. fforman then beyng meare of London.'

See other accounts in Wriothesley's Chronicle, i. 95-7, and Letters and Papers, xiv. 940.

l. 20. forbad the marching watch. Wriothesley adds to a similar account, that the sheriffs had made their preparations, 'and had noe knowlege till two dayes afore Midsommer that y<sup>t</sup> should not be kept, which was a great losse to pore men' (Chronicle, i. 100; and ii. 3 for Gresham's revival). Another contemporary, after mentioning that there was to be no solemn watch on Midsummer night, continues: 'at which some of the citizens of London are not a little dissatisfied.' Letters and Papers, xiv. 1144.

l. 32. some attemptes. Stow describes one such, made in 1564, in his Summarie for 1566 (f. 275) thus: 'This yere, thorough the earnest sute of the Armorers, there was on the Vigile of Sainct Peter a certayne kynde of a watche in the Citie of London, whiche dyd onely stande in the hyghest streetes of Cheape, Cornhyll, and so foorth towards Algate: whyche was to the commons of the same citie (for the most parte) as chargeable as when in tymes paste it was most commendably done, where as this beyng to very small purpose was of as small a number well lyked.' This is somewhat fuller than the notice as finally incorporated in the Annales. There were other watches in 1566 on St. John's eve, and in 1567 on St. Peter's eve. These appear to be the last which Stow records.

l. 33. a book. John Mountgomery's book is still preserved in the City archives at the Guildhall. It is a thin folio of twenty leaves. See i. 83 for a similar instance of a book presented by W. Patten.

108, l. 33. William Seuenoke. For various wills see Cal. Wills, ii. 462, and C. P. R. Henry VI, ii. 216.

109, l. 12. monument of death. See note on p. 346.

112, l. 12. a Cawsey. Norden refers to it in 1594; see Description of Essex (Camd. Soc.). It is described as 'now broken down', in 1735, by Farmer in his History of Waltham Abbey, p. 193.

l. 28. a rich collar of golde, &c. 'Att this Court [27 Oct. 1545] my lorde Mayer brought in and delyvered here in the Court to the handes of Mr. Chamberleyn the Coler of Esses lately gevyn to this Cittie by Sir John Aleyn, Knyght and Alderman, to be used alweyes and worne by the Lorde Mayer of this Cittie for the tyme beyng.' (Repertory 11, f. 238, ap. Cal. Wills, ii. 695.) This was at the end of Laxton's year. Sir Martin Bowes, who was mayor 1545-6, left at his death in 1566 'a goodly cross of gold set with "perell" and stone to hang at the collar of gold which the Mayor wears at high feasts' (id. ib.).

114, l. 31. Barnard Randolph. His donation was made to enable Peter Morris or Morice to bring water by means of his engine from London Bridge to Old Fish Street, as he had already done to Leadenhall. See Remembrancia, p. 553—date Dec. 1582; and i. 188 and ii. 3, 11 above.

115, l. 20. the Hole, or two penny wardes. The two lowest wards in the Counters, occupied by the poorest prisoners, were so called. See Jo. Cook in Greene's Tu Quoque (Hazlitt, Old Plays, xi. 257): 'Holdfast. "If you have no money, you'd best remove into some cheaper ward." Spendall. "What ward should I remove in?" Holdfast. "Why, to the Two-penny ward; it's likeliest to hold out with your means; or if you will you may go into the hole, and there you may feed for nothing."'

The two higher wards were the Master's side and the Knight's side. So Webster, Westward Ho! Act III. sc. ii: 'Which is the dearest ward in prison, Sergeant? The Knight's ward?' 'No! Sir; the Master's side.' And Appius and Virginia, Act III, sc. iv: 'It is thought she shall lie neither on the Knight-side, nor in the Two-penny ward; for if he may have his will of her, he means to put her in the Hole.'

l. 35. One worthy citizen, &c. This no doubt refers to Robert Dowe's charity (see Introduction, p. xxiv above). But Dowe provided for thirteen almsmen, who received £6 13s. 4d. apiece, with a gown, costing £2 3s. 4d., every third year. Clode, Early History of the Merchant Taylors, i. 162-3.

117, l. 15. Having thus in generality handled, &c. Stow originally arranged his narrative otherwise. In Harley MS. 538, f. 24, he writes: 'Havyng spoken of the Walls and gates, the ditche, the Castles and Towers, and last of all of the bridges, all which for the moaste parte are but the outmoste inclosure of this Citye, I am next to towche of the Suburbes withoute the walls, and then returninge and enteringe the gates, whereof I have spoken, there to view how the sayde citie is and bath of old tyme bene divided into wardes, parishes, stretes, and lanes, of principall governors, inferior maiestrates, other officers, and matters as occasyon offerith.' Accordingly he treated first of the suburbs and of the Ward of Farringdon Without before he came to Portsoken. See also note on p. 365.

118, l. 24. as some haue fabuled. A reference to Richard Grafton's Manuell, f. xi, where this legend is given under date 235 A.D. The legend comes from Geoffrey of Monmouth. See note on p. 271 above as to the course of Walbrook.

119, l. 15. wardes, &c. The earliest list of Wards giving the names now in use is one for 1285-6 in Letter-Book A, 209. Farringdon (the undivided ward) there appears as 'Lodgate and Neugate'; Langborne as 'Langeford'; and Broad-Street as 'Lodingeberi'. A list of 1293 (Letter-Book C, 12) gives 'Langeburne' and 'Lotheberi' with the addition modo vocatur Bradestrade. A list of 1320 (Letter-Book E, 124-5) has 'Bradestrade' and 'Farndon'. (See also Cal. Wills, i. 702-4.) In earlier lists the wards are usually called by the names of the aldermen holding them. There is a list of this kind for 1275 in the Hundred Rolls, giving, however, 'Bassingeshol,' 'Warda Fori,' Colemannestrate, Portsokne, Langeburne, Douegate, Walebrok, and Cornhull. A list for 1230 is given in Madox, Hist. Exchequer, i. 708-9 with a reference to one of 1228; the whole number of twenty-four already appear, Portsoken and Bassushage are alone described by name. A list of about twenty wards, mostly under the names of the aldermen, is contained in a document at St. Paul's; Warda Fori (Cheap), Alegate, the Bishop's Ward, and 'Brocesgange' (Walbrook) already appear; the document can be dated about 1130 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 66; Round, Geoffrey de Mandeville, 435-6). The last list is printed in facsimile in Price's Account of the Guildhall, p. 16 sqq. 'Langebrot' also occurs in the twelfth century (see p. 307 below). The division of the wards into a western and eastern group by the Walbrook is given in a list of 1346 (Letter-Book F, 143-4).

120, l. 23. a Guild. The Knighten guild of London is known to us only through the gift of its soke to Trinity, and the consequent preservation of the documents in the Priory Chartulary. Its true character is uncertain, and its bearing on the history of municipal institutions in London has been disputed. See Round, Geoffrey de Mandeville, 307-9, and Commune of London, 97-105, 221; and Gross, The Gild Merchant, i. 186-8. The documents have been printed in Trans. Lond. and Midd. v. 477-93, and in Letter-Book C, 73-5, 216-25. See also a deed, ap. Chron. de Rameseia, 241, Rolls Ser.

11. 23-4. in the dayes of king Edgar. The Guildhali MS. 122 has 'temporibus Edgari', which supports Stow. But Letter-Book C, 216 reads 'temporibus Knwti'. Similarly lower down (p. 121, l. 20) C reads 'Knyty, Edgari, et Edredi'.

121, l. 28. William king of England, &c. In this charter C reads G. de Magn. (sc. Magnavilla) et R. Delpare, and Henrico de Both as testes.

122, l. 3. insomuch that in the yeare 1115. The date should be 1125. The names of the members of the Knighten Guild should be 'Radulfus filius Algodii, Wlwardus le Doverissehe, Orgarus le Prude, Edwardus Upcornhill, Blacstanus et Alwynus cognatus ejus, Ailwinus et Robertus frater eius filii Leostani, Leostanus Aurifaber, et Wyzo filius eius, Hugo filius Wulgari, Algarus, Secusenne, Orgarus filius Deremanni, Osbertus Drinchepyn, Adelardus Horneþitesinne'. In the list of witnesses for 'John prior of Derland' read 'John prior de Landa'. Letter-book C, pp. 219-20.

123, l. 2. Geoffrey Clinton the Chauncellor. The copy in Letter-Book C, 220-21 reads 'Gaufrido Cancellario et Gaufrido de Clinton'. Geoffrey the Chancellor is Geoffrey Rufus, who was chancellor from 1124 onwards.

124, l. 1. Helianor the queene wife to king Edward the first. St. Katherine's fell under the priory of Holy Trinity by the deed of William of Ypres (quoted in vol. ii. p. 6). In 1255 Eleanor of Provence, the queen of Henry III, recovered control, and it was she who refounded it in 1273 (Mon. Angl. vi. 694-6).

l. 14. inhabitants, English and strangers. There were many aliens there. Ben Jonson in The Devil is an Ass, Act I. sc. i, writes:

To Shoreditch, Whitechapel, and so to St. Katherns,

To drink with the Dutch there and take forth their patterns.

125, l. 13. sir Arthur Darcie. He had a grant of New Abbey, 24 Aug. 1542 (Letters and Papers, xvii. p. 399). Stow has preserved, in Harley MS. 544, f. 101, a list of burials at the Abbey from a visitation by Clarencieux in 1533.—'In the Chape of our Lady liethe buried sir T. Mongomerye and his two wives; William Belknap, esquier; one of the heires of Rafe Butler Lord of Sudeley and treasurer of England; more, in a tomb one of the dowghters of y<sup>e</sup> sayd mongomery which was married to one of the mortimeres. Also Alice Spice, sister and heyre to the seyde sir Thomas, which had two husbands, first Clement Spice of Blake notley in Essex.

'On the south syde the quier sir Nicholas Loveyn, svme tyme lord of East Smithfield, and besyde hym on the flore his wyfe, doughter to Sir William Poultney<sup>1</sup>. . . . Before the high altar lyeth dame Elizabeth, one of the doughters to Edward late Duke of Buckyngham, she was wyfe to Robert lord Fitzwatar, Earle of Sussex; and besydes his brother George Ratclyffe, second sonn to the sayde lord and lady, which died without ysshew; and ryht before the high altar vnder a stone lieth dame Jane Stafford doughter to Humphrey duke of Bokyngham, and wyfe to sir William Knyvet, knight. Also there lyes on the north syde the qwire in a tombe Lewes John, esquier, and his wyfe doughter to the Earl of Oxforde. And besydes his tombe lyeth Eleanor dowghter to Lewes John, which had foure husbands, to wite John White, sir William Tirell, sir Henry Fitz Lewes, and Thomas Garthe, esquier, treasurer to Edward, late Duke of Bokyngham. In a chape without the qwire on the southe syd lieth sir

Thomas Charles, sometyme Lyvetenaunt of the Tower. Also at the qwire dore lay Walter Hayward, secretary to the lord treasurer. Also Elizabeth Rowley, gentlewoman. In a tombe in S. Annes Chaple on the south syde sir John Montgomery, eldar brother to Sir Thomas; in the same chaple lyeth sir Andrew Cavendysshe and dame Rose his wyfe. On the north syde lieth Richard or John Walden, esquire, and Elizabeth his wife.'

126, l. 22. Goodman . . . Farmers there. Rowland Goodman seems to have been a considerable farmer in the eastern suburbs during the reign of Henry VIII. Besides Goodman's Fields here referred to, he had on 20 Jan. 1535 a lease from the Convent of St. Helen's of lands in St. Botolph without Bishopsgate; at the dissolution in 1543 he obtained a grant by purchase from the king (Cox, Annals of St. Helens, 16, 34). At his death in Sept. 1547 he also held lands in St. Botolph, late the property of the Hospital of St. Mary without Bishopsgate (Inq. p. m. London, i. 95).

127, l. 7. Henrie Jorden, &c. He was a bell-founder of Billiter Lane, and founded a chantry here by will dated 15 Oct. 1468, and proved Nov. 1470. See Stahlschmidt, Surrey Bells and London Bell-founders, 56-71, and Cal. Wills, ii. 543.

l. 8. John Romeny, Ollarius, &c. John Romenye, Ollarius, by his will dated 23 April, 1349, left money for St. Botolph's. He and his wife Agnes both died in that year (id. i. 425, 555, 623; Letter-book F, 187). 'Olarie' in the text of 1603 is Stow's translation of Ollarius, a potter; but till late in the fourteenth century Ollarius or Poter is the invariable description of a bell-founder, which was probably Romany's business. See Stahlschmidt, u. s., pp. 2 and 20 (giving the will in full).

ll. 28-9. Garden plottes, teynter yarges. This alludes to the enclosure about 1574 by Benedict Spinola, a prominent Italian merchant, of eight acres of land to form twenty tenter-yards and certain gardens. In 1584 it was presented as an annoyance to the archers and others. But it was shown in reply that the ground had never been commonly used for archers, and that Hog Lane was so foul and filthy that none could pass there; Spinola had, moreover, spent much money, and the tenter-yards were of great use to the cloth-workers. (Strype, Survey, Bk. II, ch. ii.) The gardens were no doubt the 'Spinilas' pleasure' of vol. i. p. 166. The tenter-yards by Houndsditch are shown plainly in Agas's map of London.

128, l. 33. Gunfounders surnamed Owens. In the Annales (p. 571, ed. 1631) Howes inserted under date 1535: 'John Owen began to make brasse Ordinance . . . He was the first Englishman, that ever made that kind of Artillerie in England; issue of his name, and the name of Pit have continued unto the dayes of King James most ready and excellent gun-makers.'

Robert and John Owen were at work at Houndsditch before 1531; they had a grant of the 'Belfounders house' there in 1540. (Letters and Papers, v. 664, xvi. p. 717.)

129, l. 1. Brokers, &c. For brokers in Houndsditch see Beaumont and Fletcher, The Woman's Prize, Act II. sc. ii:—

More knavery and usury,

And foolery, and brokery than Dog's ditch.

And Rowlands, Letting of Humours Blood in the Head Vaine, p. 45:—

But into Houndsditch to the Brokers row.

See also note on p. 361 below. Houndsditch and its neighbourhood are still the haunt of brokers and second-hand clothes dealers.

181, l. 18. Monumentes . . . Alkallowes Barking. See a paper thereon by G. R. Corner in Trans. London and Middlesex, ii. 224–58. It is there suggested that Studenham is an error for Sir Thomas Tudenham, who was executed in 1462; but he was buried at Austinfriars (see i. 178 above). Sir John Stile, draper, was alive in 1526. A John Style, mercer, who died about 1505, was a benefactor of All Hallows Barking. In Harley MS. 538, f. 44<sup>v</sup>, John Bolt is styled 'grocer and merchant of the Staple'. See also Maskell's Hist. of All Hallows Barking.

l. 35. John Crolys and Thomas Pike. John Croke (see vol. i. 131, l. 3) founded a chantry here in 1477. Pike is an error for Thomas Pilk, who founded a chantry in 1351 (Cal. Wills, i. 645; Maskell, u. s. 16).

l. 37. Sydon lane. 'Shyvethenestrat' in 1257 (Anc. Deeds, C. 1202), 'Syvidlane' in 1259, 'Sivendestrete' in 1291, 'Syvethenelane' in 1329, 'Sivedenelane' in 1334, and 'Syvedonlane' in 1516 (Cal. Wills, i. 2, 101, 352, 400, ii. 630). In a patent of 1312 it is called 'Sevyng lane' (C. P. R. Edw. II, i. 481). It is now Seething Lane.

182, l. 10. Richard Cely and Robert Cely. They were merchants of the Staple in the time of Edward IV. Their business correspondence is preserved in the Record Office, and has been in part published by the Royal Historical Society. Richard Cely the elder was patron of St. Olave's; he died in 1481; Richard the younger (d. 1494) and Robert were his sons. They lived in Mark Lane, in St. Olave's parish. A present of a vernicle, or copy of St. Veronica's handkerchief, to St. Olave's Church by Robert is recorded (Cely Papers, pp. xlviii and 4; Povah, Annals of St. Olave, p. 22).

l. 16. Chapone. Peter Capony, or Capponi, died of the plague, Oct. 27, 1582, aged 32. His monument, with a kneeling effigy, describes him as 'Petrus Caponius. Florentinus' (Povah, Annals of St. Olave, 94). Referred to as 'Piero Capony a gentleman of Florence' in Acts of Privy Council, x. 67.

l. 23. Cokedon hall. It occurs in 1316 and 1342 (Cal. Wills, i. 262, 468).

l. 39. Galley halfe pence. In a churchwardens' account book sub anno 1521, appears the entry 'Resaved for ij vnces of galy-halfepenyys sold this yere vjs. iiijd.', N. and Q., 4th ser. ii. 344. Stow's authority is Letter-Book I, f. clx.

l. 30. Sporiar lane, of old time so called. 'Sporieres lane' in 1295 and 1354, 'Water lane' in 1459, and 'the lane sometime called Sporyers lane now called Water lane' in 1513 (Cal. Wills, i. 122, 619, ii. 619).

184, l. 34. Edwaters. Strype corrects to 'Edward Waters'.

185, l. 3. John Tate. In Harley MS. 538, f. 46, 'son to Sir John Tate, sometyne maior of London, was theyre buried in the sayd chaple of W. Hariot, vnder a tombe in the northe wall now defaced, sir Christopher Draper, Ironmonger, maior of London, 1566, deceased 1580.'

l. 21. Passekes wharffe. 'Pesokes wharf' and a tenement called 'Horneres keys' appear as the property of William Harendon in 1448 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 236).

187, ll. 25-6. Hospitall . . . founded by Robert Denton. It was founded as stated, but proving impracticable, was changed in July, 1378, to a bequest for a Chantry-priest at St. Katherine's by the Tower (Mon. Angl. vi. 708-9; Cal. Inq. p. m. ii. 307). Stow here follows Leland (Collectanea, i. 110); he is more accurate in his own note on vol. ii. p. 143.

l. 32. Cobhams Inne. As belonging to Sir John Oldcastle in right of his wife, who died seized of it in 1434 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 38, 155).

188, l. 21. Mistresse Cornewallies. 'Principall Place' in St. Katherine, Christchurch, which had formerly belonged to Evesham Abbey, was granted to Edward and Alice Cornwallis by Henry VIII, in Sept. 1540 (Letters and Papers, xvi. p. 55). Alice Cornwallis died seized thereof on Jan. 8, 1556. Her son, Thomas, sold it in 1562 to Nicholas Throckmorton, who died there on Feb. 12, 1571 (Inq. p. m. Lond. i. 143, ii. 143). The puddings are not mentioned in the grant, but the story is illustrated by items of Henry's expenditure, e.g. on Oct. 26, 1530—'To the wife that made the King podings at Hampton Corte, vjs. viijd.' (Letters and Papers, v. p. 752, cf. also pp. 749, 750, 758).

l. 29. Belzettars lane. Stow is right as to the older form, but wrong as to the derivation. Belzeters means bell-founders; the first person to be described as 'belyeter' is William Burford of St. Botolph without Aldgate in 1390 (Cal. Wills, ii. 301). But the lane is called 'Belzeters-lane' in 1298, and 'Belleyeterslane' as late as 1468 (id. i. 134, ii. 543). See also Stahlschmidt, Surrey Bells and London Bellfounders, pp. 2, 3, 37; and notes on p. 288 above.

189, l. 29. Thus much for the bounds. In the foregoing description Stow has in part followed a statement in the Trinity Cartulary (Guildhall MS. 122, f. 13): 'Praeterea sciendum est quanta sit ista Soka, cujus fines tales sunt. A porta de Algate usque ad portam Bally Turris, que nuncupatur Tungate, et tota venella vocata Chykenlane versus Berkynchurche usque ad cimiterium, excepta una domo viciniore cimiterio, et iterum redditur eadem via usque ad ecclesiam Sancti Olavi, et tunc redditur per viculum qui tendit ad ecclesiam de Colemanschurche, deinde versus Fenchurch usque ad domum brasineam, ubi nunc habetur signum Columbe. Extitit itaque ibi olim viculus, per quem ibatur usque ad domum Teol fili Ivonis Aldermanni in Lymestrete, qui viculus nunc obstructus est quia suspectus erat pro furibus nocturnis, et ideo, quod non ibi patet via, redditur iterum per viculum versus capellam Sancti Michaelis, et sic versus Lymstratam ad domum Ricardi Canel, et deinde itur per vicum iuxta ecclesiam Sancti Andree usque ad ecclesiam Sancti Augustini iuxta murum Trinitatis. Deinde usque ad portam de Algate.'

'Teol' should be 'Theobald'. 'Trinitatis' in the last line is probably an error for 'ciuitatis'.

For supposed ruins of St. Michael's in 1789 see Gent. Mag. Library, xvi. 56-7.

l. 16. The Priorie was builded, &c. Stow has fallen into a confusion. The deed which he quotes does not relate to the site of the Priory, but to a plot of land on the opposite side of Aldgate Street. By this deed, dated July 7, 1314, the Prior and Convent 'confirmaverunt Johanni de la Marche civi London. quandam placeam terre cum pertinenciis in parochia Sancte Katerine versus Algate London., que quidem placea terre jacet in longitudine inter vicum regium, quo itur versus Algate, juxta capellam sancti Michaelis versus Aquilonem et terram Johannis Page versus austrum, et continet in eadem longitudine iij<sup>xx</sup> iij ulnas et dimidium et j quartarium, et dimidium quartarii unius ulne de ulnis ferreis domini Regis; et jacet in latitudine inter murum cimiterii dicte capelle versus occidentem et terram Willelmi Manhale versus orientem, et continet in eadem latitudine in capite Aquilonis xv ulnas et unum quartarium unius ulne et tres polices, et continet in capite australi a terra domini Johannis Cokermuth versus orientem usque ad venellam vocatam Bellezeterlane versus occidentem xlvij ulnas unum quartarium et dimidium quartarii unius ulne.' The rent was to be 53s. 4d. annually. This is from the Trinity Cartulary, u. s. f. 44.

141, l. 7. according to their estates. In Harley MS. 538, f. 48, Stow continues: 'In so moche that as eny man mowght come into theyr church to prayer, so mowght they enter the hall at meale tymes and fill theyr bellyes, and at all tymes of the day come to the buttre and sellar and have breade and drinke, or to the kitchen in the fore none and require of the coke a peace of befe, which shuld be given hym roste or sod on his knife or dagger's poynt, and so to beare it abrode, whither he would for himselfe and his frinds. The liberalite of this house, as I have hard and partely sene, is rather to be wondered at than reviled of them that have not sene the lyke.'

l. 8. monuments. There are lists in Harley MSS. 6033 and 6069. The former reads for 'Heningham' Hemmyngham, and for 'Charcam' Charchand de Mille; the latter Mannyngham, and Charthano de Mille. Both have Nycke for 'Nucke'. For 'Beringham' Bermyngham or Bernyngham. In 6069 Margaret Chenie's second and third husbands are called Thomas Breus and William Burcestur (Berners and Burcestur, ap. Anc. Deeds, A. 7356); for 'Halling' read Helmyng; and for 'Auesey', Anestie. Stow has copied a list in Harley MS. 544, f. 66<sup>vo</sup>.

l. 24. Henrie Fitzalwine . . . 1213. See note on p. 315.

l. 37. gaue to sir Thomas Audley. On April 9, 1534. (Letters and Papers, vii. 587 (10).)

143, l. 12. S. Andrew Vndershaft. In deeds of Prior Norman (d. 1147) the Church is St. Andrew 'ad sanctam Trinitatem' (Anc. Deeds, A. 2338, 7285). Later it was usually called St. Andrew, Cornhill. In 1361 it is called St. Andrew Aneknappe (atte Knappe), or 'on the hill', from knap, O.E. cnaep, the top of a hill. St. Andrew 'atte Shafte' occurs in 1477 (Cal. Wills, ii. 30, 583). For the history of the church see a paper by Mr. Philip Norman in Transactions of the St. Paul's Ecclesiological Society, vol. v.

margin. Chaucer. chance of dice. No such poem appears in Stow's own edition, nor amongst Chaucer's accepted works. Professor Skeat has, however, identified this verse with the sixth stanza of an anonymous poem entitled Chance of the Dice in Fairfax MS. 16, f. 194. He says further: 'the poem is certainly not Chaucer's, but it may be Lydgate's.' The Fairfax MS. supplies the following corrections: line 2, 'floom' (=arrows) for 'flying'; line 4, 'when that' for 'when'; line 6, 'crokke' (=crock, a round paunch) for 'croke'; line 7, 'clokke' (=cluck) for 'cloke'. 'Crowdeth' in line 6 means presses forward. See The Chaucer Canon, p. 126.

144, ll. 11, 12. neighbours and Tenants. In Harley MS. 538 the text continues: 'of the sayd houses and alley, over whose dores and gate . . . dined, gathered to them more strengthe,' &c.

l. 20. as he tearmed it. Stow, in Harley MS. 538, wrote 'as they termed it'.

l. 25. the Baylife of Romfort. Wriothesley has 'taylor of Raynesford in Essex' (Chronicle, ii. 19). But the Greyfriars Chronicle has simply 'one that came from Romford' (Monumenta Franciscana, ii. 221).

145, l. 37. Hugh Offley. 'Deceased 1594', Harley MS. 538. He died Nov. 26, 1594 (Inq. p. m. Lond. iii. 224).

146, l. 3. one faire greate house. It came to Sir Edward Wotton with his wife Hester, daughter of William Pickering the younger (Inq. p. m. London, iii. 240-3). Sir William Pickering the elder had a grant of the site from Henry VIII in 1538 (Letters and Papers, xiii. Pt. ii. 491 (18)).

l. 9. Robert Beale. A member of the old Society of Antiquaries. He died in 1601, and was buried at All Hallows on the Wall. See i. 176.

l. 12. The Papey. The original documents show that the Hospital of le Papey was really founded (or refounded—for the brethren of St.

Augustine are mentioned in 1365, Anc. Deeds, A. 2273) in 1442 by Thomas Symmineson or Symson, William Cleve ('Oliver' is a misreading, derived, as it would seem, from Leland, Collectanea, i. 111), William Barnaby, and John Stafford, priests. It was for the benefit of priests disabled by age or sickness. A contemporary refers to: 'Pappy Chyrche on the Wall betwyne Algate and Bevyssse Markes. And hyt ys a great Fraternyte of prestys and othyr secular men. And there ben founde of almys certayne prestys, both blynde and lame, that be empotent; and they have day masse, and xiiij*d*. a weke, barber and launder, and one to dresse and provyde for hyr mete and drinke' (Collections of a London Citizen, p. viii. Camd. Soc.). The patronage of the church belonged to the soke, which Queen Matilda gave to Trinity Priory; in the fourteenth century document, where this is recorded, it is called 'ecclesia sancti Augustini Pavie super murum' (Lansdowne MS. 448, f. 8). St. Augustin de Pavy occurs in 1417 (see p. 297 below). Trinity was a priory of Augustinian Canons, and St. Augustine's relics were preserved in the church of San Pietro at Pavia (Papua)—held by the Augustinian canons of Mortara from 1221. This probably explains the name 'Papey' as used to distinguish St. Augustine on the Wall from the church of St. Augustine of Canterbury by Paul's Gate. In 1170-87 the church is simply St. Augustine 'super murum': in 1252-3 we get 'Parochia Sancti Augustini Pappay' (Guildhall MS. 122, f. 508). For an account of the Papey by T. Hugo see Trans. Lond. & Midd. v. 183-221. For the 'Liber Papie' see note on p. 297.

l. 30. Buries Markes, corruptly Beuis markes. A Bury chronicler refers to the abbot's house at 'Bury's markys' about 1470 (Memorials of St. Edmunds, iii. 299). But 'Bewesmarkes' occurs in 1407, and 'Bevys Marke' in 1450 (Cal. Wills, ii. 372, 518). It was granted to Sir Thomas Heneage in 1541 (Letters and Papers, see xv. 942 (118), xvi. p. 715).

147, l. 21. Thomas Mollington, Lord of Wem in Shropshire in the time of Henry IV. See Eyton, Shropshire, ix. 178. A list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 25 has 'Thomas Molington, baron of Wem'. The same list gives John Tyrrell for 'Tirres' (l. 20); Brosted for 'Brosked' (l. 28); and Condorow for 'Couderow' (l. 29).

ll. 33, 34. Skeuington and Milborne. In Harley MS. 538 the dates of death, viz. 1524 and 1539, are given.

148, margin. These poyntes not performed. Munday (Survey, p. 157, ed. 1633) says that Stow was mistaken, and that Milborne's will contained no bequest of bread and coal, but provided for Almshouses only. See also Strype, ii. ch. iv.

l. 34. Lord Lumleyes house. Crutched Friars was granted to Sir Thomas Wyatt on July 10, 1540 (Letters and Papers, xv. 942 (49); for his message called 'Pekes Gardeyn' in 1540, see Anc. Deeds, A. 12598). John, sixth Lord Lumley, who died at Lumley house in 1609, was a member of the old Society of Antiquaries. The Navy Office was here in Pepys's time.

149, l. 7. Monte Jones or Monasterie Cornute. Hornechurch Priory or Monasterium Cornutum was founded by Henry II as a cell to the Hospital de Monte Jovis, on the Great St. Bernard. Richard II granted it to William of Wykeham for New College, Oxford. (Mon. Angl. vi. 652-3.) Stow follows the Trinity Cartulary (Guildhall MS. 122, f. 35) for the grant of this site.

l. 15. made into bowling Alleys. In Dec. 1553 'the Lord Maior and the sheriffes went to these three common bowlinge allies, that is to say, Northumberland alley by Algate, St. Nicholas shambles alley, and an alley in the Old Baylie; and with mattockes did breake and digge up all the said alleys' (Wriothesley's Chronicle, ii. 105). Three years before the Mayor and Sheriffs 'rode to the bowlinge allyes and play-houses at Pawles wharfe and by Aldgate', and broke up the tables, and sent the players to the Counters (id. ii. 43). See more on bowling alleys on p. 368. This Northumberland House is to be distinguished from another in Aldersgate (p. 343).

l. 36. Blanch apleton. 'Blanches appeltuna' in the soke of Robert de Valoniis (de Vaux) occurs in 1177 (Anc. Deeds, A. 7295). A part of the manor came to the family of Ros of Hamelake with one of the co-heiresses of John de Vaux in 1288 (Cal. Inquisitions, ii. p. 404—new ed.). Another part belonged to the Bohuns, Earls of Hereford. The name was finally corrupted into Blind Chapel Court, through the intermediary Blanch Chapulton.

150, l. 3. Mart lane. It appears as 'Marthe lane' from the beginning of the thirteenth century down to 1280; for the next two hundred years 'Marte lane' is the usual form. 'Marke' is a corruption of the sixteenth century. (Anc. Deeds, A. 2679, 7354, 7820; Cal. Wills, i. 50, ii. 613, 689.)

l. 5. Basket makers, &c. By order of the Court of Common Council on October 12, 1464. See Archaeologia, xxxii. 131, quoting, somewhat inaccurately, City Record, ap. Jor. Cooke, No. 7, f. 43.

l. 19. Limestreete, of making or selling of Lime. This is confirmed by the occurrence of Ailnoth the lime-burner of 'Lim Strate' in the twelfth century (Anc. Deeds, A. 11559).

l. 37. diuerse fayre houses. Lime Street was in Stow's time a good residential quarter. See quotation on p. 338 below.

161, l. 2. the king's Artirce. I am unable to identify the reference or explain the word. It is 'Artirce' in Harley MS. 538. Possibly it may be an error for 'Artirie'.

l. 6. belonging to the Lord Neuill, see note on p. 295.

l. 13. Benbriges Inne. In Holand's will called Penbridge's Inn (Cal. Wills, ii. 525). Probably the house which Sir Richard de Pembridge or Pembrugge held in 1375 (Cal. Inq. p. m. ii. 348).

l. 33. Lord Sowches Messuage. The lords Zouch of Harringworth had a hospice in St. Andrew parish 'juxta Lymestrete', 1381-1415 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 43, 192, iv. 15).

162, ll. 35, 36. a faire house, &c. In Harley MS. 538, f. 52<sup>vo</sup>: 'a fayre large house for an alderman or other of good worship, wherein, &c.'

1. 9. the greene gate. It fell to the crown in 1391 by the death of Michael, son of Simon Pistoye (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 140), and was granted on December 24 to Roger Croppehulle and Thomas Brounflete (P. R. C., Richd. II, v. 12). Henry IV granted it on March 1, 1408, to Thomas Walsyngham (id. Henry IV, iii. 409). Malpas by his will—proved May 8, 1468—left his great place in Cornhill and Lime Street to his daughter Elizabeth and her husband, Sir Thomas Cooke. Cooke by his will—proved June 1, 1478—left 'Greene Gate' to his wife, with remainder to his son Philip (Orridge, Illustrations of Jack Cade's Rebellion, 11, 18). Possibly, however, 'The Green Gate' had been forfeited through Cooke's troubles in the reign of Edward IV, for on April 28, 1486, Henry VII granted it to John Forester (Campbell, Materials Hist. Henry VII, i. 417). Sir William de Ryvers was a Breton in the service of Henry VII, and Master of the King's hawks. (Chron. Lond. 202, 249, 251.) John Mutas or Meautys was French secretary to Henry VIII; for the sack of his house in 1517, see Letters and Papers, ii. 3204. David Woodroffe was seized of 'The Greene Gate' at his death in 1563 (Inq. p. m. Lond. ii. 12).

158, l. 1. Leaden Hall. The earliest mention is in 1296 as 'La Ledene halle' (Cal. Wills, i. 128). It occurs as 'la sale de plom' in 1302 (Lib. de Ant. Legg. 249; 'aula plumbea' in Ann. Lond. 127), and in 1321 when inspectors were appointed for the poultry-market there (Mun. Gild. II. i. 305). In 1345 there is reference to 'Ledenhalle gardyn' belonging to Sir John Neville (Letter-Book F, 86), and in the will of William de Kyngeston (see below) in 1375 there is a note of a tenement called 'le ledenhall' formerly belonging to Sir John Nevill (Cal. Wills, ii. 173; translation in Strype, ii. ch. viii).

1. 32. The Horsemill. Apparently a building which included tenements belonging to several persons. In 1353 Peter de Blithe disposed of rents issuing from tenements called 'le Horsmelne'; in 1370 William Bysshop bequeathed shops belonging to 'le Horsmille'; a share in the Horsemill was included in the lands which William de Kyngeston gave to St. Peter's Cornhill in 1375; and in 1413 William Baret left his share in a tenement, 'le Horsmelle,' to the church of St. Dunstan in the East (Cal. Wills, i. 674; ii. 139, 173, 396).

157, l. 5. comfort of the Citizens. In Harley MS. 538, f. 55<sup>vo</sup>, Stow adds: 'He dyd more than ryde about the market and away.'

1. 21. a Baker named John of Stratforde. See Letter-Book D, 311, and compare for bakers of Stratford, Mun. Gild. I. 241-2, III. 412-29.

1. 26. I read in the visions of Pierce Plowman. Stow's version, written as prose, is inaccurate. The text as given by Professor Skeat, Piers Plowman, vol. i. p. 402, ll. 266-71, is as follows:—

There was a carful comune · whan no carte come to toun
With bake bred fro Stretforth · tho gan beggeres wepe,
And werkmen were agaste a litel · this wil be thouzte longe.
In the date of owre dryzte · in a drye Apprile,
A thousande and thre hondreth · tweis thretty and ten,
My wafres there were gesen <sup>1</sup> · whan Chichestre was maire.

The reference to John Chichester fixes the date as 1369-70. John Malvern, whose name Stow puts in the margin, was author of a continuation of Higden's Polychronicon from 1346 to 1394 (Dict. Nat. Biog. xxxvi. 8). The description of him as author of Piers Plowman is an error due to the obvious connexion of William Langland with Malvern.

160, l. 29. S. Marie at the Axe. It occurs as St. Mary del Ax about 1200, and this is the regular form throughout the thirteenth century (Anc. Deeds, A. 2416, 2425, 2447). In the Rotuli Hundredorum it is called Sancta Maria apud Ax, atte Ax, atten Ax, atte Nax. As S. Mary de Ax it was in the patronage of the Nuns of St. Helen's in 1303 (Mun. Gild. II. i. 236). In 1514 the parishioners in a petition to the king declared that 'the Churche ys in soo great decaye that y<sup>t</sup> ys lyke every day to fall downe', and 'the parson ys departyd frome the same Churche where it pleaseth hym and left the parishyns withoute any maner of devyne service'. They begged for assistance on account of their poverty, and because the 'said poore Church ys honored by kepyng of an holly relyke an axe, oon of the iij. that the xj.m<sup>l</sup>. Virgyns were be hedyd w<sup>t</sup> all, the whiche holly relyke as yett remayneth in the said Churche' (Bills signed 5 Hen. VIII, No. 79, ap. Gent. Mag. Library, xvi. 45-6; cf. Letters and Papers, i. 4993). After the suppression of St. Helen's the decay grew worse, and ultimately on March 3, 1561, St. Mary Axe was united to St. Andrew Undershaft (Hennesey, Novum Repertorium Lond. 94). It is impossible to reject Stow's statement that there was a house with the sign of the Axe close by; but the house may have borrowed its name from the Church; or it may be that the name was the cause and not a consequence of the relic. An alternative suggestion is that the name 'axe' was due to the proximity of a stream; but for this there is no proof (see N. and Q. 9th ser. x. 425, xi. 110, 10th ser. i. 90). St. Mary 'Pellipariorum' occurs as a heading in the Trinity Cartulary, and occasionally elsewhere.

161, l. 10. Grey a Pothecarie. Presumably Balthasar Gwercye, or Guersye, the physician (Dict. Nat. Biog. xxiii. 316), who at his death in 1557 owned 'the house of preistes of the brotherhed of the Holy Trinite', and messuages in St. Mary Axe (Inq. p. m. Lond. i. 144).

162, l. 5. iust boundes of Aldgate—see note on p. 290.

l. 15. grounde letten. In 1539 the Churchwardens of St. Martin's paid 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* 'to the Masters of Pappe, for the purchase of the churche y<sup>d</sup>e'. Nichols, Illustrations of Manners, &c., p. 247.

l. 21. the fraternity of Papie. The 'Liber Papie' consists only of eleven leaves, now Cotton MS., Vitellius, F. xvi, ff. 113-23, which suffered terribly in the fire of 1731; the loss is in part made good by a partial transcript written about 1550 in Harley MS. 604, f. 12. (Both the MSS. seem to have been in Stow's possession.) The grant from the mayor on f. 119 of the Cotton MS., though imperfect, corrects Stow's transcript: 'Be hit remembered that where nowe late the maister and wardeyns of the ffraternitee of Pappey haue made a bryke walle closyng in the Chapell of Seint Austyn called Pappey Chapell sette in the paroch' of all saintes in the walle in the warde of lymestrete of the citee of London. ffrom the south est corner of the which brike wall is a Skuncheon of xxj fote of assise from the said corner westward. And from the same Skuncheon there to a mesurage of lv. fote and di. westward. The forsaid Skuncheon brekith oute of lyneright southward betwixe the mesures aforesaid three fote and v. ynches of assise vpon the comyn ground of the Citee aforesaid. Rauf Verney maire and thaldermen of the same Citee the xxijth day of Octobre the yere of the reigne of Kyng Edward the fourth the sixth granted vnto John Hede, Prest, maister, John Bolt and Thomas Pachette, also Preestes, wardeyns of the ffraternitee of Pappey aforesaid and their successours for euermore, the said Skuncheon which brekith oute of the Brike walle aforesaid and is sette thre foote and v. ynches vpon the comyn grounde like as it is abouesaid. To haue and to holde the same withoute any interupcion of the said maire and aldermen or their successours . . .' The 'skuncheon' or triangular projection of the wall is clearly shown in Agas's map. From f. 120 it appears that the master and wardens employed Thomas Hardyng, citizen and Scrivener, to write the book in Sept. 1477. Additions carrying on the history, with lists of the brethren, were afterwards made. The chief documents with two facsimiles are given in Hugo's account—see p. 293 above.

168, l. 5. one large messuage. The hostel of the Earl of Oxford near Bishopsgate street is mentioned in 1348 (Cal. Wills, i. 513). Richard de Vere, 11th Earl of Oxford, had a messuage 'in parochia S. Augustini Pavy' in 1417, as also his mother in 1401 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 277, iv. 26). John, 13th Earl (d. 1513), had a house described as 'Bevesmarkes' in ward of Lime Street (Inq. p. m. Lond. i. 30). John, 14th Earl, died in 1526; his second sister and co-heiress, Elizabeth, married Sir Anthony Wingfield (d. 1552), father of Sir Robert (d. 1597), who was living here in 1587 (Cal. State Papers, 1581-90, p. 395).

l. 37. purchased the patronage. From a document in Letter-book F, 154, it appears that on Oct. 15, 1346, the House and Order 'Fratrum milicie beate Marie de Bethlem' were taken under the protection and patronage of the Mayor, Aldermen, &c., of the City of London. See also Letter-books F, 163, and H, 338, where it is claimed in answer to a royal writ that the patronage and appointment of a keeper rested with the Mayor and citizens. In 1406 Henry IV again claimed the patronage and right of visitation (C. P. R. Henry IV, iii. 231).

166, l. 10. banke of deepe ditch. In the foundation charter of Bethlehem Hospital mention is made of the 'fossatum quod vocatur Depediche' (Mon. Angl. vi. 622). Recent excavations revealed a part of its course near Blomfield Street, and showed it as a deep, sluggish, stagnant stream. It was ten feet below the base of the original Walbrook, which was somewhat further west. It is the stream referred to in the last note but one. See Archaeologia, lx. 206-7 with plan.

166, l. 1. Fishers folly. It is to this large and sumptuously-built house that Fletcher must refer in The Nice Valour, Act v. sc. iii. :—

Moulbason. Is't possible such virtue should lie hid,
And in so little paper?

Lapet. How! . . .

Your Herring<sup>1</sup> proved the like, able to buy Another Fisher's Folly.

The commentators have, however, interpreted this as an allusion to a tract written in 1624 by the Puritan George Walker, in his controversy with Piercy, a Jesuit, who was known as Father Fisher, and entitled: Fisher's Folly unfolded, or The Vaunting Jesuites Vanity discovered. Partly on this ground Dyce and others have held that The Nice Valour was left incomplete by Fletcher, who died in 1625, and finished by another hand (Dyce, Works of Beaumont and Fletcher, x. 363, and A. H. Bullen, ap. Dict. Nat. Biog. xix. 309). But clearly Walker was punning on Jasper Fisher's notorious building.

Jasper Fisher, son of John Fisher, was warden of the Goldsmiths' Company in 1567 (Prideaux, Memorials of the Goldsmiths, i. 68). He purchased six gardens of Sir Martin Bowes, on which he built his house. He died on February 28, 1579 (Inq. p. m. London, iii. 20). In 1588 William, son of Thomas Cornwaleys, purchased Fisher's Folly from the Earl of Oxford (Cal. Hatfield MSS., iii. 376-7). In May, 1594, Mr. Cornwallis of Fisher's Folly was suspect of Popery (Cal. State Papers, 1591-4, p. 503). He was still living there in 1598 (see p. 241 above). Sir Roger Manners purchased it before 1603. After him the Earl of Argyll dwelt there: 'the Lord of Argyll's house, called Fisher's Folly, offered to the East India Company—held unfit for their service' (Cal. East Indies, p. 368—Jan. 10, 1615). Then it passed to the Marquis of Hamilton, who died in March, 1625: 'His body was carried to Fisher's

Folly, his house without Bishopsgate' (Cal. State Papers, 1623-5, p. 697). After this it was the residence of William Cavendish, second Earl of Devonshire, who died there in 1628 (Survey, p. 175, ed. 1633), and of his widow, Christiana (d. 1675), who entertained Charles II there in 1660 (Gent. Mag. Library, xv. 171). Part of the site was occupied by a Baptist meeting-house, whence Samuel Butler (Hudibras, Pt. III, canto ii. 894) refers to 'The Rump' as representing: 'But Fisher's Folly congregation.' Fisher's Folly stood on the site of Devonshire Square, Finsbury. See Wheatley, London Past and Present, i. 503, and ii. 47-8.

'Kirkebyes Castell' is explained by a letter from William Fleetwood to Burghley, in which he wrote, on July 21, 1578: 'John Kirby that buylded the fayre howse upon Bednall Greene is ded, so is Fairfax and Bower, all riche men. They died of surrfaite' (Lansdowne MS. 26, f. 191<sup>vo</sup>). Strype identifies it with 'that now called the Blind Beggars House' (Survey, iv. ch. ii). Kirby may be the Kirkbie named on vol. i. p. 228 above. 'Megses glorie' was probably a house in the same neighbourhood, for the Meggs family were connected with St. Mary Matfellow (Strype, u. s.).

171, l. 26. William Basing Deane of paules was the first founder. Stow has made some confusion. About 1212 Alard, the dean, and the chapter of St. Paul's, made a grant to William, son of William, the Goldsmith, to establish Nuns at St. Helen's. The Canons of St. Paul's had held the Church of St. Helen's for many years previously (Cox, Annals of St. Helen's, 4-6, 359). There was no dean called William Basing. On the monuments at St. Helen's see Cox, Annals, &c., 57-74. John Langthorpe should be John Leenthorp (or Leventhorpe). The date of William Bond's death was 1576.

l. 38. purchased by the Companie of the Lethersellers. Henry VIII granted it in 1542 to Sir Richard Williams, alias Cromwell (nephew of Thomas Cromwell, and great-grandfather of the Protector), who sold it to Thomas Kendall in 1544. Kendal was a leatherseller, and no doubt purchased for his company, to whom he at once demised the property (Inq. p. m. Lond. iii. 143; Letters and Papers, xvii. 220 (95)). On Leathersellers Hall see Gent. Mag. Library, xv. 296-8.

178, l. 18. since the which time, &c. Sir Bartholomew Rede dwelt in Crosby Place in 1501-2, and Sir John Best in 1516. After him Sir Thomas More, who, on Jan. 20, 1523, sold his lease to his friend Antonio Bonvisi of Lucca (see Dict. Nat. Biog. v. 365). Bonvisi acquired the reversion in 1542 (Letters and Papers, xvii. 881 (17)), and on April 1, 1547, demised Crosby Place to William Rastell and William Roper, who in turn surrendered their interest to Benedict Bonvisi and German Ceo or Cyoll. Rastell, Roper, the Bonvisis, and Cyoll all left England in 1549-50. Crosby Place was thereupon seized to the King's use (Wriothesley's Chronicle, ii. 34). Afterwards it was occupied by Thomas, Lord Darcy. Bonvisi returned in the reign of Queen Mary, and died seized of Crosby's Place on Dec. 7, 1558. German Cyoll and his wife Cicely, daughter of Sir John Gresham, lived there from 1560 to 1567, when he sold it to William Bond (d. 1576). The French ambassador was living there in 1592. Bond's sons sold it in 1594 to Sir John Spencer. In Feb. 1601, Crosby Place, the house of Sir John Spencer, 'being very large and he seldom using it,' was suggested as suitable for the reception of the Earl of Mar. Sir Walter Raleigh was living there in the following September (Hist. MSS. Comm. Hatfield MSS. xi. 88, 382). It was prepared for the reception of the Duc de Biron in the same year (Acts Privy Council, xxxii. 190). See Inq. p. m. London, i. 114-6, 183, ii. 200, iii. 133-4; A Memoir of Crosby Place, by T. Hugo, ap. Trans. Lond. and Midd. i. 35-55; Gent. Mag. Library, xv. 249-66. For an account of seven original documents relating to Crosby Hall see N. and Q. 10th ser. viii. 30; they are dated 1552-67, the last being the sale by German Cyoll to William Bond.

174, l. 20. Alice Smith. The notice of her benefactions was inserted in the edition of 1603 on p. 580 as an addendum. It is now put in its intended place.

176, l. 17. as large an house, builded, &c. It had been lately built by Sir William Paulet, when in April, 1540, he obtained a grant of part of Austinfriars. Another part of the site had belonged to Thomas Cromwell, and was granted in 1543 to Sir Thomas Wriothesley. Paulet eventually acquired the whole, receiving a grant of the upper part of the church in 1550 (Inq. p. m. Lond. iii. 283-6).

177, l. 39. There lye buried in this Fryers church. An article on Austinfriars by T. Hugo, in Trans. Lond. and Midd. ii. 1-20, includes a list of burials compiled from Harley MSS. 544, ff. 66 and 68<sup>vo</sup>, and 6033. It furnishes the following variants from Stow's list, p. 178, l. 5, Hyndercke or Hynndemole (for Lindericle); l. 11, Graynsers or Greynfers; l. 17, Walter Maynell; l. 19, Sir Bartholomew Badlesmere (probably correct); l. 21, Merventon; l. 28, Talmache; l. 35, Chybury; l. 35, Peter Morowes; l. 36, Berland; Chitting; l. 37, Chornott; l. 38, Howche; p. 179, l. 1, Attepole (i. e. de la Pole); l. 7, Boell; l. 7, Mawney (Mauny is correct); l. 7, Deskay. A third list is in Harley MS. 6069, f. 23. Harley MSS. 544 and 6033 give the epitaph of Lucia de Visconti, beginning:—

Mediolanensis olim clarissima proles.

179, ll. 38-9. that . . . to forget themselues. Stow wrote in Harley MS. 538, f. 62<sup>vo</sup>: 'Of this unconscionable dealyng of hym, wherein he forgate hymselfe.'

180, ll. 14, 15. Lethbury . . . now corruptly called Lothbury. See the longer passage on i. 277, and note on p. 334.

ll. 22, 23. an house pertayning to the Abbot of S. Albons. Edward Keacher or Ketcher, pewterer, purchased the Abbot of St. Alban's Inn from the grantee at the dissolution, and when he died in Jan. 1563, left it to his son John, the Alderman Catcher of Stow's text (Inq. p. m. London, ii. 38).

l. 29. saint Martin called Oteswich. John de Oteswich founded a chantry here in Dec. 1331, for his father William and others (C. P. R. Edw. III, ii. 230; cf. id. Henry IV, iii. 56). A Martin de Ottewich occurs in connexion with the church about 1246 (Anc. Deeds, A. 2683). But the name is much older; St. Martin Otteswich occurs in 1216 (see note on 'Finkes Lane' below), and Otheswych in 1222 (Anc. Deeds, A. 2698). The Alfwyn Fink who held land in St. Martin Otteswich (id. A. 2658) may be the same as the alderman of 1180 (Madox, Hist. Exchequer, i. 562). Machyn (Diary, 175, 211, &c.) refers habitually to St. Martin Oteswich as 'Sant Martin's with the well and ij bokettes'; see also vol. i. pp. 164, 174. For a similar list of burials see Harley MS. 6069, f. 54, reading 'Wodehouse' for 'Woodroffe' (p. 181, l. 2). For the tomb of John de Oteswich see Gough, Sepulchral Monuments, and for inscriptions, Gent. Mag. Libr. xvi. 42. For extracts from Churchwardens' Accounts see J. Nichols, Illustrations of Manners, &c., 270-4. The site is now 39 Threadneedle Street.

182, l. 2. after some Record. See Memorials, 183-5; Letter-Book E, 269. The date was 10 May, 1331, i.e. the fifth (not the sixth) of Edward III. Yakesley is a better form than Yakley.

l. 38. Finkes lane, &c. Stow gets his information from a series of Charters in Cotton MS., Faustina, B. II, f. 80—the Cartulary of the Nuns' Priory at Clerkenwell. Rosamond, daughter of James Finke, gave to the Priory in 1216-7 her stone house in the parish of St. Benet Finck, and tenements in St. Martin Oteswich. The Priory regranted them to Robert, son of Robert Finke.

l. 15. the little Conduit, called the pissing Conduit. So Middleton in A Chaste Maid in Cheapside, Act III. sc. ii:

Come along presently by the Pissing-conduit,

With two brave drums and a standard-bearer.

In Henry VI, Pt. 2, Act IV. sc. vi, Cade says: 'Now is Mortimer lord of this city. And here sitting upon London-stone, I charge and command, that of the City's cost, the pissing-conduit run nothing but claret wine this first year of our reign.'

184, l. 21. one of the Proctors for saint Anthonies, &c. The pigs of St. Anthony were privileged. But the Renter of the Hospital had to swear that he would not claim any pigs wandering in the City, nor hang bells round the necks of any which had not been given to the hospital in pure alms. Other pigs were such a nuisance that at an early date men were appointed to kill all that were found loose in the streets (Mun. Gild. I. 590-1, and Preface, p. xlii; Letter-Book D, 251).

l. 25. Abraham de Gascon. No doubt the 'Abbebrand Gascon, Lombard' of 1370, Letter-Book B, 27.

l. 26 and 27. Jehan and Barne. The dates of death, viz. 1519 and 1527 are added in Harley MS. 538.

198, l. 3. Margaret Norford. Margery de Nexford founded a chantry here in 1420. C.P.R. Henry VI. ii. 292, 326.

l. 4. John Tanswery. 1421. His will, dated 8 Jan., enrolled 31 May, 1422, mentions donations to St. Christopher's Church, but no bequest of lands. Cal. Will. i. 201.

l. 7. And take the Mardell and ring. It was a common custom for a widow to take a vow of chastity, and thence to receive in church the mantle and ring. Cf. City Papers, p. 181: 'On the xxvij day [27 March, 1452] where Sybilde herrell and the marrow Herby kys whyfe take the mantell and the ryng.' For a description of the ceremony at the taking of the mantle and ring, see Later Englishness of Edmund Lucy, Bishop of Exeter, ed. R. Bates.

l. 10. John Norry livery. The law in Harley MS. 6069, f. 55, reads: 'John Norry.—Hilme.'

187, l. 14. Ripens of Rye. In 1354 an ordinance was made concerning foreigners called 'Ripens' bringing sea-fish to the city for sale; they then occupied the Stocks. Elsewhere there is reference to 'les Ripens of amessment persons del mer a la cite', distinguishing them from the 'Peters' or fishers in the Thames. Letter-Book B, 234.

198, l. 25. But now we have water. 140. In Harley MS. 538, f. 65<sup>vo</sup>: 'A great comodyte, if the sayd water were mayntayned to come at every tyde some reasonable quantite as at the first it dyd: but since the same is almoste altogether ceased through whose default I know not.' The text of 1598 stopped short at 'Stockes Market' (see p. 243 above). The notice in the Assize, p. 1171, ed. 1605, agrees very nearly with the Harley MS. In another place (Harley MS. 540, f. 123) Stow writes: 'The Standard at Lodenhall is to be reformed or pulled downe: it standeth as a shadow, or rather a playne mockery yeldinge no comodytie to the Citty, suche as was promised, but contrarywise it comberith the strete with the let of cariage.'

Middieton in Michaelmas Term writes: 'I tell you what I ha' done. Sometimes I carry my water all London over only to deliver it proudly at the Standard.'

180, ll. 18, 19. Break up . . . the Tunne. On 18 April, 1299, pardon was granted to the persons of the City of London who broke the Tun (tonelli) erected for the punishment of suspected persons wandering about the city at night (C.P.R. Edw. I. iii. 408). The breaking of the Tun seems to have taken place in the previous summer (Letter-Book B, 74-5); the fine of 20,000 marks was remitted on payment of 1000*l.* (id. C, 38). It is curious that the original in B has 'cuiusdam dolei', and in C

'pro condonacione rancoris sui pro factione (fractione) cuiusdam doley.' The Tun is called dolium in Letter-Book H, 339. Neither Stow nor his authorities explain the incident; the persons concerned were all aldermen.

190, l. 10. punishment of Priests in my youth. One may suspect here a covert allusion to the different treatment of a minister in later times. In 1563 the minister of St. Mary Abchurch was caught in adultery with another man's wife and taken to Bridewell, 'his breche hangynge aboute his knes, his gowne and his (kyvar knave) hatt borne afftar hym with myche honor; but he lay not longe ther, but was delyveryd with owt punishment and still injoyed his benefyssis. They were greatly blamed that apprehended hym and comitted him' (Memoranda, 127). On this latter incident see also Machyn, Diary, p. 310. At the end of Letter-Book I, there is a long list of the punishment of priests taken in adultery. See also Letter-Book H, 339, for a record of the custom in 1388-9.

191, ll. 4, 5. prison . . . called a Cage. So Dick the butcher said of Jack Cade: 'his father had never a house but the cage.' Henry VI, Pt. 2, Act IV. sc. ii.

l. 20. saith Robert Fabian. This passage does not appear in the printed continuation of Fabyan's Chronicle, and must have been derived by Stow from his manuscript. See Introduction, p. xxxv.

margin. a man . . . that had sworn foolishly against his brother. Referring to John Stow's quarrel with his brother Thomas. See Introduction, pp. xviii, xix.

192, l. 25. the Royall Exchange. Stow in his Memoranda (pp. 134-5) has this note: 'The xxij day of February, 1565, beyng Friday, the howsys nere to y<sup>e</sup> Conduit in Cornhille, abowt y<sup>e</sup> nombar of lx households, poore and ryche, were cryed by the bell man abowte y<sup>e</sup> citie of London to be solde to them that wold gyve moaste for them, and remeve the same from thenis, that in the place y<sup>e</sup> marchaunts mowght buyld their bursse. Thos howsys were dyverse tymes so cryed and at y<sup>e</sup> last solde, and they begane to pull downe y<sup>e</sup> same shortly aftar ovr Lady day in Lent. In y<sup>e</sup> pullynge downe wherof dyverse persons were sore hurt and ij in great peryll of deathe; and by Whitsontyde next followynge in 1566 y<sup>e</sup> same howsys were all pullyd downe and y<sup>e</sup> grownd clearyd; all whiche chargis was borne by y<sup>e</sup> citzens of London, and then possessyon given by sertayn aldarmen to Syr Thomas Gressham, who layed y<sup>e</sup> fyrst stone (beyng bryke) of y<sup>e</sup> fowndacion on y<sup>e</sup> vij day of June, beyng Friday, in y<sup>e</sup> aftar none next aftar Whitson halydays, between 4 and 5 of y<sup>e</sup> cloke.' On lands in St. Michael, Cornhill, taken for the site of the Royal Exchange, see Churchwardens' Accounts, pp. 213, 217, 233.

193, l. 17. the Pawne. It was a covered walk on the south side of the Exchange. The word is derived from the Dutch pand, originally meaning a covered cloister, and now used for a store or shop. In the Remembrance (p. 520) there is reference to the Pawne or Exchange built at Durham House in the Strand in 1608. The Exchange, and the Pawne in particular, was famous for the sale of fine silks and draperies. Webster, Westward Ho! Act II. sc. i: 'You must go to the Pawn to buy lawn.' Rowlands, in A Crew of Kind Gossips, p. 13:

One of them gave me this same ruffe of Lawne,

It cost three pound, but laste week in the Pawne.

Middleton, A Chaste Maid in Cheapside, Act I. sc. ii: 'As if she lay with all the gaudy-shops in Gresham's Burse about her.'

194, l. 14. a table. The inscription is given by Weever in his Funeral Monuments, p. 413, by Strype, and in Trans. Lond. and Midd. iv. 301. According to Strype the original dated from the time of Edward IV. It was destroyed in the Great Fire. The story of the foundation of St. Peter's by Lucius appears, in Letter-Book I (Memorials, 651-3), in 1417, when it was decided that the Rector should have precedence among the City clergy, because his church was for four hundred years and more the Metropolitan See. On 'Archbishops of London' see Stubbs, Reg. Sacrum Anglicanum, pp. 214-5. The Lucius legend (which Stow describes at more length on ii. 125) first appears in the Liber Pontificalis not later than 700 A.D. Thence it found its way into general circulation through Nennius, and Bede's Ecclesiastical History. See art. by Prof. Haverfield ap. Eng. Hist. Rev. xi. 419. The church of St. Peter 'binnon Lunden' is mentioned in a charter of Bishop Ælfric about 1040 (Kemble, Cod. Dipl. dcclix).

l. 30. This Library. Leland in his Collectanea, iv. 48, has a note of four manuscripts 'in bibliotheca Petrina Londini'.

l. 39. four Grammar schooles. See Rot. Parl. v. 137, and note on William Lichfield on p. 321 below.

l. 13. A Brotherhooode of Saint Peter. For a register of the Fraternity of the Guild of St. Peter on Cornhill see Hist. MSS. Comm. 6th Rep. 407-18. The grant, on April 26, 1403, was to William Aghton, parson of St. Peter's, Richard Rybrede, John Bury, and Peter Mason; Askham and Brampton took part in the establishment of the Fraternity, but there is nothing to connect it with the Fishmongers. The Ordinances are printed in the Report, u.s. Mason died Dec. 20, 1412. Foxton founded his chantry in 1391. Richard Manhale (see i. 195, l. 6), who died in 1410, was another benefactor. See also Cal. Wills, ii. 286, 384, 397, 494, and C.P.R. Henry IV, ii. 260.

l. 20. Erlington. According to the inscription given by Strype 'Erlington', ob. Feb. 16, 1558.

l. 23. Alnothus. See Chron. Evesham, 75: 'Alnod, sacerdos, dedit ecclesiam beati Michaelis in Cornehalle London.' This was in 1055.

l. 34. Elizabeth Peake. The records of the Drapers' Company under date Aug. 14, 1518, note the burial 'this day of Mistress Elizabeth Peke, widow, from the Crane in the Vintre'; the Company lent their 'best beryall clothe' and 'every of the vj berers had a sylver spone for his labor' (London Past and Present, iii. 377).

198, l. 2. blemished by the building. In 1548 the Wardens of St. Michael's sold the Church plate, weighing 322 ounces, for 84*l.* 5*s.* 4*d.*, and with the proceeds bought ten chambers or dwellings in the Churchyard. The sale of vestments and ornaments in the two following years realized 151*l.* 5*s.* 7*d.*, and in 1551 there was a further sale of 660 oz. of plate for 222*l.* 17*s.* 10*d.* These sacrilegious gains were then spent in building the new houses in the Churchyard, of which Stow justly complains. The entry to the church from Cornhill was through one of the houses, and the use of back-doors and windows proved such a nuisance that in 1855, when new leases were granted, openings in the south wall were prohibited (Churchwardens' Accounts of St. Michael's, Cornhill, ed. Overall, pp. 69-70, 77-80, 90, 91, 98, 217-18, 231, 290).

l. 10. Bell named 'Rus'. In 1587 'Rus' was recast by Lawrence Wright at a total cost of 65*l.*,<sup>1</sup> to weigh 31 cwt. 56 lb. The bell soon wanted repairs, and did not give satisfaction. Next year it was decided that 'Rus' should be recast, though 'to stay tell somer come y<sup>e</sup> she may be conveniently cast'. A new founder, Mr. Motte, was employed, and the bell recast at the cost of 21*l.* 17*s.* 5*d.* There was also paid 3*l.* 2*s.* for copper for 'Rus', and 3*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.* for tin, besides smaller items such as a shilling 'for a company of musicions to take a noate of the same bell'. 'Rus' now weighed 34 cwt. 42 lb. Ten years later it was proposed to recast 'the great bell Rous', but agreed to 'let it rest a while and use it as it is'. Ultimately in 1600 Motte recast the bell again to weight 30 cwt. 108 lb.; after allowing for the old metal the cost was 11*l.* 2*s.* 2*d.*, 'and so we are content to make it up xij li. by reason he casted it so often.' An unsatisfactory bell seems to have been cast in 1599. As Stow hints, the fault was not entirely with the founders; in 1597 orders were given 'for the bells with fewer men to be rong' (Churchwardens' Accounts, 176-80, 245, 252-4). From the statement on pp. 244-5 above it will be seen that in 1598 'Rus' was broken, and 'therefore not rong as heretofore'. The charge for 'a knyll w<sup>t</sup> Rus' was 8*s.* (id. 178-9). On Robert Mot, the bell-founder of Whitechapel, see Stahlschmidt, Surrey Bells and London Bell-founders, 91-2.

l. 36. William Comerton. Probably identical with the William Combarton of vol. i. p. 228. Cf. Cal. Wills, ii. 385-6.

197, l. 24. Robert Fabian. He died on 28 February, 1513 (Inq. p. m. Lond. i. 29). The original draft in Harley MS. 538, f. 67<sup>vo</sup>, reads: 'Robart fabian, draper, one of the shryves and alderman of London in the year 1491 (sic). He wrote a chronicle of London, England, and of France, beginning at the creation and endynge in the third of Henry the 8, which both I have in written hand.' Dr. Busch has suggested that Stow must, by speaking of 'both', have intended to distinguish the 'Chronicle of London' and the 'Chronicles of England and France'. If so, the former may have been the lost work coming down to 1512, and omitting the extraneous portions of the original. It should, however, be noted that a line has been drawn through the word 'London' in the Harley MS. Fabyan styled his original work, which ends at 1485, The Concordance of Chronicles. Richard Pynson published it in 1516 as The new Chronicles of England and of France.

See further, Introduction, p. xxxv and notes on pp. 275, 280, 283, 303 and 365-6. See also the Introduction to my Chronicles of London, pp. xxviii-xxxi and Busch, England under the Tudors, i. 410.

l. 34. Richard Garnam, &c. The original draft in Harley MS. 538, f. 67<sup>vo</sup>, reads: 'Elizabeth Peke, widow, who gave the patronage or gyfte of benefice to the drapars of London, buried vnder a tombe of marble in the belfrey, 1518. Richard Garnam, Skynner, in the belfrey, 1527. Edmond Trindle, draper, and Robert Smythe, clothworker, my godfathers at the font. William dixson, draper, and Margaret his wyfe, which Margaret was my godmother. In the cloyster: Thomas Stowe my graundfather, and his wife my graundmother; Thomas Stowe my father and Elizabeth my mother.' See Introduction, pp. vii, xlvi, xlvii. The Churchwardens' Accounts (p. 146) have under 1559 the entry: 'Res. of M<sup>re</sup> Stowe for here husbandes grave in the Cloyster, ijs.'

198, l. 2. John Tolus. In 1548, Lodge, Heade and Bolde record the receipt of 6*l.* 10*s.* from 'M<sup>r</sup> Tolloz, Alderman', for half a year's rent. There is no record in the Churchwardens' Accounts of any charity of his, but in 1563 the Vestry ordered 'a certaine brasse pottle which was in the keping of the late Mr. Tolorge' to be demanded of his executor (pp. 231, 87).

l. 13. Philip Gunter. Gunter or Gunter, skinner, was elected Alderman of Portsoken Ward in 1569, but discharged at the request of the Earl of Leicester and Cecil, not 'only from serving the office of Alderman but also from that of sheriff and collector of any fifteenths or subsidies upon payment of £400.' He died on Feb. 15, 1583 (City Records, ap. Churchwardens' Accounts, p. 231). See also below.

ll. 38-9. Burcheouer lane . . . now corruptly called Birchin lane. The most usual form from 1260 and a century after was Bercherverelane, but it appears also as Bercheners lane and Berchnererelane (Cal. Wills, i. 7, 74, 286). Berchenes-lane occurs in 1301 (Mun. Gild. i. 242), and Berchen-lane in 1430 (Cal. Wills, ii. 489).

For drapers in Berchin Lane see Middleton, Blackbook (Works), viii. 29). 'Passing through Berchin Lane amid a camp-royal of hose and doublets.'

Rowlands, The Melancholie Knight, p. 21:

Come traveler from Turkey, Roome, or Spaine,

And take a sute of trust in Birchin Lane.

199, l. 29. one great house, &c. Philip Gunter at his death owned three tenements in Cornhill, in one of which 'commonly called the Sarazens Heade he dwelt, being on the west part of the Back Alley or approach of the tenement or wine tavern commonly called the Popes-head'. He lived here before 1538, and purchased the property of George Monox in 1553. (Inq. p. m. London, i. 52, iii. 58.) The tenement next 'le Popyshed' in Lombard Street was the property of Sir William Eastfield, mayor in 1436-7 (Anc. Deeds, A. 644, 12276). The Popes Head was bought by George Monox from Sir Henry Owen in 1517 (Letters and Papers, xv. 806). John Wolfe, who published the first edition of the Survey, had his shop in Pope's Head Alley.

200, l. 9. Langborne warde. Stow's 'long borne' is a myth based on the supposed meaning of the name. Mr. J. E. Price (Safe Deposit, 25) has shown that the levels alone make it impossible that such a stream should have existed. Like other wards Langbourn took its name from its chief street. Geoffrey the alderman of 'Langebord' occurs in the twelfth century (Anc. Deeds, A. 5853). St. Edmond in 'Longbord strete' is mentioned in a document of the fourteenth century, which may, however, have followed one of the twelfth century (Lansdowne MS. 448, f. 8). In 1252 some property opposite to the cemetery of St. Mary de Neucherch (Woolchurch) is described as lying between the street running to 'Longebrod' on the north and a lane on the south (Cal. Charter Rolls, i. 407). In 1285 and 1312 the street is called 'Langburne-strate' (Cal. Wills, i. 74, 226). The ward appears as 'Langeford' about 1285, but 'Langeburn' in 1293 (id. i. 702-3). The name 'Lombard Street' first appears in 1318, when a tenement there was granted to the merchants of the society of the Bardi at Florence (C.P.R. Edw. II, iii. 246) as described by Stow in vol. i. p. 201. Lombards or Langeberdes were resident in London in the twelfth century; Meinbod and his son Picot the Lombard are mentioned in documents at St. Paul's (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 67). 'Lombard' was used at an early date as a generic name for bankers or money-dealers.

l. 14. Share borne lane. Like the 'Lang borne', the 'Share borne' rests solely on Stow's conjectural etymology. The name first occurs in 1272 as 'Shitteborwelane', and so continues for two centuries with variations like 'Schiteboroulane', and 'Shiteburgh lane' (Watney, Account of St. Thomas Acon, 289; Cal. Wills, i. 13, 162, 171, 220). 'Shirborue-jane' appears in 1467, and 'Sherborne Lane' in 1556 (id. ii. 586, 666). See also vol. i. p. 14 above.

l. 21. for suspicion of theeves. See note on pp. 290-1.

l. 24. Fenne-church. The derivation is obscure. There cannot well have been any fen here, though the statement in Lansdowne MS. 448 f. 11 that the 'Ecclesia de Fancherche' had belonged to the Knighten-guild may conceivably suggest some connexion with the Fen or Moor outside the city. There may, on the other hand, have been a hay-market (faenum) here, as well as near Allhallows ad Faenum in Dowgate. The form Fanchurch is common both in early deeds and in the sixteenth century. See also N. and Q. 8th ser. xii. 201, and 10th ser. iii. 181.

ll. 29-31. John Darby . . . buried about the yeare 1466. In his will, dated 17 Feb. 1478, and enrolled in Oct. 1480, he directed that he should be buried in the Chapel of St. John at St. Dionis, lately built by him, and bequeathed his hostel 'le Belle and le Chekyr on the hoop' in Fenchurch St. for the endowment of chantries there. (Cal. Wills, ii. 580; cf. ii. 195 above.) There is a note of him sub anno 1468, in Fabyan's Chronicle.

202, l. 7. Alhallowes Grasse church. Brithmer, a citizen, gave it as All Hallowes 'Gerscherche' to Christchurch, Canterbury, in 1054 (Mon. Angl. i. 97). It is called All Hallows 'Graschurch' in the Trinity Cartulary in 1251 (Guildhall MS. 122, f. 257). Harley MS. 538 reads: 'The register bokes and monuments sometyme belonging to the late dissolved priory of the Holy Trinity within Aldgate so calleth it, bycause the Grasse market went downe that way, and was there kepte, but the strete was then broder.'

l. 27. the George. It is clearly identical with 'our great hospice in Lombard Street', which Edward III granted to St. Stephen's, Westminster, on 6 Aug. 1348 (Mon. Angl. vi. 1350, compare Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 56 a, and Anc. Deeds, A. 13428). In 1402 the Greek ambassadors were entertained at the sign of St. George in Lombard St. (Q. R. Wardrobe Accounts—ap. Wylie, Henry IV, iv. 203). 'The George' Inn is several times mentioned in the Paston Letters between 1472 and 1505 (viz. v. 144, vi. 11, 172). For the inn in 1596 see Inq. p. m. Lond. iii. 238. For Earl Ferrers see i. 100 and note on p. 283 above; 'Lombard Street' is not mentioned either in the Gesta Henrici or by Hoveden. William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby (d. 1249), had his house in St. Lawrence Jewry Lane (Cal. Charter Rolls, ii. 38).

203, l. 10. one other. For the house of Sir Michael de la Pole in Lombard Street in 1364 see Anc. Deeds, D. 411.

l. 36. Stane Church. The name is explained by a reference to 'parochia de Stanenetha' (stone-hithe) at London in 1194. (Cartularium de Colchester, 298. Roxburgh Club.) 'Stonwarf' in All Hallows, Barking, occurs in 1304 (Cal. Wills, i. 163). See also note on 'Cradocks lane' below.

204, l. 3. John Costin, Girdler . . . 1244. No doubt an error for John Costyn, girdler, who by will made in 1442 and proved in 1447 left property charged with religious and charitable uses for the poor of All Hallows Stane Church (Cal. Wills, ii. 513).

l. 9. Stiward. The list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 30, reads 'Steward'.

l. 17. the Writhsleys, &c. The list of burials at St. Giles was revised accordingly. See i. 299-300 and ii. 245, 253 above. Another correction as to the burial-place of a Writhsley appears on ii. 39, see p. 260 above.

l. 20. Cradocks lane. In a deed of Stephen (1170-87), prior of Trinity, there is reference to 'Stanenchirche in Cradocheslane' (Anc. Deeds, A. 2406).

l. 24. Saint Nicholas Acon, or Hacon. The church of St. Nicholas was given by Godwyn to Malmesbury Abbey in 1083; in a later deed, about 1190, it is called 'St. Nicholas Achim'—probably an error for 'Achun' (Reg. Malmesburiense, i. 5, ii. 12). St. Nicholas 'Hacun' occurs in 1246 (Cal. Charter Rolls, i. 309) and St. Nicholas 'Acun' in 1280 (Cal. Wills, i. 43). Possibly the name is due to some person like Haco the Alderman of 1130 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 63, 66). Hacun was a not uncommon London surname in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries—see Anc. Deeds, A. 1070, 1075, 1078.

l. 27. Francis Boyer: . . . 1580. Munday (p. 233) gives the date from his tomb as 14 June, 1581.

l. 31. Saint Marie Woolnoth, &c. Probably, as suggested by Mr. J. H. Round (Athenaeum, 31 March, 1888), the name was due to some person called Wulfnoth. Perhaps to the Wulfnoth de Walebroc of 1114–33 (Chron. Ramsey, p. 248; Cartulary of Ramsey, i. 139). Mr. Round has noted the form 'Wlnot maricherche' in 1191; 'Wollenothe Maricherche' (Cotton MS., Faust., B. II, f. 71<sup>vo</sup>) and 'St. Mary Wulnothe Mariecherche' (Anc. Deeds, A. 2461) occur not much later. See also note on p. 317 below.

205, l. 5. Cardinals Hat. This tavern was demised by Simon Eyre on trust for the purpose stated, to Hugh Brice, who at his death bequeathed it with other property for pious uses in St. Mary Woolnoth (Cal. Wills, ii. 600, Brice's will dated 17 September, 1492, enrolled 25 Jan. 1498). 'Le Cardinals hat' is mentioned in 1364 (id. ii. 88).

l. 11. John Moager. Called 'Megre' in his will, dated 6 Aug. 1429, and proved 7 July, 1420. Apparently he was a Cornishman (Cal. Wills, ii. 422).

l. 12. Perciuall . . . about 1504. He died 19 April, 1503 (Inq. p. m. London, i. 21).

l. 19. Sir Martin Bowes, Maior, buried about 1569. His will, dated 10 August, 1565, was proved in the prerogative Court of Canterbury 21 Jan. 1564. Another will was dated 29 July, 1566 (Cal. Wills, ii. 694–6, 728–9). The inscription on his tomb gave the date of his death as 4 August, 1566 (Survey, ed. 1633, p. 224).

207, l. 11. this Epitaph. In Harley MS. 538 the full epitaph is given, ending:

Unto this citie in givinge so liberally
Greate substaunce of livelode, wherfore now agre
To pray unto God that reynethe eternally
His soule to embrace and take to his mercy.
He died in October the xxij
Of the reigne of the noble sixt Herry.

l. 22, he gaue landes, &c. The will of John Raynwell, dated 18 September, 1443, is recited at length in a deed of 2 May, 1466, printed in the Report on Foedera, Appendix C, pp. 22–7. See also Cal. Wills, ii. 576-7. In connexion with his bequest for the relief of fifteenths the following note from the London Memoranda for 1539, ap. Harley MS. 530, f. 119, is of interest:—

'Memorandum. That M. Wyllm. Forman, y<sup>t</sup> tyme beyng maior of London, at y<sup>e</sup> Counsell of the Chamberleyn and of the Alderman of the Warde of Dowgate, whyche he was y<sup>t</sup> tyme allderman of, hys name ys M. Cottys, and they concluded y<sup>t</sup> the seyde ward schuld pay for a nede dude (sic) whyche was left one-payd in y<sup>e</sup> bookys of the Exchekar many yeres afore, the some of viij li. st., the whyche they wolde haue made thys warde of Dowgate for to haue pd. hyt. And they of y<sup>e</sup> seyde ward seyde playnly they wolde pay none, in so moche y<sup>t</sup> the meare commaundyng sertyn of them to y<sup>e</sup> tower, and ther they ware a day and a nyght. They made aunswer y<sup>t</sup> they wolde styke to y<sup>e</sup> will of Master Raynwell, for y<sup>t</sup> ys hys wyll y<sup>t</sup> the warde of dowgat shall pay none money for no fyveten exsep ther be above iij fyvetens in one yere, and so by y<sup>e</sup> help of god they [paid] none. Deo gracias.'

Alderman Cottys was, I suppose, John Cotes, who was mayor in 1542-3. 208, l. 27. so called of a Bosse. In Samuel Rowlands' Humors Looking Glasse, p. 29, the country fool goes to see:

The Bosse at Billingsgate, and Londonstone,
And at Whitehall the monstrous great Whales bone.

l. 39. as Robert Fabian writeth. This, again, comes from the MS. The printed Continuation (p. 685) is bald. In the Vitellius Chronicle the notice is rather briefer than that quoted by Stow, but is clearly from the same source (Chron. London, p. 209). Richard de Hakeneye died in 1342, and his wife Alice in 1349 (Cal. Wills, i. 467, 625). For expenses 'for the obyt and setting uppe of the tombe, and buryenge of Richard Hackney and Alys his wyff' in March, 1496-7, see Nichols, Illustrations of Manners and Expences of Antient Times, p. 88. (Extracts from the Churchwardens' accounts of St. Mary Hill.)

l. 20. Queenes shippes. This is the reading of Harley MS. 538, and is clearly right. Holstocke was comptroller for many years under Elizabeth, see Cal. State Papers, 1581-90, and Stow's Annales, 1121, 1141, ed. 1605.

l. 23. S. Margaret Pattens. Stow's derivation seems to be purely conjectural: if there were ever any patten-makers here, they were clean worn out in his time (vol. i. p. 81). St. Margaret Patynz occurs in the time of King John (Mon. Angl. vi. 624), St. Margaret de Patins in 1272, and del Patynes in 1291 (Cal. Wills, i. 20, 96). In the list of 1303 it is S. Margaret Patynes. It is doubtful how far pattens were in common use so early: Ducange has a quotation of 'patina' in 1256, but the first notice of patten-makers in London seems to be in 1379 (Letter-Book H, 135). The name might be due to a benefactor, as in so many other cases: Ranulph and Robert Patin are mentioned in twelfth-century deeds at St. Paul's (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 62, 63). See also N. and Q. 9th ser. xii. 170, 253.

210, ll. 7-9. Roape Lane . . . Loue Lane. It occurs as 'Love Lane formerly called Roppelane' in 1393, and as 'Roperelane now Love Lane' in 1455. In 1428 there is reference to 'le Stuehous' in Love-lane, in St. Mary Hill parish (Cal. Wills, ii. 311, 464, 536). The last instance indicates that in this case, as in that of Love Lane, Cripplegate, the name was due to wantons (cf. i. 296, above). I have not found 'Lucas-lane'; but Walter Lucas, baker, of St. Botolph Lane occurs in 1310 (Letter-Book B, 230). See also N. and Q. 10th ser. v. 302.

l. 22. Marpor. In Harley MS. 538, his Christian name, Nicholas, is given.

l. 29. Southuckenton, i. e. South Ockendon in Essex.

l. 37. Rother Lane, or Red Rose Lane. 'Rederesgate' is mentioned on a deed of Prior Norman (d. 1147) of Trinity (Anc. Deeds, A. 7309). Later instances are the lane called 'Rederisgate' in 1279, 'Rede Rose lane' in 1318, 'Retheresgates lane' in 1322, 'Puddying lane otherwise Retherlane' in 1372 (Cal. Wills, i. 44, 278, 299, ii. 153). 'Finches Lane' called Pudding Lane in 1398 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 255). 'Fynkes lane now called Puddying lane' in 1449 (Anc. Deeds, A. 1723); cf. Cal. Wills, ii. 535). 'Retherhethe Lane alias Podding Lane' in 1553 (Inq. p. m. Lond. ii. 51). Simon Puddyinglane, a baker, occurs in 1375 (Mun. Gild. III. 423).

211, l. 25. Mercers and Haberdashers. For a list of tenants on the bridge in 1633, see Gent. Mag. Library, xv. 308-9. They were chiefly Haberdashers, with some Mercers and Silkmen.

212, l. 5. Henry Yeuale Freemason. In his will, dated 25 May, and enrolled 28 October, 1400, he is described as 'mason, citizen and freeman of London' (Cal. Wills, ii. 346). For accounts of Yevale or Yevely, the greatest English architect of his day, see Trans. Lond. and Midd. ii. 259-66, Dict. Nat. Biog. lxiii. 321, and Lethaby, Westminster Abbey.

l. 7. William Brampton, stockfishmonger, February 1407 (Cal. Wills, ii. 368-9).

l. 12. Robert Blanch. Robert Braunche in his will; he died June 4, 1567 (Inq. p. m. Lond. ii. 64). Harley MS. 538, f. 70<sup>vo</sup>, reads: 'Robert, Braunche, 1567, with this epitaph following:

As nature yelds vs birth and lyf, so death draws on by kynde:

By deathe ageyne through faythe in Christ eternall lyfe we fynde.

A profe behold by me that ded enioy my mortal breathe

Full 50 yeres and 8 therto, and then gave place to deathe.

Of the company of girdelars fre I was, and Robert Braunch by name;

I was lyke yow and now am erthe, and you shall be the same.

Six children now supply my place, my soule is in the skye;

God send to them and the good life, and eke in Christ to dye.'

l. 13. John Couper, &c. Stow corrects an error of his first edition (see p. 246 above). In Harley MS. 538, f. 71<sup>vo</sup>, he wrote: 'Also Iohn

Cowper, fishmonger, one of the shrives of London in the year of Christ 1551, was put by his tyme of maioraltie upon some private displeasure of his brethren, the aldermen, deceased 1584, and was there buried. Sir William Garrard, haberdasher, maior of London in the year of Christ 1555, deceased 1571, in the parishe of Seint Christofer by the Stok Market, but was buried in this parishe church of Seint Magnus, because he was borne in that parishe, and there baltized.'

l. 27. William Melker. Presumably the William Melker of Eastcheap, whose will was proved in 1273 (Cal. Wills, i. 15).

l. 31. Walter Dogget. Styrpe gives the epitaph of Walter Dogget, vintner, ob. July 19, 1480, and of Alice his wife. Walter Dogget, the sheriff of 1380, by his will enrolled January 25, 1388, founded a chantry here for himself and his wife, another Alice (Cal. Wills, ii. 263-4). Walter's son John, whose wife was also called Alice, died and was buried here in 1403 (id. ii. 354).

l. 16. Fishmongers were greatly troubled. These troubles were a part of the conflict between the victualling and clothing guilds, round which civic history centred during the reign of Richard II. The victualling guilds, whose leader was Nicholas Brembre, supported the King and Court party, whilst the clothing guilds headed by John Northampton sided with the opposition. See Dr. Sharpe's Introduction to Letter-Book H. The fishmonger referred to in l. 24 was Walter Sibyle. See also references on p. 393 below.

215, l. 29. that he slue Jacke Straw. The London Chronicles (e.g. Nicolas, 73-4, and Gregory's Chronicle, p. 91) state that Jack Straw was the leader of the rebels in London, and was killed by Walworth. This is also the account of Adam of Usk (Chron. pp. 1-2) and Hardyng (p. 339). The continuation of Knighton (ii. 137) states definitely that Jack Straw was only a nickname for Wat Tyler. It is possible that neither of the names was genuine, but they certainly represent two distinct persons; this is shown clearly in the Rolls of Parliament and in the Chronicon Angliae, 308-9. (See also Anom. Chron. 519-20; Walsingham, Hist. Angl. ii. 9-14.) The man who passed by the name of Jack Straw was arrested and tried, as Stow states, some days after the killing of Wat Tyler. See Professor Oman's Great Revolt of 1381, pp. 44-5. Dr. F. W. Brie has, however, maintained in Eng. Hist. Rev. xxi that Straw and Tyler were really the same person.

216, l. 30. Eastcheape . . . a flesh Market of Butchers. So Ben Jonson in Every Man out of his Humour, Act II, sc. i: 'Well, an e'er I meet him in the City, I'll have him jointed; I'll pawn him in Eastcheap among the butchers else.'

217, l. 4. the kings sonnes . . . being in Eastcheape. This narrative probably comes from one of the London Chronicles, but none of the extant copies are so full (see Chron. Lond. 341). The Vitellius Chronicle (id. 268) adds that as a consequence 'it was ordeyned that neither Tavern ne Cook shuld hold open their hous no more after ix of the klok'. (Probably in allusion to the regulation made in 1412 as to closing cook-shops on St. John's Eve, ap. Memorials, 581.) The incident helped to give rise to the legends of Henry V's riotous youth, and in that connexion Stow's note of the intervention of Chief Justice Gascoyne and the King's pardon is interesting.

l. 25. he speaketh of no silks. This is an oversight. Lydgate writes:

Then to the Cheap I began me drawne,
Where much people I saw for to stande:
One offered me velvet, sylke, and lawne.

For London Lickpenny see Lydgate's Minor Poems (Percy Soc.) and Nicolas, London Chron. 260 sqq.

ll. 36, 37. Candlewright . . . or Candlewicke streete. It appears as 'Candelwrich strete' in 1180-7 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. App. 16 b), 'Candelwiccestrate' in 1259, 'Candelwrihttestrate' in 1272 (Cal. Wills, i. 4, 14). Later it was called Candelwyke Street, and this was corrupted to Canwick Street, and ultimately to Cannon Street. The transition of the name is shown in Nobody and Somebody: 'If my breeches had as much cloth in them as ever was drawne betwixt Kendal and Canning Street' (Simpson, School of Shakespeare, i. 292). Long before Edward III's time it was occupied by workers of cloth, and especially by 'burellers', or makers of the coarse stuff called 'burel'. In 1279 there is note of a 'bureller of Candlewystrate' (Cal. Wills, i. 39; and see numerous instances in the Mercers Cartulary, ap. Watney, Hospital of St. Thomas of Acon, 286-8). In 1335 the burellers of Candelwykstrete were in controversy with the Weavers (Letter-Book E, 291, 297). Cloth of Candelwykstrate is mentioned in 1322 and 1372 (id. 172; Cal. Wills, ii. 145), and Lydgate, in London Lickpenny, writes:—

Throughout all Canwyke Street
Drapers much cloth offered me anon.

But there were also Wax-chandlers in Candlewick Street from an early date. In 1311 mention occurs of 'John le Cierger de Kandelwikstrate', and chaundelers of Candelwykstrete in 1305 and 1326 (Letter-Books B, 163, D, 137, E, 210). In 1371 Thomas de Weston, chandler, refers in his will to a tenement in St. Swithin's, which he had bought of Robert de Hatfield, bureller; and wax-chandlers of Candelwykstrete occur in 1402 (Cal. Wills, ii. 141, 353).

For protection granted to foreign clothworkers in 1344 see Letter-Book F, 111; and Foedera, iii. 23.

218, l. 30. saint Marie Abchurch, Apechurch or Upchurch. 'Robert the priest of Habechirce' occurs in a deed of the twelfth century (Anc. Deeds, A. 7821). Abchurch, which occurs as 'Abbechurche' in 1211 (id. A. 1449) is the normal form, but 'Apecherche lane' occurs in 1327, and 'Apecherche' in 1369 (Cal. Wills, i. 328, ii. 121). Riley says that Upchurch is found in early documents, citing Mun. Gild. I. 100—date 1240, where, however, Upchurch near Chatham is clearly intended.

For the chantries of Winchcomb and Littleton (d. 1457) see Cal. Wills, ii. 340, 532.

219, l. 7. the leaden porch. 'Le Leden Porche' in Crooked Lane occurs in 1398-9 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 255). Afterwards it was held by William Philip, Lord Bardolf, for life, and on June 11, 1441, was granted to John Merston, who still held it in 1461 (C. P. R. Henry VI, iii. 544; Edw. IV, i. 43). In 1485 it was granted to Thomas Freeman on the attainder of John, Duke of Norfolk (Campbell, Mat. Hist. Henry VII, ii. 319, 449). Taylor the Water-poet, writing in 1636 (Travels through London), mentions four houses that sell Rhenish wine and are inhabited by Dutchmen only, viz. 'The Stilliard, the Swan in Thames Street, The Swan in Crooked Lane, and The Sun at St. Mary Hill.'

l. 23. tombe of Loueken was removed. No doubt one of those defaced by bad people in the reign of Edward VI (vol. i. p. 220). The brass plate was taken away, and used for another tomb at Walkerne in Hertfordshire, where the original inscription was discovered on the hidden side in 1870. The Fishmongers had restored Loueken's and Walworth's tombs in 1562. The name is sometimes spelt Lofkin, but is Lovekyn on the brass and in his will (Cal. Wills, ii. 117). See notice by J. G. Nichols, ap. Trans. London and Middlesex, iii. 133-7, and also vi. 341-70. For list of monuments at St. Michael's (similar to that on pp. 221-2) see Harley MS. 6069, f. 29.

l. 31. arrested Wat Tyler. Stow's account is based on Knighton, ii. 138, Chron. Angliae, 297, and Anom. Chron. 519-20. The squire's true name was Ralph Standish; 'John Cavendish' or 'Candish' is an error, which appears also in the Annales, p. 463, ed. 1605. The knighting of Walworth is taken almost word for word from Anom. Chron., where, however, a blank is left for the third name. The City record (Memorials, 451) shows that Stow is correct in naming Sir Robert Launde.

221, l. 32. Crosse and sworde of Saint Paul. Stow is right. See the description of The Banner of St. Paul (on i. 63 above), which was the ancient banner of the City. Stow translates from the record in Letter-Book H. See Memorials, 447. The fable of Walworth's dagger got currency in Holinshed's Chronicles, ii. 747.

l. 37. John Radwell. Richard in his will (Cal. Wills, ii. 411).

222, l. 16. Sir John Brudge. In Harley MS. 538, 'maior of London 1520, deceased 1530.'

l. 32. Beachamps Inne. Reference to the tenement of Robert Beauchamp in St. Martin Orgar occurs in 1361 (Letter-Book G, 133).

l. 35. saint Martin Orgar. The name may be due to Orgar the deacon, who granted the church to St. Paul's in the twelfth century (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 63).

223, l. 18. Alderman Beswicke. William Beswicke, d. May 5, 1567 (Inq. p. m. Lond. ii. 102).

l. 32. Licence . . . to new build. In 1408 Richard Thorpe, the parson, had licence for alienation in mortmain of a plot of land for the enlargement of St. Swithin's and making of a new belfry (C. P. R. Henry IV, iii. 414).

224, l. 6. Chaunteries. Thomas Aylesby (circa 1470), William Neve (d. 1392), and Matilda Caxton (d. 1342) (Cal. Wills, i. 458, ii. 295, 584).

l. 9. William White. In Harley MS. 538, 'sheriff 1482, alderman, was there buried about 1500.'

l. 12. prior of Tortington. In Feb., 1286, Sir Robert Aguylon bequeathed his mansion, with courtyard and garden, in the parish of St. Swithin, to the prior of Tortington (Cal. Wills, i. 75). Robert had inherited it from his mother Joan, grand-daughter of Henry Fitz-Alwin, the first mayor, who lived here, and is in consequence called 'Henricus filius Eylwini de Londene-stane' (Lib. de Ant. Legg. i, and Preface, pp. ix-xi, lxxiv-vi). In 1490 Henry Eburton, draper, left some adjoining tenements, called 'Draper's Halle', formerly belonging to Robert Auguylem, to his company (Cal. Wills, ii. 601). The Aguylons had land at Edburton in Sussex.

The above probably explains the statement made by Munday (Survey, 247, ed. 1633) under St. Mary Boathaw: 'The most memorable monument of all other there was that of Sir Henry Fitz-Alwine, Draper, the first Lord Mayor of London that ever was, and continued (by several elections) in the Maioraltie above 24 yeeres. His dwelling-house remaineth yet in the Parish, divided now into two or three houses. His Monument can be proved to be in that Church, as his Armes on the glasse windows and Gravestones doe sufficiently shew. Besides those houses were his gift to the Drapers, and they pay a quit-rent in his name yeerely for ever. All which are sufficient to testify that he was not buried in the Priorie of the holy Trinity within Ealdgate (now called the Dukes Place) as formerly hath been avowched by Mr. Stowe.'

Strype observed sagaciously: 'All this is not evidence enough against Stow's own eyes.' It is finally disposed of by the Trinity Cartulary (Guildhall MS. 122, ff. 337-8), where against the record of a quit-rent of 5s. on lands in St. Mary Boathaw, given by Henry Fitz-Alwin for the commemoration of his obit, is set the note: 'Iste Henricus, Maior primus London., obiit xiiij Kal. Octobris [19 Sept.] et sepultus est infra introitum capituli in medio sub lamina<sup>1</sup> marmorea.' Henry died in 1212; his lands were taken into the king's hands by a writ dated 5 Oct. of that year (Rot. Pat. 14 John). There is nothing to connect him with the Drapers. Stow calls him a goldsmith (i. 306), perhaps from the belief that his father was Alwine, son of Leofstanus the goldsmith (i. 122). In a deed of 1196 he is called 'Henry son of Ailwin, son of Leofstan, mayor of London', and in a deed of Henry II's time he is described as 'one of the nobles of the city' (Anc. Deeds, A. 2103, A. 2507). This supports Dr. Stubbs' suggestion that he was an hereditary baron of London (Const. Hist. i. 674). Henry the Alderman, son of Ailwin, occurs in 1177 (Anc. Deeds, A. 7295).

The prior of Tortington's house in Candlewick Street was granted to John de Vere (d. 1540), fifteenth Earl of Oxford, on June 8, 1539 (Letters and Papers, xiv. 1192 (8)). John (d. 1562), sixteenth earl, kept great state here (see i. 89 above). Edward, seventeenth earl, moved to Fisher's Folly (see p. 298). Anne, daughter of Sir John Hart (d. 1603), married Humphrey Smith, Alderman, who was living at Oxford Place in 1633 (Survey, p. 243, ed. 1633). In 1641 the Salters' Company purchased 'the great house called London Stone or Oxford House' of Captain George Smith. This fixes the house of Henry Fitz-Alwin on the site of Salters Hall. See Lethaby, London before the Conquest, 177-9.

l. 18. Edmond Dudley. For Dudley's house in the parish of St. Swithin, beside London Stone, see Letters and Papers, i. 425, 4231.

l. 24. London stone. Camden first suggested that it was 'a miliary like that in the Forum of Rome'. Wren (Parentalia, 265) at the time of the Great Fire formed the opinion, based on the discovery of extensive Roman remains, that 'by reason of the large foundation, it was rather some more considerable monument in the Forum'. The position 'neare vnto the channel' described by Stow would have been in the middle of the street. In 1742 it was removed to the kerb against the buildings on the north, and in 1798, being then reduced to a mere stump, was built into a niche in the wall of St. Swithin's Church. For the history of London Stone and theories as to its origin and significance see Lethaby u.s. pp. 179-84; J. E. Price, Roman Pavement in Bucklersbury, 55-65; and Gomme, Governance of London. In Stow's time London Stone was one of the countryman's sights in the capital; see p. 310.

225, l. 10. Font in Poules Church. James Pilkington, bishop of Durham, denouncing the abuses of St. Paul's, wrote thus in 1561 (ap. Works, p. 210): 'The south alley for Popery and usury, the north for simony, and the horse fair in the midst for all kinds of bargains, meetings, brawlings, murders, conspiracies, and the font for ordinary payment of money, as well known to all men as the beggar knows his bush.' For a payment to be made at St. Paul's in 1362 see Anc. Deeds, A. 5869; one recognized place was 'the Rode' by the north door (id. C. 913); for a payment at the Font in 1537 (id. A. 693).

l. 11. now . . . at the Royall Exchange. See agreement in 1571 for an annuity to be payable 'at the Tendring House within the Ryall Exchange' (Anc. Deeds, A. 13489), and in 1597 for a payment to be made 'att or in the Telling howse usuallie appointed for receiptes and paimentes' (id. A. 13297).

l. 30. tooke name of these Stockes. In 1282 Henry le Waleis built 'domos apud Wolchirchehawe, quae vocantur Hales, anglice Stockes' (Ann. Lond. 90). This fixes the identity of the house called 'le Hales' which is recorded in the Liber Custumarum to have been given by Wales for the support of the Bridge (Mun. Gild. II. i. 95; Letter-Book B, 217).

226, l. 5. This Stockes market, &c. Fabyan (p. 575) mentions only that it was begun. But see Nicolas, London Chronicle, p. 93, sub anno 1410: 'Also in this yere the stokkes between the Cornhull and the Pultrye was begone to make, and in the yere next folwng it was ful complet and made.' The 'Stocks market' was on the site of the present Mansion House.

l. 18. St. Mary Wool church. An alleged charter of William I professed to confirm the gift to Westminster Abbey of St. Mary 'Newcirke' by Alward 'cognomento Grossus' (Cotton Charter, vi. 3; it is a forgery, probably of the reign of Henry I). However, about 1104, Eudo 'dapifer' gave to Colchester Abbey, with the assent of Ailward Grossus the priest, the church of St. Mary 'de Westcheping, quae vocatur Niewechirche', which his father Hubert de Rie had bestowed on Ailward (Cart. de Colchester, 3-15, Roxburghe Club: cf. i. 253-4 above). The possession of the church by Colchester was disputed by the monks of Westminster (see Eng. Hist. Review, xvi. 726-8). As 'Newchurch' it was commonly known till about 1300, and even in 1410 it is described as 'St. Mary Niewechirche otherwise Wolchirchehawe' (Anc. Deeds, A. 1958, B. 2110, 2112; Mun. Gild. II. i. 236). But it appears as St. Mary of 'Wollecurchehawe' in 1260 (Cal. Charter Rolls, ii. 33); and the market at Wollecurchehawe is mentioned in 1268 (Madox, Hist. Exchequer, i. 779). Mr. J. H. Round (Athenaeum, 17 Aug. 1889), on the strength of the form 'Wlnotmaricherche', and the analogous 'Wolmaricherche', which occurs in 1281, has argued that 'Woolchurch-haw' is a corruption of 'Wulnothmaricherch-haw', or the churchyard belonging to St. Mary Wolnoth (assuming that this was the mother-church of St. Mary Newchurch). This, however, is conjectural, and Stow may after all be right as to the derivation. Walbrook was a centre of the wool-trade in the latter half of the thirteenth century, when the name 'Woolchurch' first appears, and William de Wolcherchhawe was interested in that trade in 1293 (see note on p. 324 below). The sale of wool at St. Mary Woolchurch was regulated by La Custome de Wollchirchawe about 1300 (Mun. Gild. I. 246, from the Liber Horne).

227, l. 13. fayre Church of Saint Stephen. See history of the Church in Trans. London and Middlesex, v. 327-402. The documents there quoted show that Stow's account was accurately taken from the old church book written in the time of Edward IV. Henry Chichele was rector of St. Stephen's 1396-7. The patronage was given to Colchester Abbey by Eudo about 1100 (Cart. Colchester, p. 3).

228, l. 13. Sir Richard Baker. The uncle of the historian. He died in 1594. Thomas Gore, grocer, left his two messuages in Gracechurch Street and Lombard Street to the Grocers by will dated 11 July, 1586 (Cal. Wills, ii. 723).

l. 21. a street so called of Buckle. More accurately of the great city family of the Bukerels or Buckerells. A deed of 1270 shows that Thomas Buckerel had lately held property in Bukerelesbury (Watney, Hospital of St. Thomas of Acon, p. 262). The name occurs again as 'Bokerelesberi' in 1277, as 'Bokeleresbury' in 1376 and 1449, and as 'Boclersbury' in 1496 (Cal. Wills, i. 29, ii. 522, 599). See also notes on pp. 329-30.

229, l. 7. S. Mary Bothaw. Peter the priest gave his church of St. Mary Bothage to Christchurch, Canterbury, about 1150 (Litterae Cantuarienses, iii. 357).

l. 15. Armes in the Windowes. Munday identified some of them with the supposed arms of Henry Fitz-Ailwin, whom he alleged to have been buried here. See note on p. 315.

230, l. 20. Copped hall. It is mentioned in 1285; in 1292 Roger de Dreyton left his houses called 'La Coppedhalle' in the parish of St. John Walbrook, to be sold for the poor (Cal. Wills, i. 71, 106). For Ralph Cobham see Cal. Inq. p. m. ii. 328.

231, l. 26. the Erber. John de Hatfield, pepperer, dated his will on 12 August, 1368, at his house near lerber (Cal. Wills, ii. 122). His widow, Elena, in 1373 transferred to William, Lord Latimer, 'totum tenementum meum in London vocat.' le Erber'. Latimer's son-in-law, John Neville, of Raby, held it in 1384 (deeds in Husting Rolls, 101 (174), 106 (34), 112 (126), 117 (131); see also Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 31). There was a Common-beam at the house called 'la Herber' in Walbrook in 1398 (Letter-Book H, 385). The Erber came into the possession of Geoffrey Scrope's grand-nephew William, Earl of Wiltshire, at whose forfeiture in December, 1399, it was granted to John Neville's son Ralph, Earl of Westmorland (C. P. R. Henry IV, i. 149). Ralph's son Richard, Earl of Salisbury, was lodged there in 1458 (Chron. Lond. 168). It came to George, Duke of Clarence, as part of his share of the Neville inheritance (C. P. R. Edw. IV, ii. 346, 457, 488). On his execution it fell to the crown, and on 22 July, 1486, was granted to John de Vere, thirteenth Earl of Oxford, who held it till 1513 (Campbell, Materials Hist. Henry VII, i. 11, 527; Letters and Papers, i. 1774). It was then restored to Clarence's daughter Margaret Pole, Countess of Salisbury, who lived there till her execution in 1541 (id. ii. 1563; xvi. p. 459). In consequence it was sometimes called Salisbury Place.

l. 35. Bush lane, &c. Carter Lane and the Chequer are both named in 1541 (Letters and Papers, xvi. 459).

232, l. 4. Granthams lane. In 1343 it was reported that Grantham had blocked it with two great stones and two iron bars (Mun. Gild. II. ii. 449). It is now called Brewers Lane. For Dodmer see Anc. Deeds, A. 12629.

l. 17. Lambards messuage. As belonging to John Lambard, father of William Lambard, the Kentish antiquary (Inq. p. m. Lond. i. 134).

l. 21. the Steleyard. In the edition of 1598 Stow wrote, 'Stelehouse or Steleyard,' preserving the old alternative, which in his time had gone out of use. The origin and meaning of the name have been so much discussed that it will be well to give its history.

The merchants of Cologne had their house in London as early as 1157. This was probably identical with the Gilda Aula or Gildehalda Teutonicorum, which is the regular description of the house of the Hanse merchants in early deeds (see note on p. 278). The Gildehalda Teutonicorum, at the corner of Cosin Lane and Thames Street, was distinct from the original Stalhof or Steelyard proper, which was on the east of Windgoose Lane (Lappenberg, Urkundliche Geschichte des Hansischen Stalhofes, II. 96, 142). But though the Hanse did not come into possession of the Steelyard till 1475, they were in occupation of it before 1320, when their earliest extant ordinance refers specifically to the booths and chambers in the Stalhof (id. I. 24, II. 119). The earliest instance of the name 'Steelyard' which I have found is in 1382, 'quedam terre et redditus apud le Steelyerde' (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 71). In 1384 there is a reference to 'Styleyerd Lane' (C. P. R. Rich. II, ii. 516). In a bond executed by Sir Stephen Scroop at Dantzic in 1394 there is reference to the 'Curia Calibis' in London (Hansisches Urkundenbuch, v. 151, ed. Hohlbaum). During the early part of the fifteenth century I have no note of English references to the Steelyard, but in the Statutes of the London Hanse there is an order as to the closing of the door leading to the 'Stalhof' in 1410, and as to chambers therein in 1460 (Lappenberg, II. 120). Under their agreement with Edward IV the Hanse obtained possession of tenements between the old Gilda Aula and Windgoose Lane, and also of the 'Stilehof' otherwise called the 'Styleyerd' (id. II. 142-3, Act of 1475; and in other deeds 'le Stolehof' alias 'le Styleyerd' id. II. 138-9). Up to this time the house of the Hanse had been called in English 'Easterlings Hall'; now Styleyerd came into use as a name for the whole curtilage (see Chron. Lond. 198, sub anno 1493). Still, in 1509 we get mention of 'tenements betweene the hall of Estlande called Gildehalda Theutonicorum, and the Stalehalfe, whych is theire dynyng hall' (Lappenberg, II. 170). But in Acts of Henry VIII 'Stilliard' and 'Gyldehalda Teutonicorum' are used as synonymous (cf. citations ap. N. and Q. 10th ser. vi. 331). At the end of the sixteenth century the regular form of the name was Stillyard or Stilliard.

The instances of 1382-94 are conclusive as to the meaning attached to the name 'Steelyard' or 'Stalhof' in England at that time; but they do not prove that this interpretation was correct. It is true that the Hanse Merchants brought some steel to England (for a trifling instance in 1408 see Hansische Geschichtsquellen, vi. 300, ed. Kunze); but the trade was not of sufficient importance to explain or justify the name. Moreover, if the name were of English origin it should on the analogy of 'Tymberhawe' and 'Woolcherchew' have been 'Steel-hawe'; I have not found 'yard' in any other early London place-name. So it seems probable that 'Steelyard' is simply an erroneous translation of 'Stalhof', a name which dates from 1320.

The meaning of 'Stahlhof' is itself obscure. Lappenberg (I. 174) suggests that it was a stall-place or market-place, where goods were exposed for which there was no room in the old Guildhall. Thus it would closely have resembled Blackwell Hall, or Winchester-seld and Tanners-seld (see pp. 324, 337). This interpretation is supported by the reference to chambers and booths in 1320. But 'Staal-hof' in Dutch anciently meant 'a pattern office where samples of cloth were stamped' (Calisch, Dutch Dictionary). Cloth was one of the chief articles of Hanseatic trade in London. One of the principal tenements comprised in the original Steelyard was called 'le Dyhouse' in 1386, and this led Lappenberg (I. 70, cf. II. 68, 138-40) to suggest that there might be some connexion with the Stahle or dye test-cloths of the merchants.

The connexion of 'Steelyard' the place with 'Steelyard' a beam or balance has been much debated. In 1531 there is reference to the 'great scales and balance, and of the Iron Beam, and of the beam of 'le Hanses Hangis' called 'the Stilliarde Beme' (Letters and Papers, v. p. 104). For a discussion on this point see N. and Q. 10th ser. vi. 282, 369, 412.

In Stow's time the Steelyard was famous for its winehouse in Thames Street, which was a popular resort: 'I come to entreat you to meet him this afternoon at the Rhenish Winehouse in the Stilliard. Will you steal forth and taste of a Dutch bun and a keg of sturgeon?' (Webster, Westward Ho! Act II. sc. i.)

For other copies of deeds relating to the Gildhalla Teutonicorum and the Steelyard see Mun. Gild. I. 485-8, and Report on Foedera, App. A. 150, and App. C. 16-32.

233, l. 7. the said marchants. Stow's list of names is not quite accurate. The Liber Albus has: 'Gerardus Merbode, aldermannus Hanse predicte, Ludolphus de Cussard, civis Coloniensis, Luderus de Dunevare, burgensis Tremoniae, Johannes de Arete, burgensis Tremoniae, Bertramus de Hamburg, Godescalcus de Hudendale, burgensis Tremoniae, Johannes de Dole, burgensis Monasterii.' In the copy from the Hamburg archives (Rep. on Foedera, C. 18) there are a few variations, viz.: 'Ludolphus de Cuffelde,' 'Luderus de Dunenar,' 'Trevirensis' for 'Tremoniae'.

234, l. 13. Richard Lions. His house and quay on the east side of the quay and garden of Easterlings Hall passed through various hands to the Abbey of St. Albans in 1456; the Hanse obtained full ownership in 1475 (Lappenberg, I. 59-66, with numerous deeds in the Urkunden).

l. 19. Windgoose Alley, 'Wendegoslane' in 1343 (Mun. Gild. II. 449). The name suggests a German origin; a Benedict Wandegos occurs in the 13th century (Anc. Deeds, A. 1623). It is called Wende-gayne Lane in Rainwell's will. In 1475 the Hanse acquired all the tenements on both sides of the lane, and closed the north end with a wall of stone (Lappenberg, II. 169).

l. 21. Abbot of S. Albons. See above, and Lappenberg, Urkunden xciv-civ.

l. 23. John Rainwell. His house and other tenements were on the east side of Windgoose lane, including the original Stahlhof or Steelyard, and bounded on the south by the Thames and on the north by the land of Robert Combarton; thus Rainwell's land did not reach as far as Thames Street. The property consisted of a mansion with 'le Dyehouse', and two mansions on steps, and a wine-cellar: it had belonged to John Northampton—mayor in 1381-3. See Lappenberg, I. 68-72 and Urkunden, xliii, cv, cxxvii, and cl, with a plan of the whole site.

236, l. 11. William Lichfield. Thomas Gascoigne (Loci e Libro Veritatum, 189) mentions him along with Gilbert Worthington of St. Andrew's, Holborn, amongst the famous preachers of his day. Lichfield and Worthington were two of the promoters of schools in London in February, 1447 (Rot. Parl. v. 137, see vol. i. p. 73 above). Lichfield's 'Complaint of God to Sinful man and the answer of Man', together with a 'Dialogue of the Passion between God and the Penitent Soul' are extant in Gonville and Caius Coll. MS. 174, ff. 469-82. In a deed relating to property in All Hallows parish, and dated 12 Dec. 1447, William Lichfield, clerk, is nominated as an attorney (Lappenberg, u. s. II. 73). The date of his death was given by Stow and Strype as 24 Oct. 1447; but this is clearly an erroneous reading of his epitaph: which gives xxiii Oct. M cccc xxxviii, or 1448.

Luce bis x, quater i, migrat Octobris sine panno,

C. quater, x quater, v semel, ter i, M. Karus.

Similarly the date of John Brickle's death was printed in error as 1451 instead of 1437, his epitaph reading:

C. quater, x, ter, v, semel, i, bis, et M. sociatis, which gives M. cccc. xxvii.

Strype reads for 'C. quater' in both cases Equater, which is meaningless.

l. 24. one Pot. Henry Pott, about 1550, as tenant of Sir Ralph Dodmer (Anc. Deeds, A. 12629). See vol. i. 232 above. The site is now occupied by the City of London Brewery.

286, l. 1. Cold Harbrough. Stow's account is not quite accurate: see paper by Mr. Philip Norman in Archaeologia, lvii. 257-84. Poultny by his will directed the Cold Harbour to be sold. A deed of 1 Nov. 1353 shows that at his death the Earl of Hereford held two parts for life, and the third part was held by Sir Nicholas Loveyn (not Lovell as on p. 236), who had married Poultny's widow, as part of her dower; Poultny's executors sold the reversion of the whole to Loveyn. Afterwards it belonged to Edward the Black Prince. Henry IV granted it to his son Henry in 1410. Later it was owned by Sir John Cornwall, Lord Fanhope, after whose death, in 1443, it passed to his step-son John Holland, Duke of Exeter. The grant of Richard III to the Heralds (C. P. R. Edward IV, &c. iii. 422) was cancelled by Henry VII (cf. Campbell, Mat. Hist. Henry VII, i. 475-6), who gave the Cold Harbour to his mother Margaret Beaufort for life. On her death Henry VIII gave it, in July 1509, to George Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury. (Letters and Papers, i. 253.) Presumably on Shrewsbury's death, in 1538, it reverted to the Crown, and was about that time bestowed on Cuthbert Tunstal, who held it till 1553, when it was restored to the then Earl of Shrewsbury.

For the lease to Henry Stow see Letter-Book E, 108, and for the Charter of 1347 Letter-Book F, 158.

l. 33. the lesse. It is All Hallows 'ad Fenn. in Roperia' in Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 211.

237, l. 3. H. Holland, duke of Excester, and he was lodged there in the yeare 1472. In Harley MS. 538, f. 80 'Ro. Fabian' is written in the margin. This statement is not found in the printed Fabian. The date seems to be wrong: cf. the Vitellius Chronicle under 1471:—'And the xiiijth day of february the Duke of Exceter cam to London from beyond the see, . . . and after to his place in Tamystrete' (Chron. Lond. 183).

l. 19. a great number of smal tenements. The Cold Harbour became notorious as the dwelling-place of needy persons, and a sanctuary for debtors and vagabonds. So Ben Jonson in The Silent Woman, Act. II, sc. iii:—'It knighthood shall do worse, take sanctuary in Cole Harbour and fast. It shall fright all it friends with borrowing letters; and when one of the fourscore hath brought it ten shillings, it knighthood shall go to the Cranes or the Bear at the Bridge-foot and be drunk in fear.'

And Webster, Westward Ho! Act IV, sc. ii:—'Swore you would build me a lodging by Thames side with a watergate to it, or else take me a lodging in Cole Harbour.'

l. 38. Mannor of the Rose. Originally it belonged to Sir John Pountney, and is perhaps the house which he had licence to crenellate in 1341 (C. P. R. Edw. III, v. 331). It was called his principal messuage in his will. In 1384 Richard, Earl of Arundel acquired 'Pulteneyesyn' from the Master and chaplains of St. Lawrence College (Anc. Deeds, D. 805). It is called 'My Lady's Inne of Arundel' in 1422 (Lappenberg, Stahlhof, II. 63). In 1450 it is described as 'Messuagium sive hospicium vocatum Poultenaysyn'. It had been sold by John Holland, Duke of Exeter, to William de la Pole, Duke of Suffolk, who was living there about 1446 (Hist. MS. Comm., 9th Rep. 52). Suffolk's heirs retained it, with some vicissitudes, till 1506, when on the attainder of Edmund de la Pole it was granted to Edward, Duke of Buckingham (d. 1521) (Inq. p. m. Lond. i. 76). In Henry VIII, Act I. sc. ii, reference is thus made to Buckingham: 'The Duke being at the Rose, within the parish St. Lawrence Pountney.' In 1526 it was granted to Henry Courtenay, Earl of Devon, after whose execution in 1538 it was granted in 1539 to Robert Ratcliffe, Earl of Sussex (Letters and Papers, xiv. 867, c. 17), whose son sold the greater part to the Merchant Taylors, and the rest to Alderman Beswicke. See Archaeologia, lvii. 268-9.

238, l. 32. a common cookerie or Cookes row. FitzStephen has simply publica coquina. But Stow is probably right in his interpretation of this as a Cooks' Row, and not merely a solitary cook-shop. The building Assize drawn up after the Great Fire in 1212 ordered all the cook-shops on Thames to be whitewashed and plastered inside and out (Mun. Gild. II. i. 86; see also Mr. Riley's Preface, p. xxxii). There is a reference to 'coquinae Vinetrie' in 1221 (Anc. Deeds, A. 1647).

230, l. 27. Herber lane or Brikels lane. Herbier lane in Vintry is mentioned in a fourteenth-century deed (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 16), and as late as 1448 (Cal. Wills, ii. 516). John Brikels is probably the John Brickles who died in 1437 (see p. 321 above). It is now Brickhill lane.

l. 31. three Cranes. Anciently there was only one Crane, and the inn was called 'The Crane in Vintry' (Chron. Lond. p. 81, sub anno 1425). Sir Walter Scott in Kenilworth (ch. ii) refers to it as 'the most topping tavern in London'. If not that, it was a well-known inn. Ben Jonson, in Bartholomew Fair, Act I, sc. i, associates it with the more famous 'Mermaid' and 'Mitre': 'A pox o' these pretenders to wit! Your Three Cranes, Mitre, and Mermaid men! not a corn of true salt, not a grain of right mustard amongst them all.' Pepys in Jan., 1662, had 'a sorry poor dinner' there in a 'narrow doghole of a room' (Diary, ii. 177). 'Le Peynted Aley' occurs in 1442 (Cal. Wills, ii. 513).

240, l. 1. John Gisers, Vintner. This is the John Gisors who died in 1351. His grand-daughter Margaret married Henry Pycard, and inherited all his lands and tenements in St. Martin in the Vintry (Cal. Wills, i. 643-4). See further note on p. 354 below.

l. 19. The Vintners. On the history of the Company and their muniments see an article by J. G. Nichols in Trans. Lond. and Middlesex, iii. 432-47, with special reference to Stodie's bequest.

l. 32. sweet wines. By a patent dated Nov. 26, 1373, John Peachie or Pecche obtained a monopoly for the sale of sweet wines by retail (Letter-Book G, 318, 320). For this and his extortion in connexion therewith he was accused in the Good Parliament of 1376, and imprisoned (Rot. Parl. ii. 328). As a consequence he was, along with Richard Lions and Adam Bury, removed from his aldermanry and deprived of the freedom of the City (Letter-Book H, 38, 44). It was an incident in the political rivalry between the victualling and clothing Guilds. See note on p. 312 above.

241, l. 10. the Church booke. Unfortunately it no longer exists.

l. 17. so much for Wines. 'In the time of Henry the Eight, and Edward the Sixt, Vinteners and Taverners houses were not in any such measure, maner, nor plenteous store and variety of wines of all Nations in any one man's house, as now at this time there is in every Vintener's house; for in those days whosoever drew White, Claret, and red Wine, sold no more kindes of Wine; the Dutch then sold only Reinish wine, as now they doe; and at that time, when an Argosey came with Greeke and Spanish Wines, viz. Muscadell, Malmsey, Sacke, and Bassard, the Apothecaries of London then went unto those merchants, and every man bought such Rundlets, vessels, and quantities of those rich wines, as they thought they should Retayle, unto such as usually bought of them only for Physick and for the Chirurgeon Table (Annales, p. 867, ed. 1631). This is an addition made by Hoves, but it looks so like a reminiscence of Stow's that it may very probably have been derived from his Colloquia.

242, l. 3. Palmereslane was called Palmer lane. 'Palmereslane' is 1343 Mun. Gild II. i. 437, and in 1433 and 1448 (Cal. Wills, ii. 487, 516).

l. 5. Wormester lane. Wormester Place in St. James, Garlickhithe, was granted on May 6, 1351, by William Somerset, Earl of Worcester, to Thomas Parrys, who died seized thereof in 1353 (Inq. p. m. Lond., ii. 27).

l. 11. of side stre called Andover. The deed, dated 1276, is calendared in Ancient Deeds, A. 7123; there, and in Stow's own note from a Cartulary of St. Mary Overy, ap. Harley MS. 544, f. 100, it reads 'Waker de Fortia' and 'seld called Wynchestre seld'. A little lane called 'Le Arche' in the parish of Paternoster church occurs in 1299 (Letter-Book C. 35).

For the Seldis Wynestres at Queenhithe in 1244, see Mun. Gild III. 441. In 1273-80 it belonged to the Hardels (Cal. Wills, i. 24, 46). In 1299, William de Walcherbehave owned 'la Wyncestreselde', where the merchants of Andover came to deal in wool (Mun. Gild II. i. 115; cf. Letter-Book C. 13, for 1293). 'Andoverseid' and 'le Stonhous' adjoining thereto belonged to John le Blund in 1316. (Anc. Deeds, C. 586). John Stodeye had a lease of 'Wynchestre Seld' in Allhallows the Great in 1347 (Letter-Book F. 112). I have not found any reference to 'Stendenbridge'; but William de Staundon was patron of St. Mary Somerset in 1273 (Cal. Wills, i. 15), and William Stondon had land in Walbrook in 1428 (see l. 227 above).

243, l. 20. Sir Heere Tanke, or Hartankleux. This is Sir Hartank Van Clux, a Silesian knight, who entered the service of Henry IV about 1400, and was afterwards employed by Henry V as a diplomatic agent at the court of Sigismund.

There is a list of burials in Harley MS. 6069, f. 29, which reads: Thomas Wandefforde, Sir Edmond Moulso, Sir William Houldhall, William Bernok and Robert Shreuyngham (for 'Sherington').

ll. 36, 37. this Tower . . . so called, of pertayning to the kinges. Stow is in error. 'The Royal' was a corruption of 'la Ryole', a name which was due to occupation by wine-merchants from La Reole in Gascony. At the end of the reign of Henry III, Thomas Bat demised his tenement 'la Rirole' to Simon de Beauvais (Stow's 'Beawmes'), who was surgeon to Edward I and had it confirmed to him in 1275 (Cal. Charter Rolls, ii. 202). At the great Iter in 1320 Simon's grandson failed to maintain his right to 'La Rirole' (Placita de Quo Warranto, 461). Edward III, in 1331, gave 'La Real' for a wardrobe to Queen Philippa, who was building there in 1349-53 (C. P. R. Edw. III, vii. 537, viii. 393, ix. 136, 342, 518). For grant of hospitium vocatum le Reole to St. Stephens in 1369, see Mon. Angl. vi. 1350.

245, l. 13. Forgers of Blades, and therefore called Bladers. Presumably 'blader' was used in Stow's time as the equivalent of bladesmith. But when he employs 'blader' to translate 'bladarius', as he does in the case of Walter Nele, and of William Palmer on i. 347, there is no doubt that he was in error. In the Middle Ages 'bladarius' meant a cornmonger or dealer in corn (bladum). So in the Ordinances of the Crafts catalogued in the Liber Albus, Bladarii et Portitores bladi appear together, and other ordinances are for Cuttellarii et Bladsmithes, and for Cuttellarii et Vaginari (sheath makers—Mun. Gild. I. 734-5, and III. 412, where 'bladarii' are called to give evidence on the price of corn). Walter Nele, as shown by Stow's citation from his will, had a wide agricultural connexion; of other bladers, William Palmer in 1349, and William de Thame in 1357 make bequests of granaries, and John de Eneveld in 1361 of a quantity of bread, corn, and malt (Cal. Wills, i. 538, 673, ii. 33). It is, however, noteworthy that in 1382 one William Warde, a 'cuteller' of York, complained that he had been admitted as a blader instead of as a cutler: here the word must surely mean bladesmith (Memorials, 474). Hamo le Barber (Cal. Wills, i. 533) was, like Palmer, connected with Henley; probably he was a cornmonger by profession, and a barber only by name. See for both Nele and Barber, Letter-Book E, 233.

ll. 36-8. H. Causton . . . 1396. Henry Causton, mercer, founded a chantry here in 1350 (Cal. Wills, i. 638).

l. 28. the king was then lodged. See notes on pp. 280 and 324.

247, l. 28. Ringed hall. In 1352 it occurs as the property of Benedict de Folsham, grocer (Anc. Deeds, C. 189). His company had met there in 1349 (Kingdon, Grocers' Archives, 38). Afterwards it belonged to Rewley Abbey, Oxford. Henry VIII granted it on February 11, 1541, to Morgan Phelippe alias Wolfe, his goldsmith, who at once sold it to Sir Thomas Mildmay (Letters and Papers, xvi. 580). Later owners were Sir James Croft, and Stephen Woodroffe, who died seized thereof in 1576 (Inq. p. m. Lond. iii. 4).

248, l. 4. Kerion lane. 'Kyrune lane' in 1259, afterwards usually 'Kyron' or 'Kirone' lane (Cal. Wills, i. 3, 24, 80, ii. 64). John Kerion held land in St. Laurence, Candlewick St., in 1284 (Cotton MS., Faustina, A. viii, f. 164). There was a 'Kyrone lane' at Kingston (Anc. Deeds, B. 1612, 1651).

l. 9. saint Martin de Beremand. 'Bærmanne cyrc' is mentioned in an alleged charter of William I to Westminster in 1067 (Cotton Chart. vi. 3; this is, however, a fabrication, probably of the time of Henry I). Ranulph Peverel gave it to Gloucester Abbey in the time of William II

(Cart. S. Pet. Glouc. i. 94, 390-1). It is called 'S. Martin de Baremannes chirche apud coquinas Vinetrie' in 1221 (Anc. Deeds, A. 1647). The name must be connected with O.E. 'bæрман', a porter, or carrier. It can hardly be connected with the neighbouring 'Wermanecher' which Edward the Confessor gave to St. Peter Ghent in 1044 (Kemble, Cod. Dipl. dcclxxi), unless that name is a graphic error for 'Bermanecherche', which is somewhat improbable; in later deeds this place appears as 'Wermanacre' (Cal. French Documents, 502-3, ed. Round), and at the iter of 1320 as 'Terra de Wermenatra' (Placita de Quo Warranto, 462).

1. 10. Mathew Columbars. The only person of the name whom I have found is Sir Matthew de Columbars (d. 1282), a prominent citizen, who was the King's Chamberlain in London and taker of wines throughout England (Letter-Book B, 280; Cal. Wills, i. 59).

1. 14. Sir John Gisors. On the Gisors family see note on pp. 354-5.

1. 20. Bartholomew de la vauch. The list in Harley MS. 6069 reads 'de la Vernha'.

1. 23. Robert Dalusse. In Harley MS. 538 the epitaph is completed thus:—

The 29 day of September he toke the way.

Pray for us, we yow pray.

Lyke as you would be prayed for another day.

1. 33. Bartrand, wife to Grimond Descure. The Latin inscription preserved by Strype is: 'Hic jacet corpus Bertrandae quondam Uxoris Ormondi Descure, Armig. unius Hostiariorum Camerae inclytissimi Angliae et Franciae Regis Henrici VII. Quae obiit 1<sup>o</sup> die Aprilis 1494.'

249, l. 1. Chantries there. Gilbert atte Merssh founded a chantry for himself and William de Stokesby and their wives in 1396 (Cal. Wills, ii. 328).

1. 3. S. James, called at Garlick hith. For a notice of St. James Garlickhithe see Trans. Lond. and Midd. iii. 392-403. The list of chantries returned in 1547-8 does not agree with Stow's, but John Rodyng, or Rothyng, appears as the principal benefactor; he was the son of Richard de Rothyng (Letter-Book F, 233). For chantries of John de Oxenford, John de Whitthorne, 1349, Walter Nele, and Henry Montkoy 1362, see Cal. Wills, i. 460, 586, 673; ii. 66. Whitthorne commemorated Goodcheape and Cressingham. St. James 'versus vinitariam' occurs about 1170 (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 13). For the lands of Oxenford's chantry see Inq. p. m. London, ii. 40. Stow's authority for Galfrid Moncley is the Liber S. Mariae Overy (cf. Harley MS. 544, f. 100).

1. 20. Nicholas Statham. So in all the early editions, but perhaps Nicholas Statham (d. 1472) the lawyer is meant. See Dict. Nat. Biog. liv. 112, and Errata, p. 258. The list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 29, has 'Stathum'. The same authority gives 'Stonor' for 'Stonarde' in l. 31.

Wills, i. 17). 'Corveyseres' street (Anc. Deeds, A. 2024) for Cordwainers Street is a better form.

L. 11. Budge Row. Budge was a kind of fur. See references to 'Furres of Budge' on i. 86 above. Milton has: 'those budge doctors of the Stoic fur' (Comus, 707) in allusion to the lambskin fur on graduates' hoods. Ben Jonson writes: 'Like the coneyskin woman of Budge Row' (Bartholomew Fair, Act I, sc. i).

L. 14. as Leyland termeth it. See note on p. 352.

L. 15. the red Lion, &c. No doubt the house called 'þe lyoun atte Dore' in Watling Street, which is mentioned 1362-66 (Letter-Book G, 151, 218).

L. 26. Turnebase lane. It is 'Tornebaston lane' in 1328, but 'Turnebast lane' in 1436 (Cal. Wills, i. 341; ii. 481).

251, l. 14. Sopers lane. Stow is in error. The name occurs as early as 1259 (Cal. Wills, i. 4), and was, no doubt, due to Sopers or soap-makers, who dwelt there. See Mun. Gild. II. i. 97. Aleyn le Soper was a disreputable person, without any obvious connexion with Sopers lane (Memorials, 118). Sopers lane is now Queen Street.

L. 36. with Epitaphes. In Harley MS. 538, 85<sup>vo</sup>, the epitaphs are completed as follows:

Now be they gon and we them misse.
Christ bringe theyr sowles to heven's blisse.

On the yonger thus:

Thomas Knoles lieth vnder this stone,
And his wife Isabell fleshe and bone.
They were together XIX yere,
X children they had in fere.
His father and he to this chirche
Many good dedes they ded wirche.
Example by them here ye may see,
That the world is but a vanitie.
For whether ye be smale or greate,
All shall turne to wormes meate.
This sayde Thomas was layde on bere
The viij day of the moneth of feverer
The date of Jhesu Christ truly
A M.CCCC fyve and forty.
We may not pray, hartely pray ye
For our sowles pater noster et ave;
The sonner owre paynes lessed may be,
Graunt vs the Holy Trinitie.

252, ll. 7-12. Thomas Windout, &c. In Harley MS. 538, f. 86, several corrections are contained: 'Windout one of the shrives . . . ; Hind . . . and also to the steeple of Bow then in building; Hugh Acton . . . steeple of St. Anthonie's Chirche, he also glazed the west window of Aldermary Chirche, every fote of glass price xiid.'

l. 25. a thousand foure hundred it was, &c. Street died in 1460 (Cal. Wills, ii. 540).

l. 31. Henrie Halton. In Harley MS. 538: 'and Robert Halton his son, 1433. John Wodiam merchaunt-taylor, 1513.'

l. 33. John Grantham. The mayor of 1328; founded a chantry in 1345 (Cal. Wills, i. 476).

l. 37. Aldemarie. The priory of Christchurch, Canterbury, held it by the gift of Living, the priest, in the reign of William I. (Mon. Angl. i. 109, cf. Litterae Cantuarienses, ii. 175.)

253, l. 6. building up of that Church. In Harley MS. 538 the narrative continues: 'Besydes that he gave liberally to the prisons, hospitalls, lazar-houses, and to pore householders; to the mending of highe wayes betwixt London and Coventrye 200 li. To Rochester bridge 10 li. To Dover 10 markes. To pore maydes mariages 100 markes. To pore husbandmen in Oxfordshire and Warwikeshire 140 shares and 140 coulvars of yron. Two serplars of his best woole to by a jewell for the Stapelers Hall. He gave to seven almsmen of the grocers company in London 6*d*. the pece wekely for ever; and to the pore of Aldermary parishe 13 shillings and four pence yerely for ever.'

The substance of this appears in the chapter on 'Honour of Citizens' (i. 111).

l. 9. Richard Chawcer. He occurs as a Vintner as early as 1320; he died in 1349. He was not, however, Geoffrey Chaucer's father, though in 1323 he married as her third husband the widow of Robert Chaucer, the poet's grandfather. Richard and Robert were possibly cousins. See Skeat, Chaucer, I. pp. xi-xv. Richard Chaucer's will, dated April 12, 1349, mentions Mary his wife and her son, Thomas Heyroun (Cal. Wills, i. 590).

l. 17. Aldermarie Church. In Harley MS. 558 here is inserted: 'Hewghe Acton, merchaunt-taylor, buried Seint Antonin's 1530, glazed the west window of this Aldermary chirche xiiid. every fote of glasse. And these were the benefactors to this chirche the last that I can reade of. The foundation of a fayre steple or bell tower was layde and reysed up some xvi or xx fote above the ground, and so it restethe.'

l. 36. newe Marie Church. Stow is in error in identifying this with St. Mary-le-Bow. See note on p. 317 above. It will be observed that he has corrected his explanation of 'de Arcubus' given in 1598 (see p. 248 above). There is a St. Mary Arches Church at Exeter, of which Freeman (Exeter, p. 63, Historic Towns) wrote: 'The origin of St. Mary Arches is uncertain, but it has Norman columns, and is the only parish church [in Exeter] with regular aisles.' Florence of Worcester (ii. 29), in describing the storm of 1090, refers to Bow Church as 'ecclesia quae ad Arcum dicitur'.

254, l. 34. for his preferment. In Harley MS. 538 Stow has added the words: 'Such a brother have I. God make hym penitent.' See Introduction, p. xix.

255, l. 36. Bowe-bell. Stow does not connect Bow-bell with cockney, but Rowlands in his Letting of Humours, &c., p. 65, has: 'To let a Bow-bell cockney put me downe.' There is a reference to the curfew at 'nostre dame des Arches' in 1363 (Letter-Book G, 150).

256, l. 27. Grammar schoole. See vol. i. 73, and note on p. 321 above.

l. 36. Richard Lambert. He died on April 4, 1567, during his year of shrievalty. Stow's Memoranda, p. 141.

257, ll. 15, 16. this sild . . . for himselfe. The tradition was so strong that when Bow Church was rebuilt by Wren, a royal gallery overlooking the street was provided.

l. 25. Crounsilde, or Tamarsilde. Tamarsilde is no doubt a corruption of Tanners-seld, the building in Friday Street to which all 'foreign' tanners had to bring their hides (Letter-Book G, 260; Memorials, 343). The Tanners-seld in Westchepe, parish of St. Mary-le-Bow, occurs in 1280, and references to it are common down to 1370 (Cal. Wills, i. 46, ii. 135). In 1309-10 there was also a Tanners Seld in St. Lawrence, Jewry (Letter-Book C, 162, 169). 'La Selde Coronata' or Crowned Seld occurs in 1384 (Cal. Wills, ii. 242).

l. 37. the Kinges head. On June 18, 1498, Perkin Warbeck was stood on 'a scaffold made in Chepyssyde, foreagayn the Kynges hede' (Chron. Lond. 223).

258, l. 11. I read of three shops. Given to Trinity in the time of Prior John (1250-8) by Laurence de S. Michael, who held them at the rents named (Guildhall MS. 122, f. 410).

259, l. 26. Buckles berie, so called, &c. See note on p. 318 above. Mr. W. H. Stevenson (Engl. Hist. Rev. xii. 491) has pointed out that in London 'bury' meant little more than a large house. This is clearly so in the case of Bucklersbury.

l. 31. the olde Barge. Documents dealing with the history of this house from 1276 to 1440, when it became the property of the Hospital of St. Thomas Acon are calendared in Watney's Account of St. Thomas Acon, pp. 263-8 (see also C.P.R. Henry VI, iii. 511). For its later history see Inq. p. m. London, i. 149, ii. 74, 77. It is first called 'le Barge' in a deed of 1414. It was at one time the house of Henry le Waleis.

260, l. 2. Cernettes towre. The earliest reference I have found is to 'la Tower Servat' in 1331 (Anc. Deeds, A. 10948). This suggests some connexion with William Servat, who was an alderman in 1312 (Memorials, 94). In the grant to St. Stephen's of 1358 it is called 'Sewtes Tour in Bokelesbury' (Mon. Angl. vi. 1350). In 1365 it is described under the name of Surnetes-tour as the mansion of William Holbech, whose widow, Matilda, bequeathed it in 1393 as Sernetes-tour to John Clee, Draper (Cal. Wills, ii. 104, 303). Elsewhere it is called Servers tour, and Sylvestre tour in 1455 (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 56a). In the edition of 1598 Stow calls it Seruesse or Service Tower (see p. 250 above).

l. 18. possessed of Grocers and Apothecaries. So in Webster's Westward Ho! Act I, sc. ii: 'Go into Bucklersbury and fetch me two ounces of preserved melons: look there be no tobacco taken in the shop when he weighs it.' And Merry Wives of Windsor, Act III, sc. iii: 'Lisping hawthorn buds, that come like women in men's apparel, and smell like Bucklersbury in simple time.'

Thomas Becon writes in 1563: 'If one devil be in so little porcion of incense, what a number of divells be there in all the apothecaries shops that are in Bucklersbury.'

Walsingham wrote in 1581 to Burghley 'hoping that his absence will do him more good than all the drugs in Bucklersbury' (Cal. State Papers, 1581-90, p. 21).

1. 25. Bennet shorne, or Shrog, or Shorehog. The name is very much older than Stow supposed. 'Alfwinus, sacerdos Scerehog' occurs in a deed dated 1111-31 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 61*b*). A wether is called a 'sherehog' when it has been once shorn. The name as applied to the church may be due to some person like William Serehog, or Alwin Serehog, who appear in early twelfth-century deeds (id. 63, 65). The church is called St. Bennet Sorhog before 1248 (Anc. Deeds, A. 1621).

1. 32. buried in this church. The list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 62, reads: 'Hooe' for Hold, and 'Warmyngton' for Warrington.

261, l. 11. In this Church. The list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 62, reads: John 'Bernes'; John 'Boston'; John 'Legage' (for 'Gage'); Robert Marshall alderman, 'and Elizabeth his wife'; 'Borhford' (for 'Corche-forde'); 'Nicholas Wyfolde twyse mayor of London, and Thomas his son.'

1. 29. Pepperers in Sopers lane, &c. In 1365 there is reference to the Misteries of Grossers, Pepperers, and Apothecaries, both in Soperslane and in Bokeleresbury (Letter-Book G, 204). See note on above. For an ordinance on Pepperers of Soperslane in 1316 see Letter-Book E, 67, Memorials, 120.

262, l. 18. Salomon Lanuare. Presumably Salomon de Lanvare, Cutler, who founded a chantry here by his will in 1312 (Cal. Wills, i. 227; Milbourn, Hist. of St. Mildred's, 19).

1. 19. Hugh Game. In 1436 (id. 19, 20; Cal. Wills, ii. 479).

1. 35. On the north side. In Harley MS. 538: 'On the north syde of the chirche remayne two tombes of marble; but the plates of inscriptions beinge taken from them, no man can tell who were buried vnder them, excepte only by the reporte of one man, who saythe they were the tombes of Thomas Monshampe and William Brothers: which William Brothers lived and was churchwarden there in the yere 1519, and deceased 1547, as apereth by the chirche boke.' Brothers was buried here on 2 Aug. 1547 (Milbourn, u. s. 16, 20).

263, l. 3. Counter in the Poultrie. In 1441 'le Compter' in the parish of St. Mildred belonged to Thomas Haseley; it was bequeathed to the Mayor and Commonalty by Walter Hunt in 1477 (Cal. Wills, ii. 501, 575).

l. 7. saint Marie at Conie hope lane ende. Reference to St. Mary Conyhope occurs as early as 1279, when Thomas de Mymmes founded a chantry there. John Mymmes, 'ymaginour,' or image-maker, left money for a chaplain in 1348, and subsequently a Brotherhood was established there. 'Ion yrunnes' is no doubt a blunder for 'lo. mymmes'. The purchaser of the chapel was not Thomas but William Hobson, who died in Jan. 1582, seized of a 'messuage newly built called Corpus Christi Chappel, wherein he dwelt, with two shops thereto adjoining' (Inq. p. m. London, iii. 51; Cal. Wills, i. 41, 558; Milbourn, History of St. Mildred's, pp. 22-6.) Conyhope Lane is now called Grocers Hall Court.

l. 27. new common hall. See vol. i. 278, and note on pp. 334-5 below.

264, l. 16. Bordhangly lane. Probably a mistake for Bordhaugly lane. 'La Bordhawe in S. Mary de Colecherche' occurs in 1257 (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. p. 17) and again in 1275; the name appears as 'Bordhawelane' in 1305, 'Burdellane' in 1405, and 'Barthawlane' in 1434 (Cal. Wills, i. 25, 170; ii. 365, 470); 'Brodhawlane' occurs in 1557 (Inq. p. m. London, ii. 68). Bordhawe would most likely be a timber-yard. Dr. Sharpe suggests as an alternative derivation 'bordel', a brothel; this may be supported by the form 'Burdellane'.

l. 30. about the yere 1285. The conduit in St. Mary Colechurch in West Cheap is mentioned in 1261 (Cal. Charter Rolls, ii. 38), and the Fraternity of St. Thomas the Martyr at the Conduit of London in 1278 (Cal. Wills, i. 29, 70). The first building of the Conduit, authorized in 1236 (see i. 16 above), was begun in 1245 (Ann. Lond. 44).

265, l. 24. In the yere 1351. This probably refers to the disturbances between the Fishmongers and Skinners, as a consequence of which two men were executed at the Cross in Chepe in 1340. An indemnity was granted to the Mayor on 18 March, 1346, and Stow may have taken his information from some later document, and so have made an error in the date. (See Letter-Book F, 58, 96-7, 138; Memorials, 210, 211; and Herbert, Livery Companies, ii. 306.)

266, l. 16. In the yere 1533, &c. The misprint of '1553', which appears in the edition of 1603, was repeated by Munday. Strype made a foolish correction by substituting 'Mary' for 'Anne'. The reference is to the coronation of Anne Boleyn, of whom Stow writes in his Annales, p. 952, ed. 1605: 'she went forward by the cross which was newly gilt.'

l. 32. again fastned and repaired. This was done under an express order from the queen. See Remembrancia, pp. 65-6 (the document there given was before 1595).

Ben Jonson, writing in 1599 or 1600, refers to the mutilation of Cheap Cross in Cynthia's Revels, Act I, sc. i:—'To frame some encomiastic speech upon this our metropolis, or the wise magistrates thereof? Descend into a particular admiration of their justice, for the due measure of coals, burning of cans and such like? As also their religion in pulling down a superstitious cross and advancing a Venus or Priapus in place of it.'

267, l. 8. counsellors directed their letters, &c. Stow gives the gist of the letters very accurately. The first letter, dated 2 Feb. 1600, was signed by 'the Lord Archbishop and Mr. Secretary only'; it refers to the cross having been taken away, and to 'an intent instead thereof to sett up some other devise'. The second is 'signed by all their Lordships and the rest at this sitting excepting Mr. Comptroller', but dated 14 Dec. 1600; it repeats the order as given by Stow, 'not approving that weakness in any men that will take offence at the historicall and civill use of such an ancyent ensigne of Christianitie. In the discharge of your duety herein wee are of opinion that the lesse alteration you make the better it is.' Acts of Privy Council, xxx. 27, and xxxi. 44.

1. 34. This old crosse. Erected by the Earl of Gloucester in the reign of Henry III; also called 'The Broken Cross'. Provision was made for the erection of a conduit in its place in 1390. See Memorials, 397, 435, 521; Letter-Book H, 343, 354, 358; and vol. i. 342 above.

268, l. 32. for the most part possessed of Mercers. For Mercers in Cheapside see Rowlands, Letting of Humours, &c., p. 45:—

Who have we here? Behold him and be mute.
Some mightie man I'll warrant by his sute.
If all the Mercers in Cheap side shew such,
He give them leave to give me twice as much.

269, l. 4. S. Thomas of Acon. For its history see Some Account of the Hospital of St. Thomas of Acon, by Sir John Watney, F.S.A. The founder's name should be given as Thomas, son of Theobald de Helles. The list of monuments is nearly identical with one in Harley MS. 6069, f. 30, which, however, reads 'Gernon' for 'Ganon'.

ll. 31, 32. Locke and Allen. In Harley MS. 538: 'Sir W. Locke, Mercer, sheriff 1548, deceased 1550; Sir John Allen, mercer, mayor 1525 and 1535, deceased 1544' (1545 new style).

l. 39. sir John Allen . . . being founder. Allen did not build the Mercers Chapel, but contributed 300*l.* towards the total of 2735*l.* on condition that he was buried there. In 1549 his tomb was moved to the converted Church of St. Thomas. (Account, u.s. pp. 102-5.)

270, l. 29. S. Martin called Pomary. In early deeds it is simply St. Martin in Ironmongers' Lane—as on i. 280. It is called St. Martin Pomer in 1252 (Watney, Account of St. Thomas Acon, 257), and St. Martin in Pomerio in 1303 (Mun. Gild. II. i. 237). After this St. Martin de Pomerio is usual. In mediaeval Latin pomerium means an apple-orchard. The suggestion adopted by Mr. Gomme (Governance of London, pp. 84-5) that pomerium has its classical meaning of the open space within and without the walls of a town, and that 'Pomary' preserves the memory of the old Roman city lacks confirmation.

271, l. 1. Blossoms Inne, but corruptly Bosoms Inne. The name is from the family of Blossme. 'Blosmes-hyn' and 'Blosmesesin' occur in 1374-5 (Letter-Book F, 136), and 'Bosum-is-Inne' in 1466 (Cal. Wills, ii. 540). The name survives in Blossom Inn Yard.

ll. 4, 5. Honey lane. The name was probably due to the sale of honey; 'Huni lane' occurs as early as 1207 (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. p. 18).

l. 16. Catte-street, corruptly called Catteten streete, occurs as Cattestrete in 1281 (Cal. Charter Rolls, ii. 253), and throughout the fourteenth century; as Catton Lane (cf. i. 259 above) in 1438 and 1483 (Cal. Wills, ii. 523, 585). Now Gresham Street. Catte Streets occur in Oxford and many other towns, see N. and Q. 10th ser. v and vi.

Margin. Liber Fletwod. It was compiled by the Recorder, William Fleetwood, and presented by him to the City on July 31, 1576. Probably its preparation was the occasion of Fleetwood being in possession of the Liber Custumarum and other City records (see Introduction, p. xxxii).

272, l. 15. William Elderton. A notorious tippler and writer of ballads from 1559 onwards. The description of him as an attorney in the Sheriff's Courts is peculiar to Stow. He may be the Master Elderton whom Machyn (Diary, 290) mentions as a magistrate at the Guildhall in 1562. He was also an actor and master of a company of comedians, and died about 1592. To Nash in Pierce Penilesse (Works, ii. 67) he is Elderton, who 'consumed his ale-crammed nose to nothing, in bear bayting with whole bundels of ballets'.

l. 13. hanging of Tapestry. The record in the City Journal, xi. f. 28, shows that Alwyn's intention was that the 'iij Clothes of Arrayes' which he left for the use of the commonalty should be kept by the Mercers, and his representatives made provision accordingly. (See Price, Account, p. 57.)

l. 34. to build of new. In April, 1430, the mayor, aldermen, &c., represented that the chapel of St. Mary by the Guildhall was small, ruinous, inconvenient, and dangerous, and except the site of the Guildhall, which had long been building, there was no site near whereon a larger chapel could be built, save the messuage given by Fanelore and Frauncis. Licence was therefore granted to pull down the old chapel, and build a larger on this site; and to refound the college with Sir John Bernard as warden. (C. P. R. Henry VI, ii. 57-8.)

274, l. 20. by him both builded and glased. John Wells, who in his will directed that he should be buried at St. Anthony's, made no such provision. But his executors covenanted with the City to build a great window at the east end of the Guildhall chapel, a presbytery, two niches for images, and an altar with marble steps (City Record, ap. Cal. Wills, ii. 499).

275, l. 17. the shanke bone of a man. William Harrison, in his Description of Brittain (Holinshed, Chronicles, i. 19), writes of the bone thus: 'which in times past was 28 inches in length, but now it beginneth to decaie, so that it is shorter by foure inches than it was in the time of King Edward.'

l. 35. William Melrith, or Melreth, died in Jan.-Feb., 1446 (Cal. Wills, ii. 506). He gave an illuminated missal to St. Lawrence Church; now Arundel MS. 109 in the British Museum. There is a similar list of names in Harley MS. 6069, f. 30, which, however, reads 'Chayham' for 'Chayhee' (p. 276, l. 10).

ll. 37-9. Richard Rich . . . 1469. Strype says his will was proved in 1464.

l. 36. the Iron grates. The arch or sluice by which the Walbrook passed under the wall. Roach Smith describes its discovery thus: 'Opposite Finsbury Circus, at a depth of 19 feet, a well-turned Roman arch was discovered, at the entrance of which on the Finsbury side were iron bars placed apparently to restrain the sedge and weeds from choking the passage' (Archaeological Journal, i. 111). See also Archaeologia, ix. 177, and compare vol. i. 175 above.

277, l. 2. Lothberie. It has been suggested that the name may be due to the Albert Lotering who held land about 1130 in 'Warda Haconis' (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 66). But there is no proof that 'Warda Haconis' is Broad Street. Moreover, St. Margaret 'de Lodebure' occurs 1181-1204 (id. 15), and 'Lohdeber' and 'Lothbery' occur 1222-48 (Anc. Deeds, A. 10391-2). The form 'Lothyngebire', which appears in 1275, is exceptional; though Broad Street ward was called 'Lodingeberi' in the list of 1285, it is 'Lotheberi' in 1293 (Cal. Wills, i. 20, 703).

For founders and candlesticks of Lothbury see Rowlands, A Fool's Bolt is soone shot, p. 9:—

And swore he had found out old Raymond's tricke,
To make good Gold of a brass Candlesticke: Lothburie, where the Brasiers doe abide,
He would make ten times richer than Cheapside.

l. 28. Elleanor . . . wife to Edward the first. An error for Eleanor of Provence, mother of Edward I, to whom Henry III had granted the custody of London Bridge in 1265 (see Hundred Rolls, i. 403 sqq.). Dr. Sharpe informs me that the original of the document in Letter-Book C, 61, is headed, 'Carta Alianore quondam Regine Anglie, &c.'

278, l. 10. their chappell. On March 8, 1305, the friars of the Sack assigned to Robert FitzWalter their chapel in Colemanstrete, lately a synagogue of Jews, for him and his heirs to find two chaplains there (C.P.R. Edw. I, iv. 317; Rot. Parl. i. 162). FitzWalter apparently absorbed it in his mansion. Stow seems to have confused it with St. Stephen's, see p. 336 below.

l. 12. place of the same Robert. In the Grocers' Archives (p. 162, ed. Kingdon) there is record of a payment made in 1427 'pur le purchas de nostre place appelle le Seignour VitzWater'. On Nov. 1, 1429, William Cambridge, Thomas Knolles the younger, and other grocers, had licence to grant in mortmain to the wardens their Inn in the Old Jewry, which lately was of Walter, Lord FitzWalter (C. P. R. Henry VI, ii. 78). Robert FitzWalter (d. 1234) had his house here (Madox, Hist. Excheq. i. 235).

l. 22. hath to signe a Windmill. The Windmill was a famous tavern in the time of Queen Elizabeth. One of the scenes of Ben Jonson's Every Man in his Humour is placed there.

279, l. 30. Semayne or Balaster, &c. Stow has given the facts correctly enough, but has corrupted the names, which should be Semane the cross-bowman (balistarius); Bonevia Mitun, Thomas Bukerell, John de Gyse ('Guso'); Lewis the painter; Walter Avenor ('Turnar'); Hugh Hareman; Mose de Cantabrigia (i.e. Cambridge); Ernard Ruffus ('Arnold le Reus'). The date is July, 1227. (Cal. Charter Rolls, i. 54-5; see also Cal. Close Rolls, Henry III, i. 41, 55—reading 'Mosse Bugus'—and Watney, Account of St. Thomas of Acon, pp. 256, 276—reading 'Molseus Bugis de Grauntebrige'.) For the house of Bonevie, son of Samuel Muton, in Westcheap in 1221, see Anc. Deeds, A. 13423.

280, l. 35. a Iewe at Tewkesbery. The story comes from the London Chronicles (Chron. Lond. 5). Camden (Remains, p. 304) gives three lines in reference thereto:—

Tende manus, Salomon, ego te de stercore tollam.

Sabbata nostra colo; de stercore surgere nolo.

282, l. 10. Richard Chamberlaine. In Harley MS. 538: 'Richard Chamberlaine, ironmonger, one of the shrives of London in the yere 1562, deceased 1566, and was there buried with this epitaphe:—

To the pore he was liberall and gave for God's sake,

But now his fame is plentiful and he a heavenly make.

He was lyke to<sup>1</sup> one of us, accordinge to our moulde,

But now he is unlyke to<sup>1</sup> us according to herroulde<sup>2</sup>.

His tyme was short, in sycknes rare, as to all is knowne,

But now his tyme shall longe endure, and never be overthrowne.'

Richard Chamberlain was father of John Chamberlain the letter-writer.

l. 23. principall palace. The grant, on March 27, 1438, was to John Stout and Robert Savage of the office of porter within the palace of the principality [of Wales] in the Old Jewry (C. P. R. Henry VI, iii. 196). Stout held his office by a grant of Henry V (id. i. 64).

l. 38. first builder or owner of Coleman streete. Riley suggested that the name was due to coalmen or charcoal burners, who settled there in convenient proximity to the Moor (Memorials, p. xix). But the name may be traced back to the 'Ceolmundingehaga' or farm of Ceolmund, near the Westgate, which is mentioned in a charter of Burhred of Mercia (circa 857, ap. Thorpe, Diplomatarium, 118). Stow himself gives an instance of Coleman Street in 1227: see vol. i. 279. 'Coleman cheriche' occurs in a charter of Agnes Becket to the nuns of Clerkenwell (Cotton MS., Faustina, B. II. f. 72). Reginald Coleman's will is dated Nov. 11, 1383 (Cal. Wills, ii. 246). For the church see below.

284, l. 2. Rahere de Sopars lane. No doubt Richard de Refham, who was mayor in 1310-11. He is called Richard de Soperslane in the Short English Chronicle, ap. Three Fifteenth Century Chronicles, and Richer de Refham in his will; he had property in Coleman Street and Bassishaw (Cal. Wills, i. 339). Stow's authority is the church-book of St. Stephen, Coleman Street, cf. Archaeologia, l. 53.

l. 32. This Church. In Newcourt's Repertorium, i. 535, it is shown that St. Stephen, Coleman Street, existed in the time of Ralph de Diceto (1181-1204), and that it was a chapel of St. Olaves in 1322, and finally constituted an independent parish church in 1456 (not in 1467 as stated by Stow). In describing it as at one time a Synagogue Stow seems to have confused it with the Chapel of the Friars of the Sack, see p. 334 above. For the church-books see Archaeologia, vol. l. pp. 17-57.

285, l. 9. Bassings hall, &c. The oldest note I find is of the parish of 'Bassingshage' in 1160-81 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 20). It appears both as 'Basynghshawe' and 'Bassishagthe' in 1246 (Watney, Account of St. Thomas Acon, 274-5), 'Bassieshaw' in 1278, and 'Bassinghawe' in 1284 (Cal. Wills, i. 36, 70). Basings Haw means the enclosure of the Basings. Riley (Memorials, p. xix) is clearly mistaken in distinguishing 'Bassishaw', the ward, as the haw of the Bassets, from Basinghall (the later Blackwell Hall), or the house of the Basings. Basinghall is a corruption. The ward is called 'Bassingeshol' and 'Bassyesshaw' in the Hundred Rolls, i. 403, 431. The connexion of the Basings with Blackwell Hall is doubtful (see note below).

l. 22. a Charter of Henrie the second. This charter appears in two places in the Liber Custumarum (Mun. Gild. II. i. 33, 48), in the first in its original form, in the latter as confirmed by Henry III in 1243. Stow translates the former. The second witness appears in the original as 'Warino filio Gerardi, Camerario', and in the confirmation as 'Waltero, filio Gerin, Comite'. The Charter in the possession of the Weavers Company is attested by T. Canc. (i. e. Thomas—Becket—Cancellarius) and Warino Filio Geroldi Camerario; the date can be fixed as Sept. 1155. See Letter-Book D, 221.

286, l. 28. Bakewell hall. In 1280 Sir Roger Clifford gave to the City his great hall, next to the Guildhall in the parish of St. Michael Bassishaw (Ann. Lond. 89; Letter-Book A, 227, 229). From the Hundred Roll (i. 403 b, 431) it would appear that this house previously belonged to John FitzJohn, who built it on the site of Jews' houses destroyed during the war. In 1293 the City transferred this tenement, except for a part previously sold, to John de Bauquell (Cal. Charter Rolls, 134; Letter Book C, 12). To the family of Bauquell or Backwell it d its later name. In 1337 there is mention of the chamber of the John de Baukewell (id. E, 304). Robert Bakwell held it some time re 1395 (Cal. Wills, ii. 536 n.). Stow seems to be mistaken in con-ting it with the Basings. The only Basing arms I have found were : , five eagles displayed sable, two, two, and one, a canton ermine' given by Munday, ed. 1633, p. 539). The Clifford arms were : equer, azure and or.' I suspect it was these latter which Stow saw described from memory, incorrectly, as : 'Gerond (gyronny) of twelve its, gold, and azure,' which were, it is true, used by some of the singbornes (Papworth, Ordinary, ii. 901). Blackwell Hall was acquired he City in 19 Richard II (1395-6, not 20 Richard II, as on i. 288). Cal. Inq. p. m., iii. 195.

87, l. 39. Vnto this Adam de Bassing, &c. Confirmation to him of dwelling-house of Gervase de Aldermanbury, and advowsons of Michael Bassishaw and other churches (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. Cal. Charter Rolls, i. 313). Adam and his son Thomas had lived in ermanbury for some years before 1275, when complaint was made of roachments there (Hundred Rolls, i. 403 b sqq.).

92, l. 10. Touching the antiquitie. 'Aldresmanesberi' is mentioned a document drawn up about 1130 (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 66). : Terra Gialle mentioned in the same place is probably the oldest rrence to the Guildhall. 'Bury' in London meant little more than a e house, as notably in the case of Bucklersbury (see p. 329). So Stow's lanation of Aldermanbury, as the bury or Court-hall of the aldermen, r called the Guildhall, seems sound. Mr. Price (Account of the Guild- l, 34-40) has shown that the old Guild Hall was near the west end of present one, as Stow describes. The Osney Register is now at Christ rch, Oxford; a facsimile of 'Richard Renery's grant' is given in Price's ount of the Guildhall, p. 35.

l. 22. I my selfe haue seene the ruines, &c. An early memory of w's. In August, 1531, was begun the 'clensyng of certeyn olde ruinouse ses and grounde lying in Aldermanbury, sumtyme the Place of Saint helbert kyng' (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 44).

l. 36. a shanke bone of a man. William Harrison, writing of the bones giants in his Description of Britain (ap. Holinshed, Chronicles, i. 19), s : 'Another also is to be seene in Alderman burie . . . of 32 inches l rather more, whereof the symmetrie hath beene taken by some skilfull hat practise, and an image made according to that proportion, which at on the east end of the cloister of the same church, not farre from said bone, and sheweth the person of a man full ten or eleven feet h, which as some say was found in the closter of Poules, that was re to the librarie, at such time as the Duke of Somerset did pull it me to the verie foundation, and carried the stones thereof to the Strand, re he did build his house.'

was buried here in 1399 (Cal. Wills, ii. 340). He was an armourer: Stow may have confused armurarius and armiger.

l. 18. John Wheatley. Whatele in his will (id. ii. 458). Cf. i. 257, 270.

204, l. 20. Henry Frowike. Died 1378. Cal. Wills, ii. 201.

l. 26. converted into a parrish Church. On the remains of this later St. Alphage, see articles by Mr. Philip Norman in Architectural Review, March, 1907, and Archaeologia, lx. 169.

l. 35. sir John Williams. He had a grant of Elsing Spittal in 1540 (Letters and Papers, xv. 612(7)). For the fire see Wriothesley, Chron. i. 133.

205, l. 6. houses for wealthy Marchantes. Milk Street was an important residential quarter: see Dekker, Jests to make you Merry (ap. Works, ii. 323):—'Conjecturing that at that time our worthiest citizens are from home, they goe into Milk Street, Bread Street, Lime Street, S. Mary Axe, or the most priviest places where they kept their residence.'

l. 26. Woodstreete. Probably so called from the sale of wood there. The name is ancient. St. Michael 'de Wodestrate' occurs 1160-81 (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 21).

206, l. 2. Goldsmithes row. See note on p. 351.

l. 16. monuments. There is a list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 58, which specifies Ralph, Thomas, Ralph, and Richard as the four sons of Ralph Illingworth, and reads 'Thomas Pipehurst' and 'Richard Tuke'.

The world's worships and honor with favour and fortune wanyth day by day.

Who may withstand death's stowre, when riche and powre she closeth in clay.

Wherefore to God hartely we pray, to pardon us of our misdede,
And help us now in our moaste nede.

Amen.

Another thus:—

Eche for other little syster and brother, to God we pray,
That you here and I els where may synge and say,
That God Almighty for his greate pitie mercy will have On vs wretches, and from payne fetch us, to make vs save.'

l. 22. Huggen lane. The name is older than Stow supposed. 'Hoggenelane' occurs in 1275, and 'S. Michael de Hoggenelane in Vodestrate' in 1288 (Cal. Wills, i. 25, 83). As Hoggeslane it occurs in 1234 (Cotton MS., Faustina, B. II. f. 89<sup>vo</sup>).

l. 36. monumentes. The list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 58, is: 'William sonne of Thomas Bamburgh, squyre; William Mauf, squyre; William Tavener, squyre; John Coraunt.'

For Jhesus love pray for me,
Such as I am so shall ye be.
John Nashe, citizen of London, sometyme was I,
More then yere forty and thre.
I pray yow for some charitie,
Remember hym and his wyves thre,
Which hight Elizabeth, Margaret, and Margerye.
I parted to God in the yere of grace
A thousand foure hundred six and sixty,
That day trewly.
God of his goodnes grant vs his mercy.
And in the worshipec of the Trinitye
For owre soules say a pater noster and ave.

l. 4. William Lambarde. The author of the Perambulation of Kent, which suggested to Stow the form of the Survey.

l. 29. Blacke Hall. 'Le Blakegate' is mentioned in 1348, and a tenement called 'Blackhalle' in 1361; both of St. Michael, Wood St. (Cal. Wills, i. 514, ii. 67). As 'le Blake halle' it appears in 1384, in 1388, and again in 1410 when it was conveyed to William Sevenoke (Archaeologia, lviii. 206; Cal. Inq. p. m., iii. 102).

299, l. 9. was called Monks Wel and the street of the Wel. Stow is in error. Algarus de Muchewella is named in a deed of the early 12th century, and 'Mukewellestrate' occurs not much later (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 23, 61). It is Mukewellestrate in 1277, and Mugwell Street as late as 1578 (Cal. Wills, i. 30; ii. 693).

l. 29. the monuments. There is a list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 54, which is fuller for the Wrothesleys. For 'Cherley' (l. 38) it reads Chorley.

300, l. 21. Robert Crowley. Stow, in his Memoranda, 139, writes of him under date 1567 as 'Somtym a boke sellar, now redar at Sent Antholyns, person of S. Petar y<sup>e</sup> Powre, prebend of Pawlls, vickar of S. Gills withowt Criplegate, and deane of Harfford<sup>1</sup> in Wales', and says that at the time of the order on the use of Surplices he compiled a book called 'Y<sup>e</sup> Unffoldynge of y<sup>e</sup> Popyshe atyr'. This book does not appear amongst Crowley's numerous printed works. Crowley died in 1588. See Dict. Nat. Biog. xiii. 241.

l. 21. foure under one olde stone. According to the Latin inscription given by Munday (Survey, p. 313, ed. 1633) the stone was for three persons only, viz. William Bullen (d. 1576) physician, Richard Bullen (d. 1563) preacher, and John Foxe (d. 1587). The inscription is dated 1587; Stow's reference to a 'W. Bolene, physician, 1587', is probably due to a misreading.

out Crepelgate occurs in 1257 (Anc. Deeds, A. 2263), 'Bechestrete' in 1285, and 'Beche lane' in 1333 (Cal. Wills, i. 74, 402). The name is therefore older than Nicholas de la Beech. It may be connected with the spring called 'Wittewellebech' mentioned in a charter of Henry II in 1182 (Cotton MS., Faustina, B. II. f. 6; the 'Witebek' of Feet of Fines in 1197), and as 'Whittewellebeche' in 1381 (Memorials, 451).

302, l. 6. Abbot of Ramsey. There is mention of the Abbot's house in London in 1114-30 (Cart. de Rameseia, i. 140, 242; ii. 133). The Abbot's lodging of Ramsey in Whitecross Street was granted to John Gates (d. 1553) on 5 July, 1545 (Letters and Papers, xix (i). p. 623). Sir Drewe Drewrie (1531?-1617) was a wealthy courtier of Elizabeth and friend of his neighbour, Lord Willoughby. See Dict. Nat. Biog. xvi. 54.

l. 31. Base court. 'Le Bas Court by Crypelgate' was granted to Robert Ufford on the treason of John Maltravers in 1331 (C. P. R. Edw. III, ii. 73). On the death of William Ufford, second and last earl, in 1382, it passed to his nephew Robert, Lord Willoughby d'Eresby (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 40, 209). As 'Barrecan', otherwise 'Barbycane' or 'Bas-court', William, Lord Willoughby d'Eresby, held it in 1519 (Hardy and Page, Fines, ii. 24-5). His daughter and heiress, Katherine, Duchess of Suffolk, was mother by her second marriage of Peregrine Bertie (d. 1601), who refers in his will to his 'great mansion-house called Willoughby House or Barbican' (Five Generations of a Loyal House, i. 439).

'Barbican' has nothing to do with 'burgh-kenning'; the word came to English through the O. F. barbacane and Low Latin barbacana, an outwork. It is of uncertain, but possibly Oriental, origin. See N. E. D.

303, l. 36. Shelly house. The rents and houses of Thomas Shelly, between the church of St. Mary at the end of Stanynglaneend and Adlyngstrete, were forfeited in Feb. 1400 (C. P. R. Henry IV, i. 193). Sir John Colepepper owned the tenement called 'Shelles' in 1482 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 408).

304, l. 4. Sergeant Fleetwoods house. He commonly dated his letters as from Bacon house (cf. Lansdowne MSS. 24 and 26, for 1576-78).

l. 32. Stayning lane. Professor Maitland suggested that the name was due to the fact that it once contained the haws of the men of Staines (Domesday and Beyond, 181). The Confessor had granted to St. Peter, Westminster, the manor of Staines, with the land called 'Stæningehaga' within London and all other things that had belonged to Staines (Kemble, Codex, dccciv). St. Mary Stayning is called 'Ecclesia de Staningehage' in 1189 in the Clerkenwell Chartulary (Cotton MS., Faustina, B. II. f. 9).

305, l. 7. Engaine lane, or Mayden lane. 'Englenelane' in 1282 (Letter Book A, 154) and 'Ingenlane' in 1382 (Cal. Wills, ii. 236). Cf. vol. i. 298.

l. 8. S. John Sachary, or Zachary, from the Zachary to whom the Canons of St. Paul's granted the church of St. John the Baptist in the twelfth century (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 13 b, 64).

l. 19. John Adis . . . 1400. Munday (Survey, p. 322, ed. 1633) gives the date from his tomb as Feb. 28, 1461; Strype as 1470.

l. 20. John Francis, &c. According to the inscriptions given by Munday he died on Dec. 13, 1405, and his wife on Oct. 11, 1432. He was also called Godman (Cal. Wills, ii. 364).

l. 21. [John] Sutton . . . 1413. Munday gives the date from his tomb July 6, 1450, which shows that he was the alderman killed on London Bridge in Cade's rebellion (Chron. Lond. 161), not the sheriff of 1413.

l. 22. Bartholomew Seman. He founded a chantry here, but directed that he should be buried at St. Andrew, Cornhill (Cal. Wills, ii. 456, 459).

l. 25. Christopher Eliot . . . 1505. Strype gives 1509, which is correct. Cf. i. 24.

l. 31. John Cornish. In Harley MS. 538, f. 108<sup>vo</sup>, the epitaph is given:—

When I alyve was, bothe more and lesse, even in lyke case right so be ye,
In piteous array, as ye se may, it is no nay, so shall ye be.

Yourselfe make mone, or ye have gon, I pray eche one to pray for me Without delay; past is the day, I may not pray, now pray ye.

Remembre your charitie, eueryche one for the soule of John Cornishe hens gon,

a pater noster and ave.

The whiche in the monthe of June deceased the seventene day serteynly, In the Yere of our Lord M.cccc four and seventy, with de profundis clamavi.

l. 36. as some haue fabuled. This is hardly fair to Grafton, who gives the story for what it is worth (Abridgment of Chronicles, p. 136, ed. 1572). Stow himself took the pains to copy it out as follows (Harley MS. 367, f. 19):

'The aforsayd maior Syr Bartilmew Rede kept his maioralty in the golde smiths hall in London. And it happened on that tyme that the admirall and certeyn other noble men came as Ambassadors from the Frenche Kynge to the Kynge of England; whom the Kynge did very honourably feaste and entertayne, and comanded also the mayor to enter-tayne them in the citie of London in the best maner that he might. Whereupon he desired them to dinner. At whiche dinner the ambassadors, beinge accompanied with many lords and gentlemen to the number of an hundered persons and mo, were placed in the Goldsmiths Hall, where they filled thre longe tables, and were served with thre courses of all meates that might be gotten for money. At the first course everye messe was served with xv dishes. At the second xii dishes. At the third x dishes. So that in the whole there was servyd in the Hall xv messes and to every messe xxxvii dishes of meate. The first course was served all in vessels of new white silvar, the second in new silvar parcell gilt, the third in new silvar all gilt; beinge all marked newly with his owne marke. And no dishe nor meate was caried out of the hall untill the dyner was done, for as they were taken of the table, so they were set within a parke finely paled, and coningly dressed and garnished with all maner of swete and goodly flowers in the midste of the hall. And after diner the same meate was caried out at the gate, and immediatly given to the pore, that were orderly placed in the strete ready to receyve the same. After diner amonge the other gestes was an Italian, a Jeweller, and he shewed forthe a stone of greate vallue, and sayd that he had oferyd the same to the Emperour, the Frenche Kynge, and the Kynge of England, but none of them would give the vallue thereof. The maior hard hym, and sayd : "Have ye ofered it to our Sovereigne lord the Kynges grace?" The Straunger aunswered : "Ye." Then sayth the Maior : "Thinke you the kynges grace refused it for want of treasure ; let me see it," sayd he, and askyd hym what he valued at. The straunger sayd a thousand markes. "And will that buy it," sayth the maior. "Ye," sayth the straunger. Then the maior toke the jewell, and comanded one to bring him a spice mortar and a pestle, and willed his officer to beate it to powder, and so he did. Then the maior called for a cup of wyne, and put it in the cup and dranke it of clene, and sayd to the Straunger : "Speke honorably of the kynge of England, for thou hast now sene one of his pore subjects drinke a thousand markes at a draught." And then comanded his money to be payd hym. This I found writen in the maner that I have told it in the ende of an olde booke in the Grey friars library in London, written by one friar Jones.'

306, l. 35. Epitaph. It is completed in Harley MS. 538 thus :

Wherfore Jhesu, that of Mary spronge, Set theyr sowles thy sayntes amonge,
Thoughe it be undeserved on theyr syde,
Yet good lord let them evermore thy mercy abyde.
And of your charitie say a pater noster and a ave mary.

307, l. 15. these verses. To be read thus :

Quos anguis tristi diro cum vulnere stravit,
Hos sanguis Christi miro tum munere lavit.

Similar verses occur elsewhere, as on the church at Champéry in Switzerland, and in Weever's Ancient Funeral Monuments.

l. 19. William Gregory. This is the possible author of part of Gregory's Chronicle. In his principal will he describes himself as of St. Mary Aldermary parish, and provides for his obit to be kept there (Collections of a London Citizen, pp. xlii-xlix). However, by another will he endowed a chantry at the church of SS. Anne and Agnes within Aldersgate for the souls of Margaret Holmhegge and others (Cal. Wills, ii. 557 ; see also, 556-7, 567, 573).

l. 27. This colledge. See A. J. Kempe's Historical Notices of St. Martin le Grand, where the Charter of William I (see note on pp. 270-1 above) is given on pp. 174-6, and other documents relating to the dispute in 1440 on pp. 117-33, together with the ordinance of 1457 on pp. 146-50 (the last is also given by Munday, pp. 327-30). The privileges of the Sanctuary had long been abused. Early in the sixteenth century Sir T. More (Hist. of Richard III) wrote of the sanctuaries at Westminster and

St. Martin's: 'What a rabble of thieves, murderers, and malicious heighnous Traitours, and that in twoo places specyallye. The tone at the elbowe of the Citie, the tother in the very bowelles.' Complaint of the disorders in St. Martin's was made to Burghley in 1593 (Kempe, u. s. pp. 168-70). The privileges were abolished in the reign of James I.

l. 31. in the yeare aforesaid. That is in 19 Henry VI, which began on Sept. 1, 1440, shortly before the end of Malpas's and Marshall's year of office. For a full exemplification of the record see C. P. R. Henry VI, iii, 569-70.

309, l. 5. straungers borne. In Elizabeth's time the Liberty was occupied chiefly by foreigners, French, Dutch, and Germans, who worked as shoemakers (see i. 81 and ii. 281), and manufacturers of counterfeit plate, sham jewellery, embroideries and lace. Hence Stow's covert description of it as a den of thieves. So Dekker and Webster in Westward Ho! Act II. sc. i: 'You must to St. Martin's to buy lace.' Richard Braithwaite, in 1658, in The Honest Ghost, p. 167:—

By this he travells to Saint Martin's lane,
And to the shops he goes to buy a chaine.'

Butler, in The Lady's Answer to Hudibras, ll. 59, 60, refers to:

false St. Martin's beads Which on our lips you lay for reds.

l. 13. Northumberland house. Henry Percy, second Lord, had his house here in 1352 (Cal. Inq. p. m. ii. 174, 288). Henry Percy, first Earl of Northumberland, gave it to his son Henry (Hotspur), at whose death in 1403 his two Inns in 'Aldrichgate strete' were granted to Richard, lord Grey (C. P. R. Henry IV, ii. 408; iii. 214). By other grants on July 22, 1405, and April 8, 1406, they were given to Queen Joanna, who held them till her death (id. iii. 34, 169). On July 11, 1437, the King's place, formerly called 'Queen Johanne Wardrobe', was granted to Thomas Aldenham (id. Henry VI, iii. 68, 152, 240). The Percies were endeavouring to recover it in 1435 (id. ii. 530-2), and eventually succeeded; for, on the attainder of the third Earl, this and the other Northumberland house in Aldgate were granted to George, Duke of Clarence (id. Edw. IV, i. 48, 199).

811, l. 21. Nicholas Farrendon son to the said William. Stow's account of the Farringdon family is inaccurate. William died in 1294, leaving his property to his wife Isabella for life, and at her death to Nicholas his son-in-law and Isabella his daughter. This Nicholas Farringdon, who was mayor in 1308, 1313, 1320, and 1323, was probably the Nicholas, son of Ralph le Fevre, to whom, according to a deed cited by Antony Munday (Survey, p. 336, ed. 1633), William granted the aldermanry in 1293. Nicholas died in 1334, and was buried before the altar of St. Dunstan at St. Paul's Cathedral (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 3). Through his daughter Roysia, or Rosia, he was grandfather of a second Nicholas Farringdon, who was never alderman, and dying in 1361 was buried at St. Peter's in Cheap (Cal. Wills, i. 112, 397, ii. 18). The undivided Farringdon Ward was called the Ward of Ludgate and Newgate in 1285-6, but Farndon Infra and Farndon Extra in 1319-20 (id. i. 702-4). Nicholas de Farndon bequeathed it in 1334 to John de Pulteney as the 'Aldermanry of Farndon within Ludgate and Newgate and without'.

814, l. 2. John Sha. In his will he gave direction for the performance of the will of 'myn uncle Sir Edmonde Shaa knyght concernyng the continuance of dayly serveyce to be songe and done withyn the parish church of St. Peter in Chepe. . . . I wyll that my executors shall cause y<sup>e</sup> said church of Saint Petur to be bylded and made with a flat rooffe. And also the Stepull there to be made up in a gode and convenient manner.' Trans. Lond. and Midd. iii. 348. The exact relationship of John and Edmond Shaw is given here alone.

l. 8. buried in this Church. Strype corrects the dates for Thomas Atkyns, ob. Aug. 15, 1486, and Richard Hadley, ob. Jan. 21, 1492, quoting the inscriptions. For Palmer he gives 1513, for Warley 1524, for Munday 1527. The Nicholas Farendon, who was buried here, was not the mayor but his grandson (see note above).

William Rus in his will (Cal. Wills, ii. 483) directed that he should be buried at St. Michael, Cornhill. See i. 196, ii. 305 above. The list for St. Peter's in Harley MS. 6069, f. 58, reads 'William Bowse'.

l. 33. Fauster lane. A corruption of St. Vedast's. It appears as 'Seint Fastes lane', and 'Venella Sancti Vedasti' in the fourteenth century (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 13).

815, l. 1. William Trist, Selerar. Meaning William Tristour, saddler, who died in 1425. Another William Trystour, saddler, was buried here in 1439 (Cal. Wills, ii. 442, 489).

l. 15. Seale. The common seal still bears the inscription 'Sigillum Baronum Londoniarum'; the City arms were substituted for the figure of Thomas Becket in 1539. See Price, Account of the Guildhall, 12-13.

l. 20. one great house. Ralph Neville had tenements in Silver Street at the corner of Mugwell (Monk's Well) Street in 1367. John Neville (d. 1388) of Raby was his son. John's second wife, Elizabeth (d. 1395), heiress of William, Lord Latimer, was mother of John Neville (d. 1430), Lord Latimer. John, Lord Latimer, sold his barony to his half-brother, Ralph (d. 1425), first Earl of Westmorland, who died seized of 'Nevils Inn' in St. Olave parish in Farringdon Ward. Ralph (d. 1484), second Earl, held 'Neville Inn' in Silver Street (Cal. Inq. p. m. ii. 281, iii. 102, 192; iv. 103, 419). Dorothy Neville, daughter of Ralph (d. 1550), fourth Earl, married John de Vere, sixteenth Earl of Oxford; her only child, Katherine, married Edward, Lord Windsor (d. 1574), whose tomb is in the church of SS. Giovanni e Paolo at Venice; Lady Windsor died in 1600.

l. 25. Monks well street. See note on p. 339.

816, l. 19. he deceased in the yeare 1577. William Lambe died April 30, 1580. He was seized of 'le St. Jaemes Chappell at London Wall', and fit it with other property to the Clothworkers for charitable and pious uses (Inq. p. m. London, iii. 99-101; Cal. Wills, ii. 703). See Gent. Mag. Library, xv. 288-93, describing the ruins in 1825.

l. 37. stinking lane. No doubt the 'Stukandelane' or 'Stigandesne' which was obstructed by the Grey Friars in 1275 (Hundred Rolls, 404).

319, l. 37. Monuments. Stow's list is based on that in the Register of reynfriars in Cotton MS., Vitellius, F. xii, which is printed in Collectanea topographica et Genealogica, v. 275-90, 385-98. The original contains many names and dates not given by Stow, and supplies some corrections, z.: p. 321, l. 5, Bartholomew de Castro (or de Castle, see Cal. Wills, 128); l. 22, 'two daughters of Alleyne Cheyny' (due filie); l. 29, Thomas Ap (à Parr) et Johannes Mylwater'; l. 31, John Water probably died in 1502; l. 34, William Huddy was not buried here, the entry refers to his wife Anne, who was widow of John Moyle. P. 322, l. 8, Chyrchard; l. 11, Philip Pettys; l. 13, Henry Reston; l. 17, John Treszawell. 'Patar, bishop of Carbon' (p. 320, l. 12) is Peter, bishop of Corbavia of Dalmatia, who was suffragan of London, Canterbury, and Winchester Stubbs, Reg. Sac. Angl. 195, ed. 1897; Ann. Paul. 340). Henry rowike (p. 322, l. 10) is the sheriff of 1275, who died in 1284 (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 46).

323, ll. 36-7. H. Reade . . . 1450. A misprint. His will, dated Sept. 6, 1420, was enrolled March 2, 1421 (Cal. Wills, ii. 423).

324, l. 7. Aedelbertus Rex, &c. This charter is contained in a register of St. Paul's, whence it has been printed in Dugdale, History of St. Paul's, p. 288, Kemble, Cod. Dipl. dcccclxxxii, Haddan and Stubbs, Councils, i. 60, and Birch, Cartularium Saxonicum, i. 14. It is marked as spurious or questionable both by Kemble and by Stubbs.

l. 15. Stortford, &c. This grant is an O.E. charter of William I, printed in Dugdale, St. Paul's, p. 304.

l. 16. He also confirmed, &c. These two charters are printed in Dugdale, St. Paul's, p. 298; viz. a Latin charter confirming the grant of Ethelberht, and the other appearing to be a Latin translation of a writ drawn up in O.E. The latter is given from Charter Roll, 9 Edw. II, fo. 37, and Pat. 1 Henry V. Earlier and better texts occur in Cartae Antiquae, C. C. No. 14 (circa 1200), and A 1, and BB. No. 9 (slightly later).

325, l. 28. place of assembly. For early (twelfth century) regulations on the chief folkmotes, viz. at Michaelmas to hear the sheriff's charge, at Christmas to keep the wards, and at Midsummer for watch against fire, see Eng. Hist. Rev. xvii. 502, and Mun. Gild. I. 118-9. The folkmote was to be summoned by the great bell at St. Paul's. See also note on p. 278 above. For the pleas in 1320 see Mun. Gild. II. i. 338-43. For folkmotes at Paul's Cross see i. 331, and note on next page.

327, l. 10. The height, &c. Wren measured the tower as 260 feet high, but estimated that the spire had been no more than 200 (Parentalia, 274). The dimensions of old St. Paul's are given variously. See Sparrow-Simpson's Documents illustrating the History of St. Paul's, pp. 191-3.

1. 32. dance of death. Sir Thomas More (Works, p. 77, ed. 1557) alludes to the paintings at St. Paul's: 'But if we not only hear this word Death, but also let sink into our hearts the very fantasy and deep imagination thereof, we shall perceive thereby that we wer never so gretly moved by the beholding of The Daunce of Death pictured on Pawles as we shal fele ourself stered and altered by the feling of that imaginacion in our hearts. And no mervel. For those pictures expresse only the lothely figure of our ded bony bodies.' Lydgate's verses were printed at the end of Tottell's edition of The Falls of Princes in 1554; also in Dugdale's History of St. Paul's, 419-27, and in Douce's The dance of death. See also vol. i. p. 109 above.

328, l. 3. a fayre Librarie. Leland (Collectanea, iv. 47-8) gives a list of twenty-one manuscripts; there is a full list drawn up in 1458 in Dugdale's History of St. Paul's, 393-9. Only three can now be traced: (1) A MS. of Avicenna; (2) The Chronicle of Ralph de Diceto in the Lambeth Palace Library; (3) The Miracles of the Virgin in the Aberdeen University Library. A Psalterium now in the Cathedral Library was probably one of the Service-books of old St. Paul's. See Sparrow-Simpson, Gleanings from Old St. Paul's, 37-9.

331, l. 8. The very antiquity of which Crosse. It is mentioned in Lib. de Ant. Legg. 9, under date 1241, when Henry III took leave of the citizens for his journey to Gascony 'ad crucem Sancti Pauli'. Stow's instance in 1259 was on a like occasion, when Henry met the citizens 'populo in Folkesmoto congregato' (Lib. de Ant. Legg. 42). On the early history of Paul's Cross see Sparrow-Simpson, Hist. of Old St. Paul's, 149-72.

The account in the Survey is reproduced almost verbatim from that in the Annales, p. 1095, ed. 1605. See for very similar accounts, Machyn, Diary, p. 259, and Hayward, Annals of Queen Elizabeth, p. 87, and three other contemporary accounts in Dr. Sparrow-Simpson's Documents illustrating the History of St. Paul's, pp. 113-27, Camd. Soc.; and History of Old St. Paul's, 134-42.

332, l. 22. through whose default God knoweth. The reference to Grindal in the 1598 edition (see p. 256 above) has been supposed to hint at some blame on his part. But this is unfounded. Hayward (Annals, p. 89) says that Grindal spent 720*l.* 'out of his proper estate.' Grindal was only too zealous, for if allowed he would have stripped the lead from St. Bartholomew's to cover St. Paul's (Strype, Life of Grindal, 93-6). The neglect of the Cathedral was, however, a scandal, and in 1581 the Lord Mayor wrote to Grindal, then Archbishop, 'that the walls were laid open and greatly spoiled with rain,' and prayed for his intervention, understanding that while bishop he 'not only gave of his own, but like his predecessors, had liberally borne some ordinary and yearly charge', and asking for his advice and that 'the yearly accounts of himself, his predecessors, and their officers might be seen for the city's information'. Grindal in reply wrote 'that he did in his time as much, or more, than either by law or reason he was bound' (Remembrancia, 322-7). If Grindal could clear himself it seems less certain that Aylmer (or Elmer), his successor, with whom, in 1581, the Corporation was in controversy, was blameless. Aylmer's son had to pay in 1597 over £4,000 for dilapidation of the church and bishop's houses. The misappropriation of the money is referred to in the play, Nobody and Somebody (Simpson, School of Shakespeare, i. p. 306):—

Nobody. I'll bring the tems through the middle of it, empty Moore-ditch at my own charge, and build up Paules-steeple without a collection. I see not what becomes of these collections.

Clowne. Why, Nobody receives them.

Nobody. I, knave?

Clowne. You, knave: or, as the world goes, Somebody receives all, and Nobody is blamed for it.

Nobody and Somebody was probably written in 1592, when the question was revived in Richard Rowland or Verstegen's Declaration of the True

Causes of the Great Troubles. Bacon, replying in Observations on a Libel, wrote of 'the gathering of Paul's steeple' as 'being but a voluntary collection of that men were freely disposed to give, never grew to so great a sum as was sufficient to finish the work, for which it was appointed, and so I imagine was converted to some better use'. (Life and Letters, i. 176, ed. Spedding.)

l. 25. Monumentes. See Kalendar and Lists of Obits observed in St. Paul's, temp. Richard II, ap. Sparrow-Simpson, Documents, &c., pp. 61-106, and pp. 194-202; Holland, Monumenta Sepulchraria Sancti Pauli, and Dugdale, History of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Stow's lists contain numerous errors, especially of dates. Note the following corrections:—

Hingham, 1311; Robert Monden, 1338 (Cal. Wills, i. 430—his brother John was already dead); Melford, 1336; Gilbert Brewer (or Bruer), 1353; Richard Wendover, 1252; Adam de Bery (or Bury), 1386; Roger Holmes, 1395; Thomas Euers (or Eure), 1400; Thomas More, 1421. Also: Ralph Donion (or Dongon), was Canon in the time of Edward II; Richard Newport, Archdeacon of Middlesex 1309, is the bishop, who died in 1318; Swereford is a better form than Swarford.

384, l. 25. what I haue heard by report, and haue partly seene. Stow might have witnessed this ceremony in his youth, or he may refer only to its revival in 1557, of which Machyn (Diary, 141) writes thus:—'The last day of June, Saint Pauls day, was a goodly procession at Saint Pauls. There was a priest of every parriche of the dyosses of Londun with a cope, and the bishop of Londun wayreng ys myter: and after came a fat buck, and ys hed with the hornes borne a-pone a baner-pole, and xl hornes blohyng asfor the boke and behynd.'

For a longer account of the grants of William and Walter Baud see Dugdale, History of St. Paul's, p. 12 (ed. Ellis). Camden mentions that he had seen the procession in his youth, no doubt referring to the revival of 1557 (Britannia, ii. 81, ed. Gough).

385, l. 37. to serue Duke Humfrey. Munday, in his edition of the Survey (p. 642, ed. 1633), adds: 'In idle and frivolous opinion of whom, some men, of late times, have made a solemn meeting at his tomb, upon St. Andrew's Day in the morning, before Christmas, and concluded on a breakfast or dinner; as assuring themselves to be servants, and to hold diversity of offices under the Good Duke Humphrey. Likewise on May Day, tankard-bearers, watermen, and some other of like quality besides, would use to come to the same tombe early in the morning, and (according to the other) have delivered serviceable presentation at the same monument, by strewing hearbes, and sprinkling faire water on it, as in the dutie of servants, and according to their degrees and charges in office. But as Master Stow hath discreetly advised such as are so merrily disposed, or simply professe themselves to serve Duke Humphrey in Pauls, if punishment of losing their dinners dayly there be not sufficient for them, they should be sent to S. Albons, to answeere there for their disobedience and long absence from their so highly well-deserving lord and master, because in their merrie disposition they please so to call him.'

St. Paul's was used regularly as a meeting-place to transact business (see note on p. 316 above). Fleetwood, writing to Cecil, speaks as a matter of course about going 'to Powles to learn some news', and of gossip, which had 'occupied Powles all last week' (Lansdowne MS. 24, ff. 22, 196). The aisles, and especially the neighbourhood of 'Duke Humphrey's Tomb', were the recognized haunts of loiterers, needy adventurers, and broken-down gallants. In Ben Jonson's Every Man in his Humour Captain Bobadil is called a 'Paul's man', and in Every Man out of his Humour (Act III. sc. i) another such rogue is described as: 'The most strange piece of military profession that ever was discovered in Insula Paulina.' This last jest is paralleled by Samuel Rowlands's satire on the traveller in conceit, whose 'journey is in Paules, in the back Isles' (Letting of Humours, &c., p. 46). From the loitering at St. Paul's of these knights of industry, who hoped there to earn a meal by their wits, 'to dine with Duke Humphrey' became a proverb for to go dinnerless. Rowlands begins a tale in his Knave of Clubs, p. 10, thus:—

Two hungry sharks did travell Paules, Untill their guts cried out,
And knew not how with both their wits,
To bring one meal about.

Thomas Nashe in Pierce Pennilesse (Works, ii. 18, ed. Grosart) writes:—'I hearing of this colde comfort . . . like a careles malecontent, that knew not which way to turne, retired me to Paules to seeke my dinner with Duke Humfrey.'

Similar references abound. The third chapter of Dekker's Guls Horn-booke is entitled 'How a Gallant should behave himself in Powles Walkes', and is full of curious information (Non-Dramatic Works ii. 229-37, ed. Grosart). See also Milman's Annals of St. Paul's, pp. 283-8, and Sparrow-Simpson's History of Old St. Paul's, 235-50.

338, l. 11. a merry poet. Holland, in his Monumenta Sepulchraria Sancti Pauli, which appeared in 1614, after quoting Stow, adds: 'And no doubt but the merry poet was the merry old man Stow himself.' The lines do not appear in the original draft in Harley MS. 538. Stow, of course, alludes to the mediaeval legend which made St. Christopher a giant. In a note on 'the longitude of men' in Lambeth MS. 306 one entry is: 'Crystoferus, xvij fote & viij ynches.'

Hatton's tomb was one of the sights of London, and others than Stow commented on its excessive size. So Corbet in his Iter Boreale:

Nor need the Chancellor boast, whose pyramis Above the host and altar is.

John Davies has an epigram:

Titus, the brave and virtuous young gallant,
Three years together in the town hath been,

Yet my Lord Chancellor's tomb he hath not seen,
Nor the new waterwork, nor the elephant.
I cannot tell the cause without a smile,
He hath been in the Counter all the while.

339, l. 8. *Pembrookes Inne. John of Brittany, Earl of Richmond, had a house near Ivy Lane and Eldedenes lane (Warwick Lane) in 1312 (Letter Book D, 291; but see also vol. i. p. 342 above). Then Mary de St. Pol (d. 1377), Countess of Pembroke and widow of Aymer de Valence (d. 1324), lived there (Letter Book G, 132; Cal. Wills, ii. 195). In 1352 she is described as owning 'unum turellum, aedificatum cum cameris et cellario' (Mun. Gild. II. ii. 455). Her husband's heirs, the Hastings Earls of Pembroke, were lords of Bergavenny, and were represented in the female line by Henry Neville (d. 1587), Lord Bergavenny. William Beauchamp, Lord Bergavenny, held 'Pembrokes Inn' in 1411, and Johanna his widow in 1436 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 332, iv. 167).

340, l. 29. *Margaret Queene of Scots. Clearly meant for Margaret of Scotland, who married first Hubert de Burgh and then Gilbert Marshal. See ii. 89.

l. 30. *Robert de Attabeto. Robert of Artois, Count of Beaumont-le-Roger, who died at London on Aug. 16, 1343. Stow's MS. list of the burials at Blackfriars is in Harley MS. 544, f. 68, where he writes 'Attrabeto'; also 'Hothe' (Howth) for 'Lioth' (p. 341, l. 4), and 'Nicholas Carre' for 'Nicholas Eare' (p. 341, l. 21). The list in Harley MS. 6033, f. 12, has 'the lord Hothe' and 'Nicholas Carrw'.

341, l. 13. *John Cornwall. He founded a 'Cornewail Chapel' at Blackfriars in 1437 for himself and his wife Elizabeth of Lancaster, Countess of Huntingdon (C. P. R. Henry VI, iii. 55-6); see Corrigenda.

l. 30. *sir Thomas Carden. Carden or Cawarden had a grant of Blackfriars on March 12, 1550. He died on Aug. 29, 1559 (Inq. p. m. Lond., i. 191-5). He was Master of the Revels and appropriated St. Anne's Church on the ground that it was required 'to lay in his Ma<sup>ties</sup> pavylyons, tentes, maskes, and reuels'. It was only under compulsion that he provided a room in its place (Chambers, Tudor Revels, 14, 15).

l. 39. *saint Michael ad Bladum. The meaning is shown clearly in the description of it in the reign of Henry III as St. Michael ubi bladum venditur (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 20; Cal. Wills, i. 3). In the list of 1303 it is St. Michael 'in Foro ad Bladum' (Mun. Gild. II. i. 229). Sometimes it is called simply St. Michael, Cheap, or St. Michael at Paul's gate. For Ælfgar, and his son Nicholas, priests of St. Michael about 1100, see Round, Geoffrey de Mandeville, 309-10.

342, l. 29. *a small passage. In 1378 complaint was made that the common passage which had existed time out of mind had been blocked, and order was given that the doorway should be reopened (Memorials, 417-18; Letter Book H, 89).

l. 37. *the prerogative court. Robert de Avesbury, the historian, who was Registrar of the Court of Canterbury, lived in Ivy Lane (Cal. Wills, ii. 7).

343, l. 4. Louels Inne. It was Lovell property in 1433 (Cal. Inq. p. m., iv. 73), but was forfeited by Francis, Viscount Lovell, in 1486, and granted in 1488 by Henry VII to Sir John Risley (Campbell, Mat. Hist. Henry VII, ii. 260), and by Henry VIII in 1513 to William Compton (Letters and Papers, i. 3761). Now represented by Lovell's Court.

l. 5. Eldenes lane. The original form was Elde-denes-lane, i.e. Old Dean's Lane, and there is reference to Venella Veteris Decani in the time of Henry III (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 9) and in 1286 (Cal. Wills, i. 78). In the next two centuries Oldedeneslane 1365, Eldeneslane 1379, and Eldedeneslane 1442, occur (id. ii. 85, 209, 497). In the sixteenth century it is Warwick lane, formerly called Alden's Lane. 'Werwyk lane' occurs as early as 1475 (Paston Letters, v. 223), and 'Warwicke lane' in 1506 (Chron. Lond. 261). Thomas de Beauchamp (d. 1369), Earl of Warwick, had his house in Eldeneslane, as also his son Thomas in 1401, and his grandson Richard in 1439, and Richard's daughter-in-law, Cicely, Duchess of Warwick, in 1450 (Cal. Inq. p. m. ii. 294, iii. 277, iv. 191, 241).

345, l. 13. Thomas Tomlinson, &c. Stow's account is based on a note furnished by a friend, and now preserved in Harley MS. 367, f. 47<sup>v</sup>:—

'A description of a vaute made for Thomas Tomlinson at the corner of Bredstreete in Cheapside.

'The vaute being digged fiteene feete deepe there was found the said pavement like vnto that of Cheapside now, and at the farther ende of the vaute in Cheapside at ye channel was found a tree sawed into fise steppes which were, as it shuld seme, to steppe over some brooke, and vppon the edge of the seid brooke (as it seemeth) there were found lying along the bodies of two greate trees, the endes whereof were then sawed, and were as firme timber then as at the first, when they fell; part also of the said trees remaine yet in the ground vndigged. It was all forced ground vntill they went past the trees aforesaid.'

Stow wrote a note at the side, but the margin has been cut. Thomas Tomlinson, skinner, died in 1612 (Cal. Wills, ii. 735).

When the Saracen's Head in Cheapside was rebuilt in 1844 a Roman tessellated pavement was found 16 to 18 feet below the street level (London Topographical Record, iv. 56).

l. 29. Goldsmithes Rowe. The goldsmiths had long occupied this part of Cheap. The Orfaveria in foro London is mentioned in the time of Henry III (Cal. Inq. post mortem, i. 917, new ed.), and in 1290 there is reference to a shop in the Goldsmithery opposite St. Peter, Wood Street (Cal. Wills, i. 94). For Stow's time see Webster and Marston, The Malcontent, Induction: 'I'll walk but once down by the Goldsmith's Row in Cheap, take notice of the signs and tell you them with a breath instantly. They begin as the world did, with Adam and Eve. There's in all just five and fifty.' Paul Hentzner, the German, in his Travels in England during the Reign of Elizabeth (p. 31, ed. Horace Walpole), writes: 'The streets in this city are very handsome and clean; but that which is named from the goldsmiths who inhabit it, surpasses all the rest; there is in it a gilt tower, with a fountain that plays. Near it on the further side is a handsome house, built by a goldsmith and presented by him to the City. There are besides to be seen in this street, as in all others where there are goldsmiths' shops, all sorts of gold and silver vessels exposed to sale, as well as ancient and modern medals, as must surprise a man the first time he sees and considers them.'

346, l. 6. Watheling streete, &c. See Leland, Collectanea, ii. 361-2: 'Nobilium via Athelingstreate, Watelingstreate corrupte.' Athelingestrate occurs in 1212 (Anc. Deeds, A. 1499), and instances during the thirteenth century are common, though some may refer to Addle Street (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 2, 4; Cal. Wills, i. 13, 46, 157, 419—date 1336). The London 'Watling Street' seems to occur first in 1307 (id. i. 186). For drapers of Watling Street in Stow's time see Greene's Tu Quoque (Old Plays, xi. 207, ed. Hazlitt):—'He fills his belly and never asks what's to pay: wears broad-cloth, and yet dares walk Watling St. without any fear of his draper.'

l. 26. Walter Turke, &c. This comes from a Cartulary of St. Mary Overy, as shown by Stow's note in Harley MS. 544, f. 100.

347, l. 7. two priests of this church, &c. This is reproduced verbatim from the London Chronicle in Harley MS. 540, f. 8<sup>vo</sup>.

l. 22. little damnified thereby. Wriothesley gives an almost identical account, except that he concludes: 'But the steeple was so perished that there was no mending of it but to take it downe' (Chronicle, ii. 146). Machyn (Diary, 209) says the dog was a spaniel.

l. 32. the yere 1300 and odde, &c. The edition of 1598 reads 'Cornishe gentleman'; that of 1603 'Cornishe gentlemen'; the latter with its faulty punctuation led Munday to read '1300, and certaine Cornish gentlemen 1312'. The true meaning appears in Harley MS. 538:—'about the yere of Christ 1300 and odd yeres. Cornishe, a gentleman, was buried there in the yere 1312.'

l. 33. William Palmer. Died 1349 (Cal. Wills, i. 538).

ll. 34-6. Iohn Shadworth . . . 1428. This is the date of his first will; he made a second in Jan. 1429. They were not proved till Oct. 1430 (Cal. Wills, ii. 452-3).

l. 37. Stephen Bugge, a draper, founded a chantry at St. Mildred's in 1430 (id. ii. 450).

348, l. 13. Basing lane. In spite of Stow's statement that he had not read of Basing 'to have anything there to do', the lane no doubt owed its name to an early owner. In 1275 Peter de Basinges made bequest of his house in Basing Lane (Cal. Wills, i. 20).

l. 22. On the South side, &c. This passage on Gerrard the Giant affords interesting illustrations of Stow's methods of composition, of his

'On the south syde of this lane is one greate house, of olde tyme builded of stone vpon arched vaultes vnder ground, with arched gates also of stone : but I haue not red who was the first builder thereof, neythar when the same was builded. It is at this present a comon Inn for recepte of travaylers, greatly frequented of carriers and of others : it is called Gerrard's Hall and sayde to be of a giaunte that ther dwelled, so named, but no authoritie is shewed, more than that of olde tyme the sayd howse hauinge a large and highe roofed hall, there stode in the midste thereof a mighty staffe, armed at the fore end with iron and stele ; it reached from the grownde or flowre to the very toppe of the hall, even as it were to towche or pierce it. This staffe is sayde to be one of them, that the sayde Gerard the Giaunt vsed to runne withal in his warres. Sure he had nede of a very greate horse to cary hym, that should wild suche a staffe, but I thinke he was no horseman but went all on his fete. There stode also a lathar of the same height iust by the staffe. I have sene them ofte, and inquired of the tenaunts the cawse of theyr being there, but they could make to me none other aunswere than that the one was Gerar's staffe (as ye have herd) and the laddar to ascend to the toppe thereof, to se the same staffe to be saffe, and not decayed. Of late yeres this hall is altered in buildinge, and dyvers romthes made of it. Notwithstandinge the staffe is removed to one corner of the hawle, whiche remayneth of height as afore, save that the poynt is broken off, but the laddar is broken or sawd shortar almoste by the one halfe, and the remenaunt thereof hanged on to a wall in the yarde. A servaunt of that howse (more curtise than his master) showed me the lengthe of the staffe by a wall's syde, where the sayd staffe was layde, whiles the romthes over the hall were in buildinge. I measured the ground and found it 50 foot in lengthe. But the master of the howse saythe the same to lak halfe a foote of 40 foote, which worde of his I must take for curraunt, for reason cowde he gyve me none. Neyther would he rise from his sete to show me eny ferther, but bad me rede the Chronicles, for there he had hard. This muche for the east syde of Bread Street.'

For the host's reference to the great Chronicles see William Harrison's Description of Brittain, ap. Holinshed, Chronicles, i. 21 : 'I could speake also of Gerard's staffe or lance, yet to be seene in Gerard's Hall at London in Basing lane, which is so great and long that no man can beweld it, neither go to the top thereof without a ladder, which of set purpose and for greater countenance of the wonder is fixed by the same.'

349, l. 3. John Leyland his Comentaries. As to Stow's transcripts of Leland, made in 1576, see Introduction, p. xxv. 'Reyne Wolfe's Chronicle' refers to Holinshed's Chronicles, to which was prefixed William Harrison's Description of the Island of Brittain. Harrison charged Leland with having 'made his notes intricate of set purpose', being 'loth that anie man should easilie come to that knowledge by reading which he with his great charge and no less travell attained unto by experience'. Hearne (ap. Leland, Collectanea, i. p. lv) censured Harrison for his 'unbecoming reflexions upon so great a man, from whom he borrowed the most valuable and judicious passages in his Description of Britain, his own Remarks being generally very mean and trivial.'

John Bagford, in his Letter relating to the Antiquities of London (id. i. p. lxix), wrote: "'Tis my opinion that Stow had in his possession Leland's Antiquities of London, and for want of Learning most grievously mangled the Work on purpose to make it his own.' The suggestion is quite unfounded; Stow's Collections prove how fully his work was based on his own research; he sometimes follows Leland without express acknowledgement, but sometimes also corrects him silently; compare vol. i. p. 137 with vol. ii. p. 143, and see note on p. 290. Most of the references to Leland in the Survey appear to be to the extant Collectanea and not to any lost work, though the note on the Library at St. Peter's, Cornhill (vol. i. p. 194), does imply something more explicit than the bald reference in Collectanea, iv. 48.

l. 9. R. G. in his briefe collection of Histories. On f. ii of the Manuell published in 1565. For Stow and Grafton's quarrel see Introduction, pp. viii to xii.

l. 26. I reade that John Gisors, &c. Stow's account of the Gisors family here and on i. p. 248 is not clear. I cannot solve all difficulties, but some notes will be of service. The first John Gisors of importance was mayor in 1245 and 1259, and was prominent in civic history for many years after. He is probably the John, son of Peter de Gysors, whose will was proved in 1282 (Cal. Wills, i. 57). For Peter, son of Laurence Gisors see i. p. 245 above. John (d. 1282) was probably father of John Gisors, who was alderman of Vintry Ward circa 1283-93 (id. i. 702-3) and died in 1296, leaving by his wife Margery four sons, John, Anketin, Thomas, and Henry (id. i. 128). Margery died in 1305, when her son John was twenty-six years old and more (Calendarium Genealogicum, ii. 678). The third John Gisors became Alderman of Vintry Ward in 1307 (Letter Book C, 178). He was Mayor in 1311, 1312, and 1314, but as a consequence of the charge of having wrongfully admitted one guilty of felony to the freedom of the city—see i. 51 above—was removed from his Aldermanry in March, 1321 (Letter Book E, 138). He was a supporter of the Mortimers and of Queen Isabel, and was joint constable of the Tower in Nov. 1326 (Ann. Paulini, 305, 318), but took no further part in civic government. He died in Jan. 1351, and was buried at St. Martin in the Vintry. In his will he mentions John, his grandfather, his parents John and Margery, and two wives, Isabella and Alice. His heirs were his granddaughters Margaret (wife of Henry Picard) and Felicia (who married Thomas Travers—see i. 299), daughters of Thomas Gisors (apparently the Sir Thomas of i. 299); and two sons, Edward and Nicholas, and a daughter, Juliana (Cal. Wills, i. 643-5). In his will he is described as vintner (like most of his family), but is elsewhere called a pepperer. Anketin de Gisors was alderman of Aldgate from Jan. 1312 (Letter Book D, 15), and died before 1343 (id. G, 3). Henry de Gisors (d. 1343), vintner, was alderman of Cornhill in 1330-4 (Letter Book E, 256, 281); it was he, and not William de Gisors (as stated on p. 349), who was sheriff in 1329 (id. F, 284; see also ii. 164, above). References to a Thomas Gisors, vintner, occur in the latter part of the reign of Edward III (Letter Book G, 286), and to John and Henry de Gisors under Richard II (C. P. R. Rich. II, iv. 3, 458). I have not been able to trace their relationship.

l. 17. the prisoners were remoued. For an Act of the Common Council ordering the removal, and dated 19th Sept. 1556, see Munday, Survey, 937, ed. 1633. The Bread Street Compter had been hired by the keepers from the Goldsmiths' Company. The letting of the new Compter was expressly forbidden. See also Wriothesley's Chronicle, ii. 42.

351, l. 10. S. I. Euangelist. Anciently it was called St. Werburga, viz. in 1249, 1278, 1303, and 1321 (Cal. Charter Rolls, i. 339; Cal. Wills, i. 34, 290; Mun. Gild II. i. 230). In 1349 it is St. John Evngelist and St. Wereburga (Cal. Wills, i. 596). In Harley MS. 538 Stow adds dates of death, viz. Doggett, 1524; Askew, 1534; Dobbes, 1556; Dane, 1573; Allet 'deceased in his mayoralitie.'

l. 15. S. Margaret Moyes. The name may be due to 'Moyses sacerdos', who occurs in deeds at St. Paul's about 1142. The church is called St. Margaret Moses in 1256 (Hist. MSS. Comm., 9th Rep. 15, 62, 68). Nicholas Bray founded a chantry here in 1449 (Cal. Wills, ii. 516).

1. 23. Distaffe lane. 'Distar' is an error of Stow's. The record of 1438 is a grant of 'Le Lambe' in 'Distafane' to Robert Prik and Richard Stanes (C. P. R. Henry VI, iii. 160, 193; for later grants see id. Edw. IV, i. 297, 437, and iii. 422; Campbell, Mat. Hist. Henry VII, i. 21; Letters and Papers, i. 1070). 'Distavlane' occurs in 1260 and 1295, and 'Distafane' in 1301 (Cal. Wills, i. 9, 123, 154), and so commonly thereafter.

VOL. II

1, l. 16. Spuren lane. 'Sporuneslane' in 1271 (Anc. Deeds, C. 1910), 'Sporounelane' in 1295, and 'Sporenlane' in 1406 (Cal. Wills, i. 120, ii. 562). 'Hoggenelane' in the parish of Trinity the Less occurs in 1329 and 1375 (id. i. 357, ii. 181).

1. 20. Finimore lane. 'Fynamoures lane' in 1316 (Cal. Wills, i. 263). It is now called Fyefoot Lane.

1. 24. Desboorne lane. Stow's authority is clearly Letter Book F, 184. The lane was granted to John de Gildisburgh under licence from the king, with permission to build over it subject to leaving a gutter to carry off the water. It lay between the tenements of Sir Edward de Montacute and Walter (not William) Gladewyn, and is described as containing in length 215 feet from the king's highway to the Thames, and seven feet wide at the commencement and in the middle, but only an ell at the bottom (C. P. R. Edw. III, viii. 149). Five years before, in 1343, complaint was made that the lane was blocked up and impassable (Mun. Gild. II, ii. 452). It would seem to be identical with the 'venella que vocatur Deneburgate', or 'Denebureghlane', which was alleged to be obstructed in 1275 (Hundred Roll, i. 418-9, 433).

2, l. 27. S. Nicholas Cold Abbey. It is St. Nicholas Coldhabeay in 1378, and usually appears as Coldabbey in various spellings (Cal. Wills, i. 32, 195, 640). Stow's last derivation connecting it with Cold Harbour is probably correct. There are similar instances in the manor of Coldabbey in Surrey, and the tenement called 'le Coldabbeye' in Windagain Lane (id. ii. 45, 373). The church is sometimes called 'atte Coldeabbey' (id. ii. 198, 522).

1. 28. Barnard Randolph. See note on p. 285.

4, l. 11. Thomas Lewen. In Harley MS. 538, 'deceased 1554' is added.

l. 18. Blitheman. In Harley MS. 538 the epitaph is given :—

Who feared God above;
A friend to all, a foe to none,
Whome riche and pore did love.

Of Princes' chaple gentleman Unto his dieinge day,
Wher all toke greate delight to heare
Hym on the organs play.

Whose passing skill in musyke's arte
A scholar left behind;
John Bull, by name, his master's veyne Expressing in eche kynde.

But nothing here continuethe longe,
Nor resting place can have;
His sowle departed henc to heven,
His body here in grave.

This epitaph is given in Munday's edition of the Survey, p. 399, where it is stated that he died on Whitsunday, 1591. A few of William Blitheman's compositions are extant; they show that he was a master of his art, and that Bull owed much to his influence (Dict. Nat. Biog. v. 222).

5, l. 1. John Glocester Alderman, 1345. In Harley MS. 538 'deceased 1355' is added. This is correct (Cal. Wills, i. 687). But Salt Wharf was given to the church by his son John, who died in 1362 (id. ii. 64).

l. 16. a Record. See the writ and patents in Letter Book H, 447-8: providing, however, for Hallmotes twice a year as of old accustomed, and for the election of six persons, viz. two each from Bridge Street, Old Fish Street, and Stockfishmonger Row to govern the mistery. Compare i. 214 above. See also Mun. Gild. II. i. 397-408.

l. 32. Richard Marlowe. In Harley MS. 538 'deceased 1422'. This is shown to be correct by his will, where his name is spelt 'Merlawe'; but he was a native of Marlow (Cal. Wills, ii. 428).

6, l. 1. Saint Mary Summerset. In a deed of Prior Stephen (1170-87) there is mention of Ernald the priest of St. Mary Sumerset (Anc. Deeds, A. 2423). The name may be derived from Ralph de Sumery, who occurs about the same date (id. A. 2364, 2406). For the church and its monuments see Trans. Lond. and Midd., iii. 253-84.

l. 5. Edreds Hithe. The name 'Ætheredys Hythe' occurs in 899 in a Charter of Alfred (Kemble, Cod. Dipl. mlxxiv). Henry I gave it to his queen Matilda. Matilda, queen of Stephen, gave rents from Edreds hythe to Trinity (Cotton Charter, xvi. 35). In a charter of Henry II it is described as 'Ripa Reginae que appellatur Atheres hithe' (Mon. Angl., vi. 635). Isabel, queen of John, gave it to her son Richard of Cornwall (Hundred Roll, i. 414). For William of Ypres' charter, see Ancient Charters, No 32 (Pipe Roll Soc.). See also Madox, Hist. Exchequer, i. 781. St. Michael, Queenhithe, is called St. Michael de 'Ædredes huda' about 1148, and 'de Hutha Regina' about 1220 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 22, 63).

The charter of Alfred, above referred to, is a grant to Plegmund, archbishop of Canterbury, which was no doubt the origin of the later Canterbury soke. (Mun. Gild. I. 241; cf. i. 41 and ii. 7 above.)

7, l. 22. woorepath and Anede Hith. See the record from the Liber Memorandum on the Customs of Queenhithe, ap. Mun. Gild. III. 445-8, where a note is quoted from the Liber Horne stating that Werepath or Worphath is in the east part of the Flete of Barking, seven miles east of London, and Anedehithe near Westminster.

8, l. 30. Witnesses. The names are very corrupt. The Charter in Mun. Gild. II. i. 47 reads: 'Hiis testibus, Radulpho filio Nicholai, Ricardo de Grey, Johanne et Willelmo, fratribus ejus, Paulino Peyvre, Radulpho de Waunci, Johanne Gumbaude et aliis.'

l. 38. customs of this Queene Hithe. They are given in the Liber Albus, see Mun. Gild. I. 241-3. Strype gives an English translation from the Liber Horne. The original has 'Wolsiesgate in Corderia' (the Ropery) for 'Wolsey Street in the parish of All hallowes the Less', and 'Berchenes lane' instead of Stow's 'Bircheovers'. For complaints as to abuses at Queenhithe see Hundred Rolls, i. 403 sqq.

9, l. 22. Roomeland. The name given to an open space near a dock where ships could discharge. There was a 'Rome land' at Billingsgate, described in the Husting Rolls as 'a platt of grounde raylled abowte called Rome lande on the west parte of Byllyngesgate'. In 1347 there is reference to 'le Roumland' near Crutched Friars (Letter Book F, 175, with note by Dr. Sharpe). For cleansing of 'Roumeland' at Queenhithe in 1368, see Letter Book G, 221. 'La Roumlonde' at Queenhithe is mentioned in 1311 and 1373 (Cal. Wills, i. 222; ii. 161).

10, l. 17. John Cooke. By will, dated October 16, 1542, and proved January 13, 1544, he bequeathed to the city his capital messuage called the Duke of Norfolk's place and other messuages at Broken Wharf (Cal. Wills, ii. 648). See Stow's subsequent statement on ii. 11. For the lane called 'le Tymber hith prope le Brokene Wharf' and 'Timber hythe otherwise called Broken Wharf' see Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep., 17-18-14th century. For 'le Brokenewharf' in 1274, see Anc. Deeds, A. 1875.

11, l. 19. Chartsey . . . and was their Inne. In the Chertsey Register (Cotton MS., Vitellius, A. xiii. f. 31) it is described as a court 'in urbe Londonia sitam super ripam Thamisie fluminis in occidentali parte urbis ipsius contra austrum uergens prope portum quod ipsi urbani fishchupe uocant, id est porta piscis'. For le Fisshwharf in St. Mary, Somerset, see Cal. Wills, i. 496, and Mun. Gild. II, i. 406, ii. 453.

13, l. 1. Beumounts Inne. As 'Newe Inne' it belonged in 1397 to William de Montagu, Earl of Salisbury (Cal. Ing. p. m. iii. 203, 259).

On the attainder of his nephew John in 1400 it fell to the king. Then it seems to have been held by Edward, Duke of York, and by Queen Joanna (C. P. R. Henry IV, iii. 2) and later by Sir Thomas Erpingham (Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 125). On October 28, 1440, Henry VI granted it to William Phelip, Lord Bardolf, with remainder to John, Viscount Beaumont, who had married his only daughter and heiress (C. P. R. Henry VI, iii. 120, 473). After the forfeiture in 1462 of John's son William it was granted as 'Newe Inne alias Beaumontes Inne' in June, 1475, to William Hastings (id. Edw. IV, ii. 517, cf. Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 322). Hastings was ancestor of the Earls of Huntingdon.

l. 9. Scrupes Inne. So held by Sir William FitzHugh in 1453. His father Henry, who seems to have held it in 1425, was son of Joan daughter of Henry, first Lord Scrope of Masham. Stephen Scrope, second lord, held it in 1406 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 307, iv. 84, 256).

l. 21. of Baynard, &c. See i. 61 above. In Harley MS. 538 the history of the FitzWalters is placed here.

l. 27. Legates Inne. 'Legates place juxta Baynards Castle' belonged to Margaret Talbot, Countess of Shrewsbury, in 1467 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 341).

l. 19. Barklies Inne. Thomas, Lord Berkeley, held it in 1416; his daughter Elizabeth married Richard de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, who held it in 1439 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 31, 191).

l. 33. Queene Mary gaue it, &c. The Earl of Derby had exchanged it with Edward VI for lands in Lancashire. Cf. Acts Privy Council, iv. 70.

17, l. 13. Powles Brewhouse. The bracinum' or brewhouse of St. Paul's is mentioned in 1162, and the 'Paules hede' opposite the bakehouse in 1456 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 12, 27). It is called 'Pouleshede' near Poulescheyne in 1444 (Cal. Wills, ii. 503).

l. 17. somtime letten to the Blunts. 'The capital house lately called Mountjoye place, and now anglice called the Doctors' Commons' (Inq. p. m. London, iii. 106—date 1587).

18, l. 18. Do Little lane. Now Knightriders Court. The name occurs as 'Do lyttle' or 'Do lite' lane in 1294 (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th. Rep. 19).

l. 21. Sermon lane, for Sheremoniers lane. It occurs as Sarmoneres lane in deeds from the reign of Henry III onwards, and in 1279 there is reference to a tenement of Adam le Sarmoner (id. 13, 19).

19, l. 3. a tempest of wind. Stow in his Memoranda (p. 134) writes thus: 'The xxij day of Decembar, beyng Sondaye, at nyghte, in anno 1565, was a greate tempest of wynde where thrwge many persons were drownyd on the Thams and other placis, and the great gattes at the West ende of S. Pawls church in London, wher is the brasen pillar, was blowne wyde open, the wynd beyng in y<sup>e</sup> west was of suche force.'

l. 15. the Lowlards Tower. Often confused with the Lollards Tower at Lambeth, where the use of the name appears to be inaccurate and of much later date. For the history of the Lollards Tower see Sparrow-Simpson, Documents illustrating the History of St. Pauls, pp. 214-18, Camden Soc.; and History of Old St. Paul's, 113-26.

21, l. 29. windagaine Lane. 'Wandayenes lane' in 1309, and Wandageynes lane' in 1337 (Cal. Wills, i. 204, 422). 'Turnagayne' Lane in 1430 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 126).

22, l. 3. which house is also of this ward. Stow is in error; the Liberty of the Rolls is not now, and never has been in the City. Similarly he includes the liberty of St. Martin's in Aldersgate Ward, though it was not incorporated in the City till somewhat later.

l. 28. in the yeare 1102. According to the Liber Fundacionis S. Bartholomei, cap. vii, the real date was 1123; but the same authority speaks of it as 'Henrico primo anno xxx et circiter tercium regni eius'. See Dr. Norman Moore's edition of the English Book of Foundation, p. liv, and Mon. Angl., vi. 292. Cotton MS., Vesp., B. ix contains a copy of the Latin original composed about 1180, together with an English version made about 1400.

l. 29. Alfune, &c. Stow is following the Liber S. Bartholomei (u. s. cap. xxii) where Alfune is described as an old man, who had not long before built the church of St. Giles. But in a deed at St. Paul's it is stated that in the reign of Henry I, Aelmund, the priest, granted to the chapter the church of St. Giles, which he had built outside the wall of the City (Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 62).

23, l. 11. John Coke, Treasurer of the Hospital, compiled a Rental, which he began in the 'thirty-seventh year of his profession and sixty-fourth of his age' in 1456, and completed in 1468 (Morley, Memoirs of Bartholomew Fair, 25-6; Dict. Nat. Biog., xi. 223). Wakering was master from 1422 to 1466.

l. 14. Walter Cope. He was a member of the old Society of Antiquaries before Feb., 1590, was knighted April 20, 1603, made Chamberlain of the Exchequer in 1609, and died in 1614. He was the original builder of Holland House, which he called Cope Castle; it passed with his only daughter to Henry Rich, afterwards first Earl of Holland. See Hearne, Curious Discourses, ii. 427; Dict. Nat. Biog. xii. 168.

l. 15. Monumentes. There is a list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 57, which supplies the following variants: Adam Hore (l. 16); Sir Thomas Palefant, baron of Winva, Lord St. George, Oncketon, and Pille (l. 21);

l. 32. John Shirley. Shirley's transcripts of Chaucer, Lydgate, and other poets are of great value and importance. Nothing is known of his life except what Stow here records, save that in 1440 he was living in London. Translations by him of 'The Lamentable Cronycle of the dethe and false murdere of James Stewarde, late kynge of Scotys' and of two other small pieces are contained in Additional MS. 5467. Shirley's MSS. are Harley, 78, 2251, 7333, and Additional 16165, in the British Museum; Askmole 59, in the Bodleian Library; Trinity College, Cambridge, R. 3, 20; and the Sion College MS. In Additional MS. 29729 are some poems of Lydgate's 'copyed out of ye boke of John Shirley by John Stowe'. See Skeat, Chaucer, i. 25, 53-9 and Dict. Nat. Biog. lii. 133.

27, l. 19. priviledge of fayre. The fair existed before 1133, when Henry I granted a charter of protection (Mon. Angl., vi. 296). The charter of Henry II, granted circa 1156-62, was confirmed by Henry III in 1253 (Cal. Charter Rolls, ii. 368-70). For the history of the fair see Morley, Memorials of Bartholomew Fair; for a description of the fair in Stow's time see Ben Jonson's Bartholomew Fair, and in the early part of the nineteenth century Hone, Everyday Book, i. 1166-1251. The fair was held for the last time in 1855.

28, l. 36. brokers, &c. See Webster, Northward Ho! Act II, sc. i: 'All the brokers in Long Lane had rifled their wardrobe.' Taylor, the Water-poet, writes in Three Weeks from London to Hamburgh, p. 1:— 'Like a desperate pawn had lain seven years in lavender on sweeting in Long Lane, or amongst the dogged inhabitants of Houndsditch.'

Long Lane was perhaps called after William le Long of Portepul, who held land here before 1249 (Anc. Deeds, B. 2330). Richard le Lung 'feleper' (fripper or broker) is mentioned in 1279 (Letter Book A, 30).

29, l. 4. Horse-poole. So called in 1384 (Letter Book H, 236).

l. 14. Prior of Semperingham. As last master of the order Robert Holgate, Archbishop of York, owned it, and died there on Nov. 15, 1555 (Inq. p. m. Lond. i. 142).

l. 21. markets of horses and cattle. In Henry IV, Pt. 2, Act I, sc. ii, Falstaff says of Bardolph: 'I bought him in Paul's, and he'll buy me a horse in Smithfield: if I could get me a wife in the stews, I were manned, horsed, and wived.' So Burton (Anatomy of Melancholy, Part 3, Sec. 3, Mem. 4, subs. 2): 'He that marries a wife out of a suspected inn or alehouse, buys a horse in Smithfield, and hires a servant in Paul's, as the diverb is, shall likely have a jade to his horse, a knave for his man, an arrant honest woman to his wife.'

33, l. 25. Chamberlaine gate. Stow follows Leland: 'Parochia S. Sepulchri extra Chamberlaingate, quae nunc ut videtur Newgate appellatur (Collectanea, ii. 361). 'Newgate . . . formerly Chamberlain gate' (Camden, Britannia, ii. 80, ed. Gough). From Domesday (i. 127)

it appears that William the Chamberlain paid 6s. a year for his vineyard at Holeburn. This shows that the Chamber had property outside Newgate in 1086, and explains the name. Stow calls the Old Bailey the 'court of the Chamberlaine' on ii. 21, 37.

l. 31. one of the Pophames. Sir John Popham (d. 1463); he was chancellor of Anjou and Maine, and captain of St. Suzanne. The Popham referred to on p. 34 was his cousin Stephen (d. 1445-6), whose daughters were Sir John's co-heiresses. See ii. 47 above and Dict. Nat. Biog., xlv. 146-7.

34, l. 12. Clamparde. The list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 55, has Clamberd.

l. 38. Scropes Inne. It belonged to Richard, first Lord Scrope of Bolton (d. 1403), and in 1459 to Henry, fourth lord (Cal. Inq. p. m., iv. 284). Afterwards it was Sergeants Inn till its restoration to John the fifth lord in 1494 (Inq. p. m. Lond., i. 7). John Cottyngham (d. 1560) and Henry Gaynsford (d. 1574) were later owners (id. ii. 90, iii. 7).

35, l. 16-17. William de Luda . . . gaue this house. Stow gives the terms of William de Luda's will correctly (see Cal. Wills, i. 138). But William's immediate predecessor, John de Kirkeby, had in 1290 left the bishopric of Ely his houses at Holborn, together with his vines and gardens (id. i. 90). The validity of Kirkeby's will was disputed. The rights of the Bishop of Ely against Kirkeby's heirs were only established in 1321 (Hist. MSS. Comm., 6th Rep., 295 b, 298 b).

ll. 35-6. feastes . . . by the Sergeants at the law. See Pulling, Order of the Coif, 234-7. Stow's account of the feast of 1464 adds some details to the longer narrative in Gregory's Chronicle, 222. For a feast kept at Ely Place by the Sergeants on Nov. 21, 1495, see Chron. Lond., 207-8. On Nov. 23, 1503, the feast was kept at Lambeth, id. 260.

37, l. 19. Furniualles Inne. It occurs as an Inn of Chancery in the reign of Henry IV. The heiress of the Furnivals brought it to John Talbot, first Earl of Shrewsbury, whose descendant sold it to the society in 1546 (Herbert, Inns of Court, 324-8).

l. 35. Chamberlaines . . . kept their courts. This seems to be an unwarranted conjecture on Stow's part. The deed of 1356 is simply a lease to John Cambridge (cf. Letter Books G, 121, 279, and I, f. ccxxxi) relating to property of the corporation here. See R. R. Sharpe, Memorials of Newgate Gaol, p. 9.

38, l. 22. Seacole lane, I thinke called Limeburners lane. Seacole Lane and Limeburners Lane were distinct. In 1308 John Hereward left his daughter 'shops in Secollane and Lymbarnereslane' (Cal. Wills, i. 204).

l. 33. Shoe lane. It occurs as 'Vicus de Solande' in the time of King John (e.g. Cotton MS., Faustina, B. II, f. 83<sup>vo</sup>), and as 'Sholonde' in 1272. In 1283 Roger de Scholond had tenements in Scholane (Cal. Wills, i. 12, 67).

l. 36. Oldborne Hall. See note on p. 372 below.

l. 39. a Grammer schoole. See vol. i. 73 and note on p. 321.

39, l. 26. Thaues Inne. In early records it is always 'Davyesinne', as in 1419 when it belonged to Robert Plesyngton (Cal. Inq. p. m., iv. 40). But in the will of John Tavy (d. 1348) there is mention of his hospice in St. Andrew, Holborn, 'ubi apprenticii habitare solebant' (Letter Book F, 102; Cal. Wills, i. 619). A John Davy occurs as holding lands in Holborne in 1398 (id. ii. 332). See Herbert, Inns of Court, 322-4.

l. 29. so called of Fewters (or idle people). Stow is no doubt correct. Fetter Lane is probably the Viter lane without Newgate which occurs in 1294 and 1299 (Cal. Wills, i. 119, 139). Faitereslane appears in 1312, the new lane called Faitur Lane in 1352; other forms in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries are Faytores lane, Faitours lane, Faytours lane and Faitour-lane (id. i. 230, 252, 698; ii. 44, 167, 591). Faitour, faytor, or fayter, means an impostor, a cheat, especially a vagrant, who shams illness or pretends to tell fortunes (N. E. D.). Such persons, no doubt, infested the western suburb, as the wise-women and fortune-tellers of Stow's own time did the north-eastern suburbs of Shoreditch and Hoxton (cf. Heywood's Wise Woman of Hogsdon). The suggestion that the name is due to fewters or fetters (the rests for a spear) made here by armourers (Mr. Loftie in N. and Q., 8th ser. xii. 161) is untenable. 'Fewter' Lane occurs commonly in Elizabeth's reign (Inq. p. m. London, iii. 94, 150, 153).

40, l. 15. Staple Inne. It is mentioned as 'le Stapled halle' in St. Andrew, Holborn, in 1333, when it belonged to Richard Starcolf, Mercer (Cal. Wills, i. 394). There were two other Stapled halls; one in All-hallows, Barking, mentioned in 1330 (id. i. 363); the other in St. Botolph's without Bishopsgate, mentioned 1330-46 (Letter Book E, 251). In this connexion the name meant no more than a wholesale storehouse. Staple Inn in Holborn is stated to have become an Inn of Chancery in 1413. It was rebuilt 1580-92. For its history see Staple Inn by E. Williams.

l. 32. Roberte Leweland. He claimed, in 1198, to have custody of the King's house, and Fleet prison by inheritance since the Conquest (Madox, Hist. Exchequer, i. 514).

42, l. 17. returned againe to the Cliffordes. Probably it was only leased, for it appears as Clifford property in 1390, 1422, and 1455 (Cal. Inq. p. m. iii. 114, iv. 67, 266). It was acquired by the Society at a rental of 4*l.* soon after the last date (Herbert, Inns of Court, 274).

l. 21. Sergeantes Inne. Anciently called Farringdon Inne (Herbert, Inns of Court, 352-5).

l. 39. William Burstall. The grant of 1377 is printed in full in Holinshed, Chronicles, iv. 365.

48, l. 13. Nocton Parke. The house in Chancery Lane, formerly called Harflu Inn, part of the possessions of Nocton Park Priory, was assured to the Six Clerks in 1539 (Letters and Papers, xiv. 867, c. 27). For references in 1454, see Mon. Angl. vi. 341, and Cal. Inq. p. m. iv. 261.

l. 36. Bridewell. It was surely from Stow that Dekker borrowed his description, in The Honest Whore, Part 2 (Works, ii. 167):—

Duke. Your Bridewell? that the name? for beauty, strength Capacity and forme of ancient building, (Besides the Rivers neighbourhood) few houses
Wherein we keep our Court can better it.

1st Master. Hither from forraigne Courts have Princes come,
And with our Duke did Acts of State commence,
Here that great Cardinall had first audience,
(The grave Campayne); that Duke dead, his Sonne
(That famous Prince) gaue free possession
Of this his Palace, to the Cittizens,
To be the poore man's ware-house; and endowed it
With Lands to th' valew of seven hundred marke,
With all the bedding and the furniture,
Once proper (as the Lands then were) to an Hospitall Belonging to a Duke of Savoy. Thus Fortune can tosse the World, a Princes Court
Is thus a prison now.

The grant of Edward VI is printed in Gent. Mag. Library, xv. 182-9.

45, l. 28. Chauntries. Ulsthorpe in 1432, Evesham in 1351, and Wigan in 1360 (Cal. Wills, i. 652, ii. 25, 469).

46, l. 2. John Bale. He describes the introduction of the Carmelites to England, and the foundation of their first house at Aylesford in Kent by Richard Grey of Codnor in 1241, in his Heliades, ap. Harley MS. 3838, ff. 13, 14, 20.

l. 22. There were buried, &c. The names in the printed list are somewhat corrupt. A manuscript list of Stow's (Harley MS. 544 ff. 67-8), and another contemporary list ap. Harley MS. 6033, f. 9, give some help; the latter appears to have been consulted by Strype. 'John Mowbery . . . 1398,' probably means John IV (d. 1383); there is no date in either of the MSS. Bayholt is 'Bayllhot' in 544, and 'Baylhott' in 6033. 'Elizabeth, Countess of Athole' is probably the wife of David de Strabolgi, and afterwards of John Malwayn; she died in 1374 (Cal. Inq. p. m. ii. 337). 'Sir Pence Castle' is 'Sir Pons Castle, Baron of —' in 6033; perhaps Pontius, Lord of Castelhon in Gascony (Wylie, Henry IV, iii. 276). 'Sir Richard Derois' is 'Deroys' in 544, and 'de Royes' in 6033. 'Ashley' is 'Asteley' and 'Call' is 'Cawlle' in 544. 'Neddow' is 'Meddow' both in 544 and 6033. For 'Dame Margaret' Strype suggests Margaret Grey (d. 1540), Countess of Kent. Peter Wigus is in 544 Peter Wignis (? Wigornensis), and in 6032 Peter Wygich. 'Robert Mathew' is Metham in 544, and 'Matham' in 6033. 'Norice' is 'Norres', and 'Terwit' Tirwhit in 544. 'Robert Brocket' is Brockas ('Brocas') in both MSS. 'Chanlowes' is Chalouns, 'Dabby' Dalby, and 'Bampton' Lampton in 6033. For 'Thomas Federinghey' both MSS. have Dame — Foderinghey, and for 'Eldsmere' Elsmere; also William Hart and John Heron. 'Archer' is 'Awcher' in 6033. For 'Peter de Mota' 544 has Peter de Muta, and 6033 Peter de Mora. 'Hugh Bromflete' is Henry Bromflete

(d. 1469), lord Vessey; Stow seems to have confused him with John de Vesci (fl. 1250), who was associated with Richard de Grey in introducing the Carmelites to England.

Both MSS. add: Joan Wollasell, Gentlewoman, Elizabeth, wife of Robert Tanfield, John Ynglowe, Henry Bedle, and Richard Beynton.

50, l. 9. Fabian. Apparently in his MS.

l. 12. the new Temple. It was granted in 1313 to Aymer de Valence, who released it to Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, in 1314 (Letter Book E, 229; C. P. R. Edw. II, ii. 184). On Lancaster's death it was regranted to Aymer de Valence (Foedera, ii. 480), but again lapsed to the crown in 1324, and was then granted to Hugh le Despenser. See Williams, Staple Inn, p. 53.

51, l. 2. crose legged as men vowed to the holy land. This is a popular notion unsupported by fact. Effigies of known Crusaders are found with the legs uncrossed, and cross-legged effigies of knights (and even ladies) who never went to Palestine, or died long after the Crusades were over. See Hartshorne, Recumbent Monumental Effigies in Northants, p. 119. For the tombs in the Temple Church see Vetusta Monumenta V, xix-xxv, Gough, Sepulchral Monuments, i. 24, 50; and Baylis, The Temple Church, 94-115. The ascription of them is open to question.

l. 23. by Sir Amias Paulet. Cf. Annales, p. 835, ed. 1605. In Harley MS. 538 the story is repeated at length. Briefly it is as follows: Paulet, for some offence, when Wolsey was but a schoolmaster, put him in the stocks. When Wolsey became chancellor he forbade Paulet to leave London. Paulet then rebuilt the gate-house of the Middle Temple, and adorned it with Wolsey's arms, hoping thus to appease his wrath.

52, l. 6. Having treated of Wardes, &c. In Harley MS. 544, ff. 96-9, there is a rough and early draft of this chapter: 'Of the Borough of Southwarke in the County of Southrey.' 'Now leauinge the City of Westminster, the farthest west part of suburbes without the Citye of London, I am to pase ovar the Thames & to say some what of Southwarke, a boroghe so called for that the same lyeth on the south syde of the Ryvar of Thamys directly agaynst the citye of London, and at the south syde of the bridge. This broughe beinge in the county of Sothorey consisteth of dyvars stretes, wayes, &c.' The narrative then continues with only slight variations to 'bad men to lyke women' on p. 54. Then it proceeds: 'The originall of this privilege I have not red, but I have sene a patent thereof dated the 19 of E. 3'; and so continues with little variation to 'before that any bridge was builded' (on p. 56). Then a long passage (pp. 56-60) is lacking. The events of 1376-7 are given rather more in detail. The notice of the Tabard and Chaucer is omitted. The account of St. Thomas Hospital is shorter and differently arranged, and the subsequent narrative down to 'diuided into sundrie tenements' (p. 65) does not appear. There is an important addition on Sir John Throston (see below), and after this the narrative continues nearly as printed to 'Earles of Sussex' (p. 67), where it stops. Stow then states that having treated of the suburbs, &c., he is next to enter the city: compare note on pp. 285-6 above.

Five jayles or prisons are in Southwarke placed,
The Counter once St. Margaret's church defaced,
The Marshalsea, the King's Bench, and White Lyon, Then there 's the Clinke where handsome lodgings be.

54, l. 5. two Beare gardens. The two rings are shown in Hofnagel's and Agas's maps, and marked separately as 'The bolle-bayting' and 'The Beare-bayting'. They were a little to the east of the landing-place at Paris-Garden (see Introduction, p. xl above).

l. 15. In a Parliament, &c. For a transcript of 'Ordinances touching the governance of the Stew-houlders in Southwarke vnder the direction of the bishope of Winchester, instituted in the tyme of Henry the Second', see Harley MS. 293, ff. 62-7.

55, l. 9. Also I find, &c. In Harley MS. 544 this reads: 'More I find in one olde boke fayre written in parchement in the reigne of Richard the Second that in the 4 yere of his reigne, &c.' This is interesting, as showing that Stow used the original of the Liber S. Mariae Ebor. or Anominalle Chronicle (see Introduction, p. xxxiii), and was not dependent on Thynne's transcript.

l. 15. Fabian writeth. This does not appear in the printed continuation, and must come from Stow's manuscript. See Introduction, p. xxxv.

57, l. 36. speculum meditantis. This work, long believed to have been lost, was identified by Mr. G. C. Macaulay in 1895, with a poem entitled Mirour de l'Homme, contained in the Cambridge University Library Additional MS. 1891, and was printed by him in his edition of Gower's Works, vol. i. pp. 1-334.

For the inscriptions on Gower's tomb see id. iv. pp. xxii sqq., viz.:

Charitée.	En toy qu'es fitz de dieu le pere, Sauvé soit que gist souz cest pierre.
Mercye.	O bon Jesu, fai ta mercy Al alme dont le corps gist ci.
Pité.	Pur ta pité, Jesu, regarde, E met cest alme in sauve garde.

58, l. 27. monumentes. There is a list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 27, which reads Robert Hilyeard (l. 27); Katheren wife of John Stocker (l. 31); Lorde of Paryed Ferrar for 'Lord Ospay Ferar' (l. 32); and John Brome (l. 33). 'Ospay Ferar' may perhaps conceal some Italian noble of Ferrara, who died and was buried in England.

61, l. 39. sir John Imworth. Stow's authority (Anom. Chron. 518) has 'Johne de Imworthe'. But his real name was Sir Richard Imworth (C. P. R. Richd. II, i. 556).

62, l. 13. many fayre Innes. See Rendle and Norman, Inns of Old Southwark, and Norman, London Vanished and Vanishing, pp. 1-27.

63, l. 22. Monuments in this Hospitall Church, &c. Strype corrects thus: Adam Attewod, William Weston, and John Every. These come from a list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 27, which has also Roger Chamber, Richarde Chaunder, John Wode, Michael Enebrigge, and Thomas Knynton.

65, ll. 35-9. Sir John Throstone, &c. This is a curtailed version of the original draft in Harley MS. 544, f. 98<sup>vo</sup>, which reads: 'Gaue by his Testament towards this purpos 200 li. Thes were begone to be made by his lady and othar his executors in the yere of Christ 1521, and ended in the yere 1522, Sir John Monday beinge then Maior of London, and therefore by some thought to be builded at the charges of the said maior: but that was mistaken, for before as behynde every the sayde ovens the goldsmithes armes are fayre engraven in stone, so ovar every ovone are likewise ingraven the armes of the sayd sir Iohn Throstone, and his ladies in one escutchen. There is of late taken &c.'

Samuel Rowlands, in his Knave of Hearts, p. 48, writes:—

For though Pyrates exempted be From fatall Tyburne's wither'd tree,
They have an Harbour to arrive
Call'd Wapping, where as ill they thrive
As those that ride up Holbourne Hill,
And at the Gallows make their Will.

71, l. 17. Radcliffe it selfe hath beene also encreased, &c. Howes in an addition to the Annales, p. 868, sub anno 1605, and possibly using material left by Stow, writes thus: 'The undiscernable and new building of goodly houses, shoppes, sheds, and lodgings within the City, in many vacant places, with the converting of the Citie Bulwarkes into houses of pleasure, to the great and wondrous enlarging of the suburbs and skirts thereof, namely Ratcliffe, Limehouse, Rederiffe, Southwarke, Shoreditch, Whitechappell and Saint Katherines.' In the same place he writes that before 1563 'faire houses in London were plenteous, and very easie to be had at low and small rents, and by reason of the late dissolution of Religious houses many houses in London stood vacant, and not any man desirous to take them.' Howes ascribes the growth of London to the great immigration of foreigners through the troubles in France and the Netherlands. Compare with this the quotation on vol. i. p. 208 of a presentment made as to the increase of alien residents in Billingsgate. From his frequent reference to the pestering of the suburbs, and open places in the City with filthy small tenements it is clear that Stow sympathized with the anxiety of Elizabeth's government about the growth of the capital. In 1580 a royal proclamation (see Birch, 128-31) forbade any new buildings within three miles of the gates of the City. Three years later the Council directed attention to the great increase of building 'to danger of pestilence and riot', and to the practice of dividing single tenements. Nevertheless, in spite of repeated complaints by the Council, the mischief continued. In addition to the previous objections it was pointed out that the growth of London caused the decay of other towns, and increased the difficulty of provisioning the Capital (a matter which caused Elizabeth's government much anxiety). Finally, in 1593 a statute—35 Eliz. c. 3—was passed, declaring that 'great mischiefs daily grow and increase by reason of pestering the houses with diverse families, harbouring of inmates, and converting great houses into several tenements, and the erecting of new buildings in London and Westminster'. But the statute was no more easy to enforce than the previous proclamations. In 1596 the Council again addressed the Middlesex magistrates on the 'multitudes of base tenements and houses of unlawfull and disorderly resort in the suburbs', calling attention to the 'great number of dissolute, loose, and insolent people harboured in such and the lyke noysom and disorderly howses, as namely poor cottages, and habitacions of beggars and people without trade, stables, ins, alehowses, tavernes, garden-houses converted to dwellings, ordinaries, dicyng-howses, bowling-allies, and brothel houses' (Acts of Privy Council, xxv. 230). Naturally the growth of London could not be checked thus, though regulation was no doubt needed. More or less vain attempts to restrain the increase of buildings continued throughout the seventeenth century (see Remembrancia, 41-51; Acts of Privy Council, xii. 94, 155, 213; xiii. 201; xiv. 356; xix. 278-81, 324 (for St. Katherine's to Blackwall), 348, 350 (Tower Hamlets); xx. 326; xxii. 70, 145 (near Moorgate); xxv. 230; xxviii. 427 (Shoreditch, St. Giles, Cripplegate, and Clerkenwell), 435 (Southwark); and xxix. 5).

The present passage furnishes a convenient place for a general note. See Index III under 'Bowling Alleys', 'Building', 'Dicing houses', 'Tenements'.

78, l. 8. saint Mary Matfellow. Stow's reference is to Cal. Inq. p. m., iii. 186; but the name is much older, and appears as 'Mantefelune' in 1280, and 'Mattefelon' or 'Matrefelun' in 1282 (Cal. Wills, i. 48, 58, 59). 'Matfellow' or 'Matrefillen' is Old-French for the centaury or knapweed. Probably, as in other cases, the church owed its distinctive name to some benefactor. 'Mattfelon' and 'Materfeloun' occur as surnames in the fourteenth century (N. and Q., 9th ser., viii. 337-8). John de Knopwed, a mercer, died in 1341 (Cal. Wills, i. 448; see also Letter Book F, 79).

✓ 1. 37. From Holy well, &c. The omission here of the reference to the Theatre and The Curtain (see p. 262 above) is noteworthy. It may perhaps be explained in part by the fact that The Curtain was pulled down in 1600. But probably it was intentional, and due to lack of interest; for the slight reference in the chapter on Sportes and Pastimes was also omitted in 1603 (see p. 236 above). The original notice in

Harley MS. 538, was as follows: 'Neare adjoyning are builded two houses for the shewe of Activities, Comedies, tragedies and histories, for recreation. The one of them is named the Curtayn in Holy Well, the other The Theatre. There are on the bak-syde of Holywell towards the filde from Holywell a continuall &c.'

In both of Howes's editions of the Annales (p. 698, ed. 1631) there is an often-quoted passage under date 1583, on how comedians and stage-players were grown exquisite actors, and praising Thomas Wilson and Richard Tarleton for their wit. But in Stow's own editions there is nothing whatever to correspond.

74, l. 6. Ealdestreete. Or Old Street: it was certainly a Roman way, and as 'Ealde Street' occurs in the twelfth century (Lethaby, London before the Conquest, 58).

margin. Soerditch, . . . as I can proue by record. Stow is probably referring to the late legend, which connected Shoreditch with Jane Shore, and is adopted by Heywood, Edward IV, Part 2, Act v, sc. iii:—

The people from the love they bear to her
And her kind husband, pitying his wrongs,
For ever after mean to call the ditch
Shore's ditch, as in the memory of them.

The name is, of course, much older. St. Leonard de Soreditch occurs in a deed circa 1218 (vol. i. 166 above, and Monasticon, vi. 625), and in the list of 1303 (Mun. Gild. II. i. 229); for other references in the thirteenth century see Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Rep. 14, 15.

l. 25. small and base tenements. Alluding no doubt to the gambling-houses, brothels, and other disreputable places which made the district notorious. Middleton, in Father Hubbard's Tales (Works, viii. 96), calls 'Spital and Shoreditch the only Cole-harbour and sanctuary for wenches and soldiers'.

75, l. 28. of late one Vicker there. Meredith Hanmer, vicar of St. Leonard's, 1581-92; Fleetwood described him as 'a very bad man' and 'not regarding an oath'. See Dict. Nat. Biog. xxiv. 297.

76, l. 4. this iustice was done. Alluding to the old quarrel with Thomas Stow. See Introduction, pp. xiii-xix.

l. 14. the More. Stow's references to William's Charter and to Fitz-Stephen show the state of the Moor in the eleventh and twelfth centuries. But recent excavations have proved that the marsh did not exist in the early Roman period. Roman remains are found on the gravel underneath the marsh deposit. It was apparently the building of the wall (see p. 269 above), and the obstruction of the Walbrook, that converted the land on the north to a swamp, and set up the difficulties of drainage described in the subsequent passage. See Archaeologia, lx. 181-3.

l. 38. all the Gardens. From Memorials, 614 (see p. 274 above). They seem to have been first made in 1415. For their destruction see Chron. Lond. 224.

77, l. 3. Roger Atchley. On Jan. 14, 1512, it was 'agreed that the Chamberleyn of this Citie shall cause a grounde callid the Mooreffelde to be levellid by the oversight of my lorde Maier and of the Shrevys of this Citie, and over that to provide a convenyent place for the dogge hous of the Comen Hunte of this Citie, and that the olde hous be removed' (Repertory, 2, f. 126 b).

l. 16. three windmilles. In a Survey of the Manor of Finsbury (ap. Survey, 913, ed. 1633) taken in 1567, there is reference to the 'High Field or Meadow ground, where the three windmills stand, commonly called Finsbury Field'. Four windmills are shown on Agas's map a little later: but one of them stands rather to the west of the others; see Map in this volume. Others were afterwards added; so Middleton writes, about 1617, in A Fair Quarrel, Act IV. sc. i.: 'I have heard 'em roar from the six windmills to Islington.' Six mills are shown on Faithorne's map in 1658. Windmill Street, now re-named Tabernacle Street, preserved their memory.

l. 18. inclosures of common grounds. From Hall (Chron. 568), whose narrative stops at 'were never hedged'. The rest is an addition of Stow's.

78. l. 13. many fayre summer houses. The building of garden-houses, or summer-houses in the rural suburbs, was very popular in the sixteenth century. They are often referred to in the old dramatists as favourite places for assignations. One of the scenes in Webster's Northward Ho! (Act III. sc. ii) is laid at 'my master's garden-house here in Moorfields'. Samuel Rowlands, in his Knave of Clubs, p. 7, describes how 'a countrie blew-coate serving-man' wandering about London got into More fieldes Viewing the Walkes and Trees,

And thence to Garden-Alley goes.

The Moorfields were set in better order with new and pleasant walks soon after Stow's death (see Annales, p. 1021 b, ed. Howes). To their previous unsatisfactory condition Dekker alludes in The Guls Hornbooke: 'To purge it will be a sorer labour than the cleansing of Augeas stable or scouring of Moreditch' (Non-Dramatic Works, ii. 212, ed. Grosart).

79, l. 19. Grubstreete. It was convenient for bowyers, since it lay near the Archery-butts in Finsbury Fields. Randolph in Hey for Honesty, ap. Works, ed. 1651, p. 475, writes:—

Her eyes are Cupid's Grub-Street: the blind archer Makes his love-arrows there.

On the later history of Grub Street (now Milton Street) see Trans. Lond. and Middlesex, iii. 223-44.

82, l. 36. Monuments. Stow's manuscript list in Harley MS. 544, f. 67, supplies the correction, 'John Dorewentwatar, knight.' It adds 'Katheren wyfe to William Lowe', 'Joane' wife of John Peake, and 'the wife of William Ardlestone'.

83, l. 14. in place whereof. Edward, Lord North, entertained Elizabeth here in 1558 and 1561. His son Roger sold the Charterhouse to Thomas, Duke of Norfolk, on May 31, 1565 (Nichols, Progresses of Queen Elizabeth, i. 31).

l. 24. Turnemill streete. Stow does not mention the houses of ill-fame which account for so many references to Turnmill or Turnbull Street in the Elizabethan dramatists, e.g. Henry IV, Pt. 2, Act III. sc. ii, where Falstaff says of Shallow: 'This same starved justice hath done nothing but prate to me of the wildness of his youth, and the feats he hath done about Turnbull Street.'

l. 29. Priorie of saint John. Stow's account is taken from the Cartulary of the Hospital in Cotton MS., Nero, E. vi, f. 3.

84, l. 33. a storehouse. The King's tents were housed at the Charterhouse in 1543-4. They may then have been kept for a time at St. John's. But in the autumn of 1545 the Tents and Revels were removed to Blackfriars. However, the Masters of the Tents, the Toils, and the Revels all appear to have had their storehouses at the 'late Hospital of St. John' before June 1560 (Chambers, Tudor Revels, 13-20).

85, l. 9. buried in this Church. There is a list in Harley MS. 6069, f. 43<sup>vo</sup>, which supplies the following variants: Panclay for 'Vanclyay'; Lanncolen; Radington; Walshall for 'Marshall'; Ouldhall for 'Gondall'. The first fifteen are described as 'ffryars'. 'Hilles or Hayles' is distinguished from 'William Hulles'.

l. 32. other welles. See notes on pp. 272-3.

87, l. 3. Porte Poole or Grayes Inne. Simon de Gardino de Purtepole left his house within Holeburne bar to his son-in-law Richard de Chygewelle or Chigwell (Cal. Wills, i. 48). Chygewelle in 1294 enfeoffed the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's with the property, and they enfeoffed Reginald de Grey, who held it of them in 1307. The Greys retained their connexion till 1506. But before 1397 Henry Grey de Wilton had made a feoffment of 'Portpole maner' called 'Grey's Inn' to certain persons in trust. See E. Williams, Staple Inn, 22, 38-44, and Douthwaite, Gray's Inn, 3-18.

l. 16. Richard Alington. Amongst Stow's Memoranda, 117-21, is The confessyon of Master Rychard Allington, esquere, the xxij of Novembre, 1561, abowte viij of y<sup>e</sup> clocke at nyght'. He accused himself of having made much money by usury, and says in his confession that he never thought his death 'wolde have cum to passe by this dessease, considerynge it is but ye smalle pockes'. Machyn describes him as son of Sir Giles Alington (Diary, p. 274).

89, l. 35. This olde Fryer house. Stow places the original Blackfriars outside the City. But it seems clear that it was in the parish of St. Andrew, Holborn, in Shoe Lane, both from grants to the friars between 1224 and 1260, and from the will of Henry de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, where his place that belonged to the Preaching Friars is mentioned; as the conveyance to Lincoln in 1288 and his will were both enrolled in the Court of Husting (Cal. Wills, i. 218), they must have related to property within the City. Probably this is the Oldborne Hall mentioned on ii. 38 above. Henry de Lacy's daughter married, as her first husband, Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, and in her right Earl of Lincoln. As Earl of Lancaster he was Lord of the manor of the New Temple, including Ralph Neville's house in Chancery Lane on part of the site of the modern Lincoln's Inn. See E. Williams, Staple Inn, 45-54.

90, l. 19. encreased with fayre buildinges. There was much building at Lincoln's Inn during Elizabeth's reign. See Herbert, Inns of Court, 290-5.

l. 37. a sell to Burton Lager of Jerusalem. The reference is to the Hospital of lepers of St. Lazarus of Jerusalem at Burton Lazars in Leicestershire. But St. Giles was not annexed thereto till 1299, an arrangement which was confirmed in 1354 (Tanner, Notitia Monastica, i. 304; Monast. Angl. vi. 632, 635; Letter Book G, 27-9).

91, l. 7. Gote on the Hope. It was bequeathed to the Drapers by William Calley in 1517; it is mentioned in 1432 (Cal. Wills, ii. 473, 602, 625). Ancient tavern signs were nearly always 'on the hoop'. See 'Griffon on the hope' on i. 323, and many instances in the Calendar of Wills, as 'Le Castell on the hoop' and 'Le Moone on the hoop'. The 'hoop' seems to have originated in the highly ornamented bush or crown, which latterly was made of hoops covered with evergreens' (Larwood and Hotten, History of Signboards, pp. 503-5, 3rd ed.).

l. 10. a great Bowle of Ale. John Chamberlain wrote to Dudley Carleton on Oct. 31, 1618, thus: 'The morning that he [Raleigh] went to execution there was a cup of excellent sack brought him, and being asked how he liked it, "As the fellow," saith he, "that drinking of St. Giles's bowl as he went to Tyburn said: "That were good drink, if a man might tarry by it"'" (Court and Times of James I).

92, l. 10. Walter Stapleton. According to the account in the Annales Paulini, p. 317, his body was refused burial at St. Clement Danes, and then laid temporarily in the waste church of the Innocents close by.

l. 38. Chesters Inne. Hoccleve's reference to his residence at 'Chestres Inne right fast by the Stronde' (De Regimine Principum, i) is all that is known of it. (Herbert, Inns of Court, 284.)

95, l. 35. Bedford house. Acquired by John, Lord Russell, afterwards first Earl of Bedford, in exchange in 1539 (Letters and Papers, xiv. 867, c. 26).

l. 36. Iuie bridge. On its history and that of Ivy-bridge Lane, which was destroyed by the extension of the Hotel Cecil, see N. and Q., 10th ser., v. 81, 136, 175. Sir Robert Cecil writes on Oct. 24, 1602, of 'My new howse (called Cecyll howse) by Ivey bridge' (Letters, Camd. Soc.).

96, l. 25. a fayre leager Booke. Stow is clearly quoting the Chertsey

Register in Cotton MS., Vitellius, A. xiii, f. 35, though not perhaps from his own knowledge. It is there stated that in the time of Æthelred I (866-71) the Danes arrived at Chertsey and summoned the monks to come out: 'Illis autem exire nolentibus, nec eorum obsecundare preceptis, omnes gladio interfecti sunt uidelicet xc., quorum corpora in uno loco iuxta uetus monasterium condita sunt. Postea ecclesiam et omnes officinas predicti monasterii igni combusserunt, res, terras, uillulas, et omnes eorum possessiones depredauerunt. Illi autem in malicia sua perdurantes, repatriare cupientes iusto dei iudicio apud Londoniam omnes interfecti sunt, in loco qui dicitur ecclesia Danorum.' The burial-place of the slaughtered monks was discovered after the refounding of Chertsey Abbey by Bishop Æthelwold of Winchester. The remains were then transferred to a shrine, 'sicut in cronicis predicti monasterii anglico ideomate inuenitur: "On<sup>1</sup> Certeseye in þe munstre þer restet seint Beccan abbod, and seint Edor messe prest, and seint Fritheuuold king þat stapelede erest þat munstre, mid seint Erkenualde abbod, þat est werp Bissup on Londone suuiþe holi: and hundniþenti moneches of slaþene mid heþene men." Acta sunt hec anno dominice incarnationis octogintesimo octogesimo quarto, tempore Ethelredi regis filii regis Ethelwulfi.'

The Chertsey record was written about 1260. The greater part is based on William of Malmesbury, Abbo Passio S. Edmundi, and Bede. But the account of the destruction of Chertsey is peculiar; Malmesbury (Gesta Pontificum, 143) refers simply to its destruction by the Danes—'qui, ut cetera, locum illum pessundedere, ecclesia succensa cum monachis et abbate.' The English fragment is based on the early eleventh century Anglo-Saxon list of Saints (see Liebermann, Die Heiligen Englands, p. 19; and the Hyde Liber Vitae, p. 94), with an interpolation from Bede of the notice of St. Erkenwald.<sup>2</sup> The incorrect date, '884' (Æthelred I died in 871), and the fact that the whole passage is a late compilation from various sources, make it untrustworthy. Very probably the punishment of the Danes refers to the massacre in the time of Æthelred II. As for the name St. Clement Danes, the street there was called 'Denchemen's street' early in the thirteenth century.

97, l. 30. three Innes of Chancery. On these small Inns see Herbert, Inns of Court, 276-83. Stow has given the history of the establishment of New Inn on ii. 38 above. See Anc. Deeds, B. 2135-62.

98, ll. 28, 29. house . . . doth yet remaine. J. T. Smith (Antiquities of Westminster, 12), writing in 1807: 'the spot was where a part of the stable of the Golden Cross Inn, and some of the houses at the south end of St. Martin's Lane now stand.'

l. 30. the Mewse. The site of Trafalgar Square.

99, l. 8. Durham house. Originally built by Antony Bek (d. 1310), Bishop of Durham. (Pennant, London, 192.) The site is the present Adelphi.

l. 14. triumphant Iusting. See the Challenge and note of open house kept from April 30 to May 7, ap. Letters and Papers, xv. 617, and account of the Justing in Wriothesley's Chronicle, i. 116-18.

100, l. 31. S. Marie Rounciuall. Founded by William Marshal, Earl of Pembroke, in 1222, suppressed as an alien priory after 1432 (C. P. R. Henry VI, ii. 247), and revived for a fraternity in 1476 (Mon. Angl. vi. 677; C. P. R. Edw. IV, ii. 542). It was on the site of the present Northumberland Avenue.

l. 36. Hermitage, &c. 'The hermitage of St. Katherine between St. Mary Rouncivall and the King of Scottis ground'—i.e. Scotland Yard (C. P. R. Edw. IV, i. 213-4).

101, l. 3. an Hospitall of saint James. Turolde was warden of the Hospital of St. James by Charing (Cherringam) in the reign of Richard I (Anc. Deeds, A. 7822).

102, l. 13. buillt by king Henry the eight. Thomas Cromwell drew up in 1536 a memorandum of 'Things done by the King's highness sythyn I came to his service'. He has purchased 'St. James in the Fields and all the ground, whereof the new park of Westminster is now made: all the old tenements in Westminster where now is bullded the new garden, the tennis plays, and cockfight' . . . 'He has newly bullded . . . the place at Westminster with the tennis plays and cockfight, and walled the park with a sumptuous wall; and St. James in the Fields, a magnificent and goodly house' (Letters and Papers, x. 1231). The gate by the gallery is said to have been designed by Holbein; it was removed in 1750. The other gate near the north end of the former King Street, and end of Downing Street, was pulled down in 1723. See Smith, Antiquities, 20, 21, with views (facing p. 24) showing the Gallery, Gate, and Tiltyard. See Anc. Deeds, A. 13406, 13446-8 for lands purchased for these improvements.

l. 16. From this gate, &c. Ben Jonson, who knew Westminster well, gives a summary of its topography in his Staple of News, Act III. sc. ii.

'Tattle. I have better news from the bakehouse in ten thousand parts in a morning: or the conduits in Westminster: all the news of Tuttle Street, and both the Alm'ries, the two Sanctuaries, Long and Round Woolstaple, with King Street and Cannon Row to boot.

'Mirth. Ay! my gossip Tattle knew what fine slips grew in Gardener's Lane; who kist the butcher's wife with the cow's breath: what matches were made in the Bowling-alley, and what bets were won and lost; how much grist went to the Mill, and what besides; who conjured in Tuttle fields and how many.'

l. 16. Kings streete. Till long after Stow's time it was the only way to Westminster from the north. The last part of it has now been covered by the new Government offices in Parliament Street.

l. 16. Long ditch. A watercourse ran from the Thames by Canon Row to the end of Gardener's Lane. 'From the west end of Gardener's Lane it turned southward, and after passing down what is now called Prince's Street, but was then Long Ditch, crossed Tothill Street a little westward of the Gatehouse; then taking an eastern direction, it ran along by the south wall of the Abbey garden, where College Street now stands, to the Thames; and this is still the exact course of the common sewer which was erected over it' (see Maitland, London, 1328; Smith, Antiquities, 2, 102). Prince's Street was known as Long Ditch till about 1750. For houses on 'Langediche' between 1331 and 1367 see Samuel Bentley, Abstract of Westminster Charters, 67-8.

l. 18. Chanon Row. It is called 'Chanan Row' in 1501 (Gairdner, Letters, &c., Richard III and Henry VII, i. 406). Howel (Londinopolis, 350) says it is corruptly called 'Channel Row'. Smith argues that the latter form is the original, and connects it with the channel or cut from the Thames, referred to in the previous note (Antiquities, 3). However, the name 'Channel Row' does not seem to occur before 1557 (Machyn, Diary, 126; see also London Past and Present, iii. 325). An alternative name, as Stow notes in the margin, and on p. 122, was St. Stephen's Alley.

l. 27. high Tower. See p. 122 and note on p. 379.

l. 31. the Woolestable. The Long Staple extended from the south end of Canon Row to King Street, whilst the Round Staple, at right angles to it, was about in the position of Parliament Street. For the history of the Woolstable see Hall, History of the Custom Revenue in England, and Cunningham, Growth of English Industry and Commerce, vol. i, 4th ed., 1905. For the Merchants of the Staple see Gross, Gild-Merchant, i. 140-7.

104, l. 13. upon Enirode. This is obscure. Possibly it may be a corruption of 'eny rode' (any riding or raid) as suggested by the reading of 1633. Or it may refer to the 'roade' which Stow in his Annales (p. 437, ed. 1605) relates to have been made by Sir Hugh Calveley in 1377. The passage does not appear in the 1598 edition: that edition has, however, the marginal note 'Manuscript French' which must consequently belong to the next paragraph. The Staple had been fixed once more at Calais in 1376 (Foedera, iii. 1057).

l. 27. six wooll houses, &c. Granted on Nov. 16, 1442, and confirmed by Edward IV on July 16, 1461 (C. P. R. Edw. IV, i. 163; cf. Smith, Antiquities, 111-12). See further note on p. 378 below.

l. 33. Theeuing lane. Smith describes it as 'a turning still existing' on the west side of King Street, 'very near its south end' (Antiquities, 27). If the thieves had entered the Sanctuary, they must have been liberated. Maitland (London, 1342) describes it as on the north of the Clochard.

105, l. 8. Sulcardus. He was a monk of Westminster about 1075, and author of a treatise, De Constitutione Ecclesiae Westmonasteriensis. It is merely by way of introduction to the Cartulary which he had prepared at the command of his abbot, and of which two extended copies are preserved in Cotton MSS., Titus, A. viii (early fourteenth century), and Faustina, A. iii (late thirteenth century). The reference to the Temple of Apollo appears in the latter MS. on f. 19<sup>vo</sup>.

l. 34. Charter. Stow's version of the charter, which is given in facsimile, is manifestly incorrect. Some of the errors are probably typographical, but others are due to the omission or addition of final e, most of the early antiquaries having no idea that this letter meant any more in Anglo-Saxon than it did in the orthography of their own day. The words seo gifa in line three are redundant; the second word perhaps arises from anticipation by the copyist of the immediately following gyfen. The charter is printed by Kemble, Cod. Dipl. dccclxi, from the thirteenth-century copy in Cotton MS., Faustina, A. III, f. 110<sup>vo</sup>, where the text is corrupt. Stow's text is superior in having the correct Anglo-Saxon longaþ in l. 6 against the Middle-English longen of the Cotton MS., and in some other minor details. It is possible that he may have derived his text from the original charter, or from a better copy than that contained in the Cotton MS.; but these superior readings in his text may be due to corrections by some one moderately versed in Anglo-Saxon. The Cotton text, derived from the MS. itself and without Kemble's accents and normalizations, is as follows:—

Edward king gret Willem bisceop and Leofstan and Alfys porterefen and alle mine burhtheynes on Lundene frendlice. And icc cipe eow þæt icc habbe segifen (sic) and unnen Crist and Sainte Petre þam halegen apostle into Westminstre fulne freedom ofer alle þaland þe longen into þare halagen stowe.

Stow omits two-thirds of the text of the charter. I have to thank Mr. W. H. Stevenson for this note.

107, l. 13. the White Rose. In the Vitellius Chronicle (Chron. Lond. 258) it is stated that 'the tavern of the Sun' was pulled down. More than one inn may have been destroyed.

l. 27. Peter a Painter. Pietro Torregiano, who came to England in the reign of Henry VII, and remained till at least 1518. He contracted in 1512 to make 'well, surely, cleanly, workmanly, curiously, and substantially' for the sum of £1,500 a tomb of marble with 'images, figures, beasts, and other things, of copper gilt'. (Lethaby, Westminster Abbey, 236-7.)

108, l. 29. buried in this Church. Stow's printed list is based in part on one of which he has preserved a copy in Harley MS. 544, ff. 65 and 67<sup>vo</sup>; this latter list seems to have been compiled after 1499, for it includes John, Viscount Welles, but before 1506, for it gives Catherine of Valois as buried in the Lady Chapel. The burials are described under the several chapels. Early printed lists are those in Camden's Reges, Reginae, &c., published in 1603, Weever's Funerall Monuments (1631), and Henry Keepe's Monumenta Westmonasteriensia (1682). For some critical notes see Mr. Lethaby's Westminster Abbey and the King's Craftsmen, pp. 332-50, giving extracts from the list in Harley MS. 544.

109, l. 10. Henry the fifth. His tomb was plundered in 1546 (Acts of the Privy Council, i. 328; Kingsford, Henry V, 386-7).

l. 18. remayneth aboue ground. Katherine's body remained unburied till 1778, when it was removed to the Percy vaults. Finally, through the care of Dean Stanley, she was buried in her husband's chantry in 1878 (Archaeologia, xlv. 281-93).

110, l. 27. Johane Tokyne, &c. The list in Harley MS. 544, f. 67, reads 'the lady Joane Tokayne daughter of dabridgecourte'. Probably the true reading is 'Cokayne'; for Joan, daughter of Sir John Dabridgecourt (d. 1415), married John Cokayne (d. 1447), though her tomb has been supposed to exist at Ashbourne in Derbyshire (A. E. Cockayne, Cockayne Memoranda, i. 20, ii. 195-6).

l. 38. in the Cloyster. According to Caxton, Chaucer was buried before St. Benet's Chapel, close to the monument which Brigham set up in 1555.

111, l. 6. mine owne paynefull labors. The edition of Chaucer was Stow's first production. See Introduction, vol. i, pp. ix and lxxxvi. On p. cccxl of his edition Stow writes thus: 'Here foloweth certaine woorkes of Geoffrey Chauser, whiche hathe not heretofore been printed, and are gathered and added to this booke by Iohn Stowe.' Of twenty pieces thus added three are admittedly genuine, and Professor Skeat accepts two others; of the remainder some are obviously by Lydgate or other later poets. Professor Skeat writes: 'It is clear that Stow had no better reason for inserting pieces in his edition of Chaucer than their occurrence in this MS. (Trin. Coll. Camb. R. 3, 19), to which he had access.' 'Stow in 1561 added more pieces to the collection, but he suppressed nothing. Neither did he himself exercise much principle of selection.' See Skeat, Chaucer, i. pp. 31-43, 56, and v. p. x; and The Chaucer Canon, 117-26.

l. 31. Charter. The privileges of Sanctuary here set out are to be found incorporated in the spurious Charter of Edward the Confessor, professedly granted to Westminster in 1066. See Kemble, Codex, dcccxxv, vol. iv, pp. 181-90, and especially pp. 186 and 188. I have not been able to trace a more exact original.

113, margin. Liber Woodbridge. Now apparently perished (Mon. Angl. vi. 600).

116, l. 24. noted by Robert Fabian. From the lost manuscript. See vol. i. p. xxxv above. The corresponding passage in the Vitellius Chronicle (Chron. Lond. 200) is somewhat different.

119, l. 39. the Starre Chamber. Smith (Antiquities, 29) has an engraving of the Elizabethan ceiling decorated with roses, portcullises, and fleurs-de-lys. The name is much older than the Court (established in 1488); it occurs in 1378 (C. P. R. Richd. II, i. 276).

120, l. 7. a great Chamber. This White Hall, in which the Court of Wards and Liveries, and Court of Requests were held in Stow's time, was one of the rooms of the old palace of Westminster, and had of course no connexion with the later Whitehall Palace. As the 'White chamber' in the palace of Westminster it occurs in 1341 (Cal. Close Rolls, Edw. III, vi. 339; see also Chron. Lond. 47, for 'White Hall' in 1399). The House of Lords sat here from 1801 to 1834.

l. 10. S. Stephens Chappell. There are frequent references to it during the reign of Henry III. It was refounded by Edward I in 1292, and work was in progress there from time to time down to 1352. For the history of the chapel and its decoration see Smith, Antiquities, 72-101, 144-64, and 171-250, with elaborate illustrations. See also Lethaby, Westminster Abbey, 180-2, 188-91. For the foundation Charter of Edward III, dated Aug. 6, 1348, see Mon. Angl. vi. 1349.

l. 19. He builded for those. Munday (Survey, 523, ed. 1633) altered this to 'He builded it for them', which led Smith (Antiquities, 81-2, 101) to censure Stow, since the chapel did not stand 'from the house of Receipt, along nigh to the Thames, but this was actually the situation of houses for the vicars'. The latter was clearly Stow's own meaning.

l. 21. there was also builded, &c. What Stow means here is not clear; but probably he depends on a grant by Henry VI in 1438, which, after explaining that the ground appointed for the dean's dwelling had not been and could not be built on, confirmed to the Dean rooms 'situated within and on the wall of the king's said palace, adjoining "le Wolbrigge" of the king's staple there on the east, and the Clock-Tower of the palace on the west, and the palace wall on the south running along from the said clock-tower to the Thames, and bounded on the north by the way which runs between "le Weyhous" of the said staple and the said "Wolbrigge"' (C. P. R. Henry VI, iii. 192). This grant itself is somewhat obscure. The way from the Weyhouse to the Woolbridge was on the line of the modern Bridge Street. On its north side were the six wool-houses referred to on p. 104. The ultimate additional buildings ran north and south along the Thames and formed Cannon Row. See Smith, Antiquities, 82, 101-6, 111, with plan facing p. 124.

l. 25. a strong Clochard. Stow's ascription of this building to Edward III was probably due to some confusion with the Clock-house (see pp. 379-80 below). It did not belong to St. Stephen's; J. T. Smith describes another tower, which appears to have been the bell-tower of that Chapel, and formed before 1834 the state staircase of the Speaker's house. The Clochard at the west end of the Little Sanctuary was an isolated belfry, and was built in 1249-53. It was a massive tower about sixty feet high, surmounted with a leaded spire. The spire was probably destroyed before Stow wrote, but the tower survived till 1750. John Norden, about 1600, wrote of: 'the Little Sanctuary, wherein is a very ancient and old building and strong, now made a dwelling-house, sometime a tower, wherein was a bell of wonderful bigness weighing, as is reported, 33,000 wt. and was rung only at coronations, which bell King Henry VIII employed to other uses at his going to Boulogne' (Lethaby, Westminster Abbey, 56-60, 155-6; Smith, Antiquities, 89-92). In Maitland's time the ruined building was used as a tavern or wine-vault; he describes it as 'a prodigious strong stone-building of two hundred and ninety feet square, or seventy-two feet and a half the length of each side, and the walls in thickness [at the base] no less than twenty-five feet' (London, 1342). Stukely contributed an account of the building at the time of its destruction to Archaeologia, i. 39-44, with plans; he regarded it as the ruin of an asylum, connected with the Sanctuary, and described the interior as two chapels, one above the other; his error has since been often repeated.

121, l. 10. John Chambers, or Chamber, was appointed Dean in 1526, and died in 1549 (see Dict. Nat. Biog. x. 30). He gave lands to St. Stephen's (Wood, Fasti Oxonienses, i. 89, ed. Bliss). For his cloisters, which were on the north side of the Chapel, see Smith, Antiquities, 128, 148, 232. The College was dissolved in 1546. From that date till its destruction in 1834 the Chapel was used for the House of Commons. Its site is now St. Stephen's Hall.

l. 18. our Lady of the Pew. In his first edition Stow incorrectly described the chapel of the Pew as a part of the house of Bethlehem Hospital near St. Martin-in-the Fields (see p. 264 above). The Chapel of the Pew was probably situated on the north side of St. Stephen's, for at the creation of Henry, Duke of York, to be a Knight of the Bath in 1494, the knights 'toke their waye secretly by our ladie of Pieu, thorough St. Stephen's Chapell on to the steyr foote of the Ster Chambre end' (Gairdner, Letters, &c., Richard III and Henry VII, i. 391). Maitland (London, 1341) cites a reference to Our Lady of the Pew in 1369. The chapel occurs as 'the king's closet of St. Mary de la Pewe' in the reign of Richard II. Froissart (ix. 409, ed. Luce), when describing the king's visit to Westminster on June 15, 1381, says that 'Richard went to a little chapel, with an image of Our Lady, that worked great miracles, wherein the Kings of England have great trust.' The latest notice which I have found is the record in Henry VIII's Privy Purse Expenses for 1531 of the payment of 8*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* 'to the clerk of the closet for money in charity at our Lady of the Pewe' (Letters and Papers, v. p. 756). These instances suggest that 'our Lady of the Pewe' owed its name to the fact that the king's closet or pew was there (cf. N. E. D. s. v. pew). As the king's private chapel its usefulness ceased with the abandonment of the old palace; probably it was destroyed when Chambers built his cloisters. Anthony, Earl Rivers, bequeathed his heart to be buried at our Lady of Pue, and provided for a priest to pray there one year (Excerpta Historica, 246-7). The 'keeper of the chapel', named on ii. 120, l. 18 above, was keeper of 'la Pew'. Smith thought that the name was connected with the French puits, since there was a well close by. See Antiquities, 11, 101, 112-3, 116, 123-7.

l. 35. a Tower of stone. According to tradition this Clock-house was built with the fine imposed on Ralph Hingham, the judge, in 1290, for falsifying the record in order to reduce the fine on a poor man. This story appears first in Coke's Institutes (iv. 255), published in 1628. But Justice Southcote (d. 1585) is reported on a like occasion to have 'said openly that he meant not to build a clock-house' (Anecdotes and Traditions, 119, Camd. Soc.; Strype, Survey, vi. 55; Archaeologia, v. 427, xxxiii. 10). As a matter of fact the Clock-house was built for Edward III in 1365-6—'Turris infra palatium pro quodam orologio facta' (Archaeologia, xxxvii. 23-6, giving an account of the expenses, but confusing it with the Clochard). The dimensions of the Clock-Tower were 24 feet by 17 feet 6 inches. The bell, which was called 'Edward of Westminster' or 'Great Tom', was presented by William III to St. Paul's. It then weighed 9,261 lb., but it was cracked in the process of removal and has since been twice recast with additional metal. The original bell had the inscription :—

Tercius aptavit me Rex, Edwardque vocavit, Sancti decore Edwardi signarentur ut hore.

The Clock-Tower was granted to the parish of St. Margaret in 1698, and soon afterwards pulled down (Smith, Antiquities, 28, 261; Walcote, Memorials of Westminster, 197-9). The grant to Walesby on June 23, 1453, was confirmed by Edward IV on July 16, 1461 (C. P. R. Edw. IV, i. 163; for earlier grants of the office of keeper of the Clock-Tower see id. Richd. II, i. 134, v. 648; Henry IV, i. 84, iii. 385; Henry VI, ii. 184, 540, iii. 131). Both Clock-Tower and fountain are shown in Hollar's print of New Palace Yard, date 1643.

122, l. 12. a verie faire gate. 'Highgate (a very beautiful and stately edifice) having occasioned great obstructions to the members of Parliament in their passage to and from their respective houses, was taken down in 1706' (Maitland, London, 1341; see also Smith, Antiquities, 54).

128, l. 10. first Presse of booke printing . . . about . . . 1471. Stow's account is very inaccurate. John Islip only entered the abbey in 1480, and did not become abbot till 1500. Caxton's first book, The Recuyell of the Histories of Troy, was printed at Bruges in 1474. His first book printed at Westminster was The Dictes and Sayings of the Philosophers on Nov. 18, 1477. He rented of the abbey in the ordinary way of business a house in the Almonry called 'The Red Pale' (Blades, Life of Caxton, i. 60, 65-8).

l. 19. Anne sister to Thomas the Lorde Buckhurst. She was the daughter of Sir Richard Sackville, and married Gregory (not Gyles) Fiennes, tenth and last Lord Dacre of the South. Dacre died in 1594, and his widow on May 14, 1595. Her almshouse was for twenty poor persons, ten of each sex, with a school for twenty children (Dict. Nat. Biog. xviii. 427-8). It continued till recently as Emmanuel Hospital. The name of Stourton House survives in Strutton Ground, close by.

l. 26. Petty France. Renamed York Street in honour of Frederick, Duke of York, who lived at Dover House from 1789 to 1792.

l. 26. S. Hermits hill. Now St. Ermin's Hill, a blind-alley out of Great Chapel Street. It occurs as St. Armin's Hill in 1610 (Cal. State Papers, 1603-10, p. 582). In the eighteenth century it was called Torment Hill, or St. Torment's Hill. Van Dun's almshouses, also known as Red Lion almshouses, are placed by Strype in Petty France, backing on St. Ermin's Hill; they are now abolished (N. and Q., 7th ser. v. 449-50, vi. 88, 213; 8th ser. ix. 242-3; London Past and Present, ii. 467, iii. 424).

125, l. 21. Lucius. See note on p. 304.

l. 27. of the London Bishops. Stow clearly took some pains over his list: but the result in its earlier part is not satisfactory. The British archbishops are purely legendary, as Stow recognized (see Stubbs, Reg. Sac. Anglicanum, 2nd ed., pp. 215-16). The subsequent list down to Swithulf is fairly correct, but for Ingwald's three successors read 'Ecgwulf, Sigheah, and Aldberht'; the dates are also inaccurate. Deorwulf was bishop as late as 862. From Swithulf to Robert, Stow's list is quite wrong. The true succession with the approximate dates was: Ælfstan (d. 898), Wulfsige (898-910), Heahstan, Theodred (926-51), Wulfstan, Brihtelm (953-9), Dunstan (959-61), Ælfstan (961-95), Wulfstan II (996-1003), Ælfric (1004-12), Elfweard (1014-35), Elfweard (1035-44). Stow himself refers elsewhere to Elfweard or Alfward, viz. on ii. 148 above. See further, Stubbs, u. s. pp. 220-1.

l. 31. Charter. Of Wiglaf of Mercia, spurious. (Cod. Dipl. ccxxxiii.)

l. 37. Charter. Of Berhtuulf of Mercia, spurious. (Cod. Dipl. cclxv.)

l. 9. Theodricus. Theodred, bishop of London, witnessed a charter of Edred in 947. (Cod. Dipl. ccccxiii.)

l. 19. he confirmed. Stow has assigned to 'Edgare' acts which should belong to Ælfstan. 'Ædelstanus' or 'Ælfstanus' of London witnesses spurious charters to Winchester and Croyland in 966 (Cod. Dipl. dxxiii, dxxviii). 'Eadgar presbyter' appears as witness to genuine charters for 'Wulfrinton' (Wolverton) in 977 and 984 (id. dcxii, dcxlv).

l. 32. sate 17. yeares. Stow is in manifest error. William was consecrated in 1051, in place of Spearhafoc, whom archbishop Robert had rejected, and lived till 1075, when he was succeeded by Hugh de Orivalle, or Orwell, who died in 1086. Bishop William's epitaph from St. Paul's is given in Godwin, De Praesulibus, 174-5.

l. 20. deceased 1186. Should be Feb. 18, 1187.

182, l. 11. 1241. Fulco Basset. Though Roger Niger died on Sept. 29, 1241, Basset was not consecrated till Oct. 9, 1244.

l. 15. Henry Wingham. Consecrated Feb. 15, 1260.

l. 20. Richard Talbot. Not given by Stubbs; Sandwich was consecrated May 27, 1263.

l. 24. 1273. John Cheshul. Consecrated April 29, 1274, died Feb. 8, 1280.

l. 13. Stephen Grauesend. Consecrated Jan. 14, 1319.

l. 17. Raph Stratford. Consecrated Mar. 12, 1340.

l. 23. Michaell Norbroke. Better Northburgh; consecrated July 12, 1355.

1. 25. Simon Sudbery. Consecrated Mar. 20, 1362.
 1. 30. Robert Breybrooke. Consecrated Jan. 5, 1382.
 184, l. 22. Robert Fitzhugh. Consecrated Sept. 16, 1431.
 1. 26. Robert Gilbert. Consecrated Oct. 28, 1436.
 1. 28. Thomas Kempe. Consecrated Feb. 8, 1450.
 1. 35. John Marshal. There was no such bishop of London. A John Marshall was bishop of Llandaff 1478-96.
 1. 37. Richard Hill. Consecrated Nov. 15, 1489, died Feb. 20, 1496.
 185, l. 13. deceased 1521. Should be Jan. 15, 1522.
 1. 18. Cuthbert Tunstal. Consecrated Oct. 19, 1522.
 1. 24. Edmond Boner. Consecrated April 4, 1540.
 187, l. 16. John Elmere. Or Aylmer; consecrated March 24, 1577.
 188, l. 7. parish churches. Stow's list may be compared with the list of churches in the City proper in 1303 in the Liber Custumarum, ap. Mun. Gild. II. i. 228-38. All the churches named by Stow appear in the older list except St. Katherine's by the Tower, Trinity in the Minories, St. Peter in the Tower, The Chapel in Guildhall, St. Anne at the Blackfriars, and St. James by Cripplegate; the absence of these is easily explained. Most of the remainder can be traced back to the twelfth century, and many even further. See references in notes above, and for churches belonging to St. Paul's see Hist. MSS. Comm. 9th Report.
 140, l. 14. New Mary Church. See notes on pp. 317, 328.
 147, l. 30. divers old Registers. One was no doubt the London Chronicle in Harley Roll, C. 8, which, unlike any other version with which I am acquainted, begins with a Latin notice of the early government of the City from the time of Edward the Confessor to 1189; the Roll contains some notes in Stow's writing. I have not been able to trace the St. Albans book; but like the Harley Roll it probably derived its information from the account given in the Trinity Cartulary, which was printed by Hearne in the notes to his edition of William of Newburgh (iii. 724-6). Under the reign of William II the Roll has 'G. de Magum Vicecomes' (see i. 121, 287 above) and 'R. de Pere, prepositus'; Hearne has 'G. de Magnavilla' and 'R. del Parc.' Under Henry I the Roll has Hugo de Boche (Hearne, 'Boch'), this is no doubt the well-known Hugh de Bocland; and 'Rob. de Berquereola', Stow's 'Bar Querel', who may possibly be one of the Bockerels; Aubrey de Vere, who was sheriff in 1125, was killed in 1141 (Round, Geoff. de Mandeville, 81, 309). Under Stephen, Stow's 'Andrew Bucheuet' is the 'Andreas Buchuynt' of the Roll, who was 'Justiciar of London' (id. 373, and Commune of London, 99, 108-13).
 For the charter naming Alfward and Wolfgar see Letter Book C, 218; the date must be 1042-4. Swetman is named in a Chertsey Charter (Cod. Dipl. dcccvi), Leofstan and Aelfsi in two Westminster Charters of Edward the Confessor (id. dcccvii, and dcccxi, see also ii. 105 above).

For a facsimile of William's London Charter see Sharpe, London and the Kingdom, vol. i.

For a list of the early sheriffs see Record Office Lists 9, p. 200. Of those named by Stow, Peter FitzWalter, who held office 1174-6, was strictly speaking 'custos' or 'bailiff', not sheriff; FitzNigel was sheriff in 1177, Buchell or Buzell in 1178, and FitzIsabel in 1156, 1162, 1176, 1178, and 1181.

149, l. 18. In the first year of king Richard the first, &c. This is erroneous. Richard did not grant a Commune to London. That privilege was not obtained till 1191, when the citizens took advantage of the quarrel between John, the king's brother, and William Longchamp the Chancellor, to extort this privilege from the former as the price of their support. Round, Commune of London, 219-25; see also Eng. Hist. Rev., xix. 702-6.

l. 29. The names, &c. Stow probably based his list of Mayors and Sheriffs on the current lists, of which examples are found in the London Chronicles and in Fabyan. But these lists had in process of time been much confused and corrupted. A chief cause of error was the numbering of the civic officers under each king's reign separately. Regnal and Mayoral years did not, however, coincide: thus the Mayor and Sheriffs elected in the last year of Henry III (i. e. in Sept.-Oct. 1272) held office during nearly the whole of the first year of Edward I; this may help to explain the misdating by Stow of the Mayors and Sheriffs for the greater part of Edward's reign. Other difficulties were caused by the removal or death of Mayors and Sheriffs during their term of office. In consequence, the lists in the Chronicles and in Stow are hopelessly inaccurate down to 1300. For the Sheriffs an authoritative list has been compiled from records of the Exchequer in Record Office: Lists and Indexes, 9. The names in this list agree so well with those in the Liber de Antiquis Legibus (covering the period 1189-1274), that we may accept the latter as a trustworthy guide for the names of the Mayors; I have checked it by the attestation of documents in the Catalogue of Ancient Deeds. A list of mayors and sheriffs from 1276 to 1320, prepared at the great Iter of 1320, is given in the Liber Custumarum (Mun. Gild, II. i. 291-4; another list on pp. 239-46 is not free from error). There is a list of Mayors and Sheriffs in Letter Book F (pp. 276-303), which was originally compiled in 1354, subsequent names being added from time to time down to 1548. In its earliest part this list presents similar errors to those of Stow; but from about the end of the reign of Edward I it may be accepted as an authoritative record. In addition to the foregoing there is a nearly contemporary list of sheriffs for the reigns of Richard I and John in Additional MS. 14252, f. 107. A similar list of Mayors and Sheriffs, coming down to 1222, is printed from the Trinity Cartulary by Hearne in his notes to William of Newburgh, iii. 726-8. Both the latter resemble Stow in giving Henry de Cornhill and Richard filius Reneri as sheriffs for 1 Richard I, though they really vacated office early in that regnal year at Michaelmas, 1189. Hearne's list, like Stow's, gets the later dates right by omitting Serlo le Mercer and Henry of St. Albans under 1206-7; this list seems to represent the original of the lists in the Chronicles. In Add. MS. 14252 the Sheriffs are a year too late down to 'Martinus Aliz' and 'Petrus Bat' in the '16th' year; then comes the note: 'Sal. et hug. de bār. Discidium inter regem et barones. Andr. Nēū. et Johes. trauers. Aduentus Iodowici primus. Will's. Albus trauers, B. Seint.'

Dr. Gairdner printed an annotated list from 1199 to 1470 in Collections of a London Citizen, pp. 242-58, giving the chief variations of the lists in the London Chronicles, and in Fabyan.

In revising the list on pp. 149-86 above, Stow's spelling has been preserved, wherever possible; and also his system of dating, the year A. D. being always that in which the Mayor and Sheriffs named took office; thus under 1400, John Francis is the Mayor who held office from Oct. 29, 1400, to Oct. 28, 1401, being the second mayoral year of Henry IV. Throughout the whole period the Sheriffs took office on Sept. 29 and the Mayor on Oct. 29; this overlapping sometimes causes confusion, e.g. in 1247-8 both Peter FitzAlan and Michael Tovy occur as Mayor, with William Vyel and Nicholas Bat, Sheriffs. (For an account of how the Lord Mayor's day was changed to Nov. 9 see N. and Q., 10th ser., v. 30.)

The errors of date in Stow's list have affected his notices of events. I have endeavoured to put these notices under their appropriate years; thus the notes on Walter Brune, Henry FitzAlwin, and William Joyner, which in the edition of 1603 appear under 1203, 1212, and 1239, are put back to 1202, 1211, and 1238. Similarly the notices for Alen de la Souch (1266), Gregory Rocksley (1274), and Henry Walleis (1281) are all put back one year, in order that they may appear where these persons are first mentioned, as they do in the text of 1603. For other notices see notes below.

A. = Additional MS. 14252.

G. = Dr. Gairdner's list.

149, l. 34. Their 1. Maïor. It is probable that Henry FitzAlwin's term of office dated from the recognition of the Commune in 1191. But the earliest mention of the Mayor of London seems to occur in 1193 (Round, Commune of London, pp. 225-35). 'Fifteenth of King John' is an error; FitzAlwin died on Sept. 19, 1212, in the fourteenth regnal and thirteenth mayoral year.

151, l. 23. to chuse . . a Maïor. I leave this under the date to which Stow assigns it; but there was no charter in 1208-9, and the reference must be to the Charter of May 9, 1215 (Birch, 12). It is noteworthy that the London Chronicles allege that the first mayor held office in 10 John (see Gregory's Chronicle, 60; Chron. Lond. 2).

152, l. 11. the ditch. I leave this under 1213-14; but see vol. i, p. 19.

153, l. 9. Constantine FitzAlulf. Stow places under 1222-23; but the true date was July-August, 1222. See Lib. de Ant. Legg. 5; Gregory's Chronicle, 63; M. Paris, iii. 71.

156, l. 13. The King graunted, &c. Stow places under 1250-1; but see Lib. de Ant. Legg. 19.

l. 19. The Liberties, &c. Stow places under 1252-3; but see Lib. de Ant. Legg. 21.

l. 21. The Maior, &c. I leave under 1254-5; but it would refer better to 1257-8, cf. Lib. de Ant. Legg. 22, and 29-36.

157, l. 3. the walles. Stow places under 1257-8, and it may refer to M. Paris, v. 697; but more probably it refers to v. 634 and belongs to 1256-7.

158, l. 12. Thomas FitzTheobald. I leave this note under the year where Stow gave it. But FitzTheobald and his wife Agnes, sister of Thomas Becket, of course founded their hospital much earlier. See i. 269.

l. 22. Bow Church. Stow places under 1271-2; but the date was Jan. 1271 (Ann. Lond. 81).

160, l. 3. Lawrence Ducket. Stow places under 1284-5; but it was in the year that Goodcheape was sheriff. Cf. i. 254 and Ann. Lond. 81. For some light on the murder see references to another affair in which Ducket and Crepin had been concerned in Hundred Rolls, i. 403 sqq.

l. 19. Raph Barnavars. In the Cotton MS. Julius, B. II (Chron. London 7), Ralph de Sandwich is said to have been Custos 'usque in crastinum Sancti Barnabi Apostoli, anno xxii<sup>o</sup>'. (So also the list in Letter-Book, F, 282.) However, from the Liber Custumarum (Mun. Gild. II. 292) it appears that in 1289 Sandwich was removed 'ante festum Purificationis Beatae Mariae', and Ralph de Berners, deputy-Constable of the Tower, was appointed in his place; but within a few days Berners was succeeded as Custos by John le Breton. Then in 19 Edward I Berners and Breton were removed, and Sandwich again made both Custos and Constable of the Tower. See also Ann. Lond. 97.

l. 28. Three men. Stow places under 1293-4; but see Ann. Lond. 102.

165, l. 9. Walter Nele, Bladesmith. It should be 'blader', i.e. corn-monger, see note on p. 325 above.

l. 12. The king graunted. The date of this grant was June 10, 1354. (Birch, 63.)

166, l. 26. Aldermen. Edward II granted in 1319 that they should be removeable every year on March 12, and not be re-elected (Mun. Gild. II. i. 269). There was some doubt whether this meant that they must be removed, or only that they might be removed. On November 12, 1376, it was ordained that all the aldermen should vacate office on that day, and not be re-elected. But on March 8, 1384, it was ordered that they should not be removed except for some reasonable cause (id. I. 36, II. ii. 436; cf. Letter-Book, H, 58).

186, l. 26. James Dalton. Stow in his Annales, p. 1217, ed. 1605, under date 1586, writes of a letter from the Queen 'read openly in a great assembly of the Commons in the Guildhall, August 22, before the reading whereof, master James Dalton, one of the Counsellors of the City, in the absence of the Recorder made this speech hereafter following, &c.' James Dalton was made under-sheriff of London through Burghley's favour in March, 1594 (Lansdowne MSS. 77 (31); and 34 (18), 77 (51) and 79 (75)—three other letters from Dalton).

195, l. 37. the new fashion of flatte caps. Howes in 1631, with reference to the time of Queen Mary and beginning of the reign of Elizabeth, writes of the London apprentices: 'They also wore flat caps, both then and many yeares after, as well Apprentices as Journey-men, and others, both at home and abroad, whom the Pages of the Court in derision called Flat-caps', Annales, p. 1041. Ben Jonson, in Every man in his Humour, Act II, Sc. i, writes:—

Gesture, or look I use; mock me all over,
From my flat-cap unto my shining shoes.

And Dekker in The Honest Whore, Pt. 2:—

Flat Caps as proper are to Citty Gownes,
As to Armors Helmets, or to kings their Crownes.
Let then the City Cap by none be scorn'd
Since with it Princes heads have been adorn'd.

196, l. 5. Sir John White wore it. Stow in his Memoranda (pp. 127-8) writes: 'Ser John Whit, beyng mayre, wore bothe a longe beard and also a round cape that wayed not iiij ounces, whiche semyd to all men, in consideracyon of y<sup>e</sup> auncient bonyt, to be very uncomly.' Dekker in The Honest Whore, Pt. 2, comments both on caps and shaving (Works, ii. 110):—

For Caps are emblems of humility;
It is a citizens badge, and first was worne
By th' Romans; for when any Bondmans turne Came to be made a Freeman: thus 'twas said,
He to the Cap was call'd; that is, was made
Of Rome a Freeman, but was first close shorne,
And so a Citizen's haire is still short worne.

In 1543 the Court of Aldermen had actually ordered that no one wearing a beard 'of more notable prolyxyte or length than that worn by other citizens should be admitted by redemption to the liberties and freedom of the City as long as he should wear any such beard' (Repertory, 10, f. 343, ap. Letter-Book, D, p. xi).

198, l. 33. The author. Stow expressly conceals his name, whilst stating that he was a Londoner born. From a reference at the head of p. 202 it appears that the writer was a young scholar at Oxford during the reign of Queen Mary, and from another on p. 208 to have been a lawyer, familiar with London constitutional government. The facts might suit James Dalton, who was at Christ Church in 1551 (Reg. Univ. Oxford, i. 217). The occasion for writing seems to have been the proclamation against new building in 1580 (see note on pp. 367-8 above).

220. Descriptio Londoniae was written in 1174 by William Fitz-Stephen as a prelude to his life of Thomas Becket. It is not, however, found in all the extant copies of that work, and of the manuscripts used for the edition in Materials for the History of Thomas Becket, vol. iii (Rolls Series), Lansdowne 398 (in the British Museum) alone has it in full, whilst Douce, 287 (in the Bodleian Library) has an imperfect copy. Other copies are contained in Marshall MS. 75 (in the Bodleian Library), and in the Liber Custumarum, preserved at the Guildhall and edited by H. T. Riley in Mun. Gild. II. i. 1-15. Stow might presumably have had access to the last; but his discussion on London Schools (vol. i. 71-3) shows that he had not made use of it. His original more nearly resembled the Douce MS. which belonged to Lessness Abbey, near Erith, and the Marshall MS. which Hearne thought Stow had used.

The Description of London has been several times printed, viz. by Strype in his Survey (Appendix, pp. 9-11), using the Liber Custumarum; by Thomas Hearne in vol. viii of Leland's Itinerary from the Marshall MS.; by Samuel Pegge in 1772 with notes; and by W. J. Thoms in his edition of the Survey, where the previous printed editions are collated with the Lansdowne MS. The present text is based on a comparison of Stow's text with the two versions in the Rolls Series, which I have collated anew with the Lansdowne MS. I have further given some references to Hearne's text and to the Douce MS.

The copy in the Liber Custumarum, though somewhat late in date, is of peculiar interest for its civic origin. On the whole it agrees with Stow's text more closely than does the Lansdowne MS. It has the peculiarity of being divided into twenty-five chapters, as against the eleven of Stow's version; the chapter De Pascuis et Sationalibus is divided into two; the chapter De Dispositione Urbis has four divisions, and that De Ludis no less than ten. In the Lansdowne MS. there is no division into chapters. In the present edition Stow's division (which is also that of Hearne) is retained. As a rule the text follows that of Stow, where he is supported by either of the chief MSS. No MS. appears to be entitled to pre-eminent authority.

In the footnotes on pp. 219-29 above,

C. = Liber Custumarum.

D. = Douce MS. 287.

H. = Hearne's edition.

L. = Lansdowne MS. 398.

S. = Stow's text of 1603.

FitzStephen adorned his narrative with an extraordinary display of classic learning (much of it no doubt second-hand). I have given as many references as I could find in previous editions or trace elsewhere.

ADDENDA

i. 217, l. 25. no silks. See ii. 313, where the note should be that the best version of London Lickpenny does mention silk, though Stow's own copy has simply 'Paris thred, coton, and vmple'. Nicolas, Lond. Chron., 263 and 267; and Skeat, Specimens of English Literature (ed. 1879, p. 26).

i. 386, l. 13. Beatrix his wife. Stow has made a confusion here. Sir Richard Burley (d. 1387) married, as her third husband, Beatrix, daughter of Ralph, Earl of Stafford, and widow of Thomas, Lord Ros of Hamelake, who died in 1383. Beatrix died on April 14, 1415 (G. E. C. Complete Peerage, iii. 84, vi. 401; Beltz, Memorials of the Garter, 293).

i. 389, l. 7. Pembrooks Inne. See ii. 350. John of Brittany, Earl of Richmond, had licence on May 5, 1331, to grant to Mary, Countess of Pembroke, the castles, towns, manors, and lands which he held in England (C. P. R. Edw. III, ii. 110).

i. 347, l. 28. parish church of St. Mildred. On Faithorne's map the church is shown on the north side of Basing Lane, and this seems to be the position indicated by Stow, cf. i. 348, l. 13. But the existing church is on the south side, and there does not seem to be any record of a change of site when the church was rebuilt after 1666.

ii. 102, l. 18. Chanon Row. See ii. 375. 'The Chanon Row' is mentioned in a letter of Anthony, Earl Rivers (d. 1483), ap. Additional MS., 25459, f. 316.

ii. 104, l. 28. six wooll houses. See ii. 375 and 378. On Dec. 15, 1437, Henry VI granted to John Beket and Thomas Carre, the six houses called the houses of the king's wools. The houses were part of the foundation of the College of St. Stephen, but had been lately returned to the king for a certain compensation. This grant was surrendered, when on Nov. 16, 1443, the king granted the houses to the Dean and Canons of St. Stephen's in frank almoign (C. P. R. Henry VI, iii. 123, 125).

SUPPLEMENT TO THE NOTES

THE purpose of this Index is to give references to modern editions of authors cited or used by Stow ; and to Collections and Calendars, where documents so used or cited may be found. I have endeavoured, where possible, to give the actual source of Stow's information. But it must not be assumed that he had always made use of the authority here given. Thus whilst it is certain that he had used the Liber Albus and Liber Custumarum, it is not so clear that he was acquainted with the Liber de Antiquis Legibus. The references are unavoidably imperfect ; some are difficult to trace ; some come from sources still unprinted and uncalendared. Stow had, moreover, made use of manuscripts which seem now to have perished ; such are his Liber S. Mariae Overy and Liber Woodbridge. For the minor religious foundations in London, the editors of the Monasticon Anglicanum could often add nothing to the information preserved in the Survey.

When the sources of any statement have been discussed in the Notes, they are not here repeated. Whenever possible, references to mediaeval historians are to the editions in the Rolls Series. The following abbreviations are used both in the Notes and in this Index.

 Obit, funeral obsequies, annual memorial service; 'an obite, or anniuersary, to be spent on the poore,' i. 197.
 often (adj.) casualties by fire, i. 83.
 or, ere : 'a bye worde, such a man will be Maior, or he be shiriffe,' ii. 187.
 orchyard, ii. 102 : for ortyard, formerly supposed to be derived from Greek ὄρχαρος.
 original, origin, i. 48.
 osterie, a common, for travellers, i. 202; cf. hosterie, i. 216.
 ouer, outright : 'sold it ouer,' i. 152.
 ouerhayled : 'which Bell, named Kus, rung by one man for 150 years, . . . of late ouerhayled by four or five at once, hath been thrice broken and new cast within . . . ten years,' i. 196.

 Pauline, i. 281 (a ghost word).
 'Every Vsurer should weare a Table on their breast, the breadth of a pauline.' i. 281, l. 6, pauline. This is clearly a printer's error for 'palme', which is the reading of the corresponding passage in the Summarie Abridged both for 1598 and for 1604, and also in the Annales, p. 305, ed. 1605; probably Stow wrote 'paulme'. From the Annales it appears that Stow's authority was the Historia Regum of John Rous (p. 202, ed. Hearne), which reads, 'rex eximius Judaeis in regno suo ut ab aliis nosceretur tabulare ad unius palmae longitudinem signa ferrent in exterioribus indumentis.' Rous copied the Florus Historiarum (lib. 45). I am indebted to Mr. Walter Worrall for indicating the solution of this difficulty.
